Blizzard And Blackout Poetry Contest Winners

Thanks to Diane Drake of the English department of Northland Community and Technical College for organizing and conducting a little public writing exercise called the "Great Northwest Minnesota (and North Dakota, of course) Blizzard and Blackout Poetry Contest."

First, second and third prize winners, respectively, were Jennifer Maurstad, D. E. Schindler and Brent Waale, with Honorable Mention awards going to Jan Strandlie, Amanda Sjaaheim, Philip D. Klopp, Judy Whaley and Sheila Michaels.

Here at The Times we like to encourage writing, although we have little occasion to use poetry. Because of this unique and timely competition, however, we have elected to print the winning entries in our editorial column. Our congratulations to all the winners.

Blizzard

Outside the wind raged ragged stunning numbing freezing the city.
Inside laughing,
head in my pillow
among the orchestrated sound of sleeping refugees.

Springtime in Minnesota

by Jennifer Maurstad

Trees budding, birds singing, cottony white clouds, tulips peeking out of the ground;
It's Springtime in Minnesota.
Icicles hanging off the trees, wind whistling, cotton covered roofs, snow shovel peeking out of the drift;
It's Springtime in Minnesota.
Bikinis, sunscreen, beach balls, garden gloves, sipping iced tea;
It's Springtime in Minnesota.
Snowmobile suits, face masks, hockey pucks, choppers, blowing on hot chocolate;
It's Springtime in Minnesota.
Lawn mowers, snow blowers, fresh black dirt, clean white snow, showers of gentle raindrops, storms of blowing snowflakes;
Ya sure, it's Springtime in Minnesota.

Deliciously Trapped

by D. E. Schindler

Sharing blankets,
Moving closer,
Silence shared,
and cold noses.
No TV, no lights bright,
Only warmth by firelight.
Rustle of book-pages heard,
a warm glance beside,

Nothing else is to be done—
until Nature's Storm subsides.

The Rain Came Down in Torrents

by Jan Strandlie

The rain came down in torrents that night we went to bed,
We did not know by morning it would be snow instead.
We're used to snow—it's always cold—we watch it from indoors,
But cold we had for days, as well—in rooms, on walls, on floors.
Not only cold, no power!! How can we watch the news?
We don't have running water to wash away the blues
Our drive is blocked, we can't get out to brave the roads of ice
I wonder how the neighbors are? Hot coffee would be nice!
Cold food, cold beds, cold noses. I hope I don't get sick.
Or worse, I hope our enemies don't learn this easy trick!

Oh Generator, My Generator

by Brent Waale

Oh generator, my generator—how thou doth powereth my abode, thou produceth energy from mere thin aire and support a 4 kilowatt load Begone ye candles, and torches, and oil lamps with your stench, methinks thee must quit thy service and bid—get thee hence

Oh generator, my generator—what craft you possess,
In tymes of chaos, you make sense of this mess.
You pow'r our sump-pumps, and deliver us—we're free, and thank the Almighty—we got back our Tee-Vee.

The Blackout Blues

by Philip D. Klopp

Saturday night I thought it was neat—no power, no problem, we had plenty of heat.
Sunday our guests came escaping the storm—happy to be someplace safe and warm
Monday we laughed and played lots of games—cards and Monopoly filled our brains.
Tuesday I longed for hot food and a shower—
PKM said they were working on the power.
Wednesday came and went without a bump—finally we'd made the midweek hump.
After almost six days of no flushing or power—
Thursday night was the magical hour.
TV and lights and water at last—somehow those unending hours had passed.

Three Haikus

by Judy Whaley

Stunned, a city waits
In cold darkness for some word.
"Mary, please call home!"

In the cold darkness,
Nestled in my sleeping bag,
Cats cuddle up close.

Darkness encroaches,
Victor over the candles—
A long night awaits.

Ode To Old Man Winter

by Sheila Michaels

Old man winter awoke with a mighty roar.
He screamed and spat and howled and swore.
With rain and sleet and ice and snow,
we seemed to feel his every blow.
The darkness came and never went,
we felt the coldness the old man sent.
We bailed the water, we lit our stoves,
we wrapped in blankets, and still we froze.
Finally the light, the heat, the water,
we thanked the old man that the worst was over.
Old man winter showed us his incredible power, but we beg next time could we please keep ours?

LETTERS

To The Editor:

I think that all of us should think before we waste so much of earth that we can't enjoy it any more. We shouldn't use a lot of stuff that comes from trees, oil and other important things, so generation after generation can have a clean, healthy world.

I thought of writing this letter because, in school, we were studying about simple things kids can do to save the world. But I think grown-ups can do some, too.

To The Editor:

Sandra Anderson should be called our "Angel of TRF." She has been in charge of the flood food service at the Evangelical Free Church (former Washington school) since they began serving meals to flood victims on April 21.

Sandra has planned all the menus, ordered all the groceries, cooked much of the food and coordinated the help which came from area churches.

Her days have been long....very long....and no vacation days, but she still managed a smile and a pleasant atmosphere for those of us who had the opportunity to work with her.

Thanks, Sandra, from all of us!

Sincerely,
Gladys Hallstrom
Red Lake Falls

To The Editor:

I retired two years ago from Local Union 1426 I.B.E.W. after 38 years as a unionized electrician. I recently felt the need to go back to work as an electrical inspector for the City of Grand Forks, ND, certifying electrical installation and replacement of electrical equipment that had been damaged by the flood.

The reason I am writing this letter is to ask why our National Guard felt they had the need to drive on the wrong side of stop lights, across berms, lawns, etc., tearing up ruts as deep as two feet in places, and driving so fast as to wash vehicles against stoplights, buildings, posts, etc. Perhaps they were inadequately commanded or not at all.

We were asked not to use the National Guard food facilities, as a Guardsman thought we were—as he said—"non-essential personnel." We only used it several times, mostly for convenience sake. I have never developed a taste for army chow, any more than I did 41 years ago.

I would just like to meet the Guardsman who threw us out of the armory to inform him, as far as I'm concerned, he can stick his chow where the sun doesn't directly hit it.

It has appeared to me we are greatly appreciated by at least the several hundred people whose homes we have restored power to so far. Tell me more about "non-essential personnel" around here.

Sincerely,
Culver Kisch
U.S. Army RA-17-387-251

To the Editor:

On behalf of everyone in the 7th Congressional District, I want to say a heartfelt "thanks" to each and every person who has given their time and energy to fighting the floods.

All my life I've been proud to be a Minnesotan. During those past weeks when the entire nation watched our struggle against the floods, many of you worked day and night to defend homes and communities. You demonstrated to millions of other Americans a spirit, and a unity, and a persistence that is rarely seen these days.

People from all over the region came to the aid of their friends and neighbors, as well as complete strangers. In small communities and larger towns, everyone helped to fill and stack sandbags. And when it was clear that nothing would stop the water in some of our communities, Minnesotans in unaffected areas graciously welcomed unfortunate strangers into their homes.

But it isn't over. News stories about Grand Forks and East Grand Forks no longer lead the network news, but we have to remember that those affected by the flood still need help — maybe even more than they needed it a few weeks ago. We still need volunteers to help with clean up and rebuilding all the way from Breckenridge to St. Vincent. Even if you can only spend one day in a flood-affected town, please consider it.

Again, my thanks to everyone. Difficult as it has been, I know that we will all continue to pull together like we always have to get this job done.

Sincerely,
Collin C. Peterson
Member of Congress

FROM THE PAGES OF THE TIMES

50 YEARS AGO • MAY 22, 1947

by Jerome and Donna Myhrer

Two Concerns Sustain Big Loss In Blaze

"In a disastrous blaze that broke out Tuesday night shortly after 10 o'clock, the two-story brick main building of the Peterson-Biddick company plant on Atlantic avenue at Fourth street was gutted and contents of the Land O'Lakes seed warehouse adjoining on the north was damaged by fire, smoke and water to an extent estimated by Stuart McLeod, manager of the local plant, at in excess of $50,000.

"The Soo Line Minneapolis-bound train arrived while the fire was at its height, and as a precautionary measure the passenger cars were stopped a considerable distance north of the station, which adjoined the scene of the fire, until the train was ready to depart."

Take Over Lunch Room

"William Sundholm and Walter Beatty Monday took over the operation of the lunchroom at the 410 taxi stand on Main av., and they announced that 24-hour service will be given. They also stated that their present lunch wagon on LaBree av. north of the Northern State bank will continue in operation."

Planes Will Stage Mock Air Attack

"Two rifle platoons of Company F of the local National Guard unit will stage their first march and out-of-doors maneuvers south of the fair grounds this evening at 8 o'clock, Captain A. C. Tiedeman, commanding officer, stated today. Zion To Build

"While the city council at a meeting last week approved the application of Zion Lutheran church congregation for a permit to erect a new church edifice on Main avenue and Fifth street at an estimated cost of $75,000, it is not planned to proceed with construction until next spring, Rev. Walter M. Pedersen, pastor, stated today.

"Construction, he explained, is being postponed until that time in the hope that building costs will have become more stabilized. The site of the proposed structure is 100 by 140 feet in dimensions and is located on the west side of Main avenue and the north side of Fifth street. Rev. Pedersen added that the fifty-foot frontage on Horace avenue at Second street occupied by the present church structure is for sale."

Programme for Decoration Day

"G. A. R. Veterans and two brass bands and the city fire department will meet at the city hall at 2:00 o'clock p. m. sharp, march to Central school building, where teachers and pupils of that school will join, march to the M. E. church and meet teachers and pupils of Knox school. Services at the church will be conducted by Pastor Ira Goodell, music and songs by pupils of the different schools. From church, the procession will go to the cemetery and soldiers' graves will be decorated with proper ceremonies. A large cross of flowers in honor of soldiers buried elsewhere and having friends and relatives here will be displayed. All arrangements on the procession, marching and ceremonies, will be under the supervision of the surviving soldiers present. As Decoration Day is a holiday and business houses are expected to be closed, everybody is invited to be present and assist in paying just tribute to our honored soldiers. Each child is especially requested to bring a few flowers."

— By order of F. H. Kratka, Mayor.

"The village council resolved that it was a city — that settles it surely. If there had been more money we suppose they would have voted themselves bigger salaries."

NOTICE OF PUBLIC HEARING AIRPORT ZONING ORDINANCE

Notice is hereby given that a second public hearing will be held before the Thief River Falls Joint Airport Zoning Board for the purpose of considering the adoption of an Airport Zoning Ordinance in the area of the Thief River Falls Regional Airport. The initial public hearing was held on July 18, 1995. Revisions to the Airport Layout Plans, including realignment of the proposed crosswind runway, have been made since that time in order to mitigate certain zoning issues which were raised.

The public hearing will be held on th 29th day of May, 1997, commencing at 7:00 PM at the Heritage Community Center located at 301 East 4th Street. The proposed Ordinance and accompanying maps is available for public inspection during regular business hours at the office of the Thief River Falls Public Works Director, 324 East Second Street, Thief River Falls, Minnesota.

The property affected by the proposed Airport Zoning Ordinance is some, but not all, of the land lying within 14,500 feet of the airport's runways. The types of restrictions proposed for each area are set forth in detail in the proposed Ordinance and maps.

The precise restrictions which would be imposed vary, depending on the location of the property. The restrictions generally regulate the height of structures, the location or size, and use of buildings and the density of population. The most restrictive provisions would apply to areas located in a trapezoidal area off the end of each runway, which area extends out from the end of the runway a distance equal to the length of the runway plus two hundred feet.

Persons who believe that they may be affected by the proposed Ordinance are encouraged to review it and ascertain the specific impact which it would have on their property.

Style Show

Using the theme "Turn Back Time" the FLA—Future Leaders of America presented their annual style show on Monday evening at the school gym which had the decoration from the prom. Catherine Rosten, president of the club, gave the welcome and the first section found several girls modeling Prom, Prom Waitress and Bridesmaids dresses, narrated by Tricia Willett. The second section was "Styles of the Past", narrated by Catherine Rosten and Rebecca Demarais. After a short intermission to give guests the opportunity of viewing a delightful display of quilts, needlework, crafts and oldie dresses, the styles of the past continued. This was quite hilarious as mothers viewed some of their own dresses and outfits being shown by their daughters. The styles went back to the 20's, 40's and more recent years and showed the changes in the past decades from dresses to pantsuits, etc. The last section was entitled "Influence on Today" and consisted of various fashions from Maurices, J.C. Penney's and Vanity, stores from Thief River Falls. Narrator for this part was Rebecca Bushelle. Catherine gave the closing and invited everyone for refreshments, served by the 7th and 8th grade girls. Cheese was donated by the Plummer Creamery. The Club consists of 24 girls under the direction of Margaret Hamrum, Home Ec. teacher. A large crowd attended and enjoyed the program, lunch, and exhibits shown by Florence Tvedt, Lynn Gallant and Deb Kokesh.

Plummer Senior Meals

Plummer has a well run meal site, serving delicious meals and providing opportunities for visiting with neighbors in the Plummer area.

Some people, however, feel that they are not "old" enough to enjoy these meals and fellowship. You don't have to be old - you only have to be 60 or have a spouse that is 60! That is the one and only requirement for participating in Senior Meals.

Income has nothing to do with eligibility. Dining participants cover a wide economic range including many who are comfortable financially and participate not because they "need" the meals but because it's fun and because their participation helps to assure the continuation of delicious meals for all seniors in the community. The suggested donation for a full course meal is $2.50. People over 60 may donate whatever they wish and nobody is ever turned away because of an inability to donate. The actual full cost of the is $4.50 and you are welcome to pay that much or more if you wish. All donations are confidential. Nobody except you will know the extent to which you are supporting and serving others.

The Plummer Senior Meal Program is not about seniors getting a free meal through a social service agency, but rather about a community working together with an agency to make sure that every senior has access to social interaction and nutritionally balanced hot meals.

Thank you to the many people in Plummer who support senior meals!

Letter written and sent by Howard C. Greenwald, Vice President and Ernest Pederson, President of Plummer Senior Meals.

Larry and Renate Samson had his mother Alida over for supper on Mother's Day. Verena Lewis and boys from Clearbrook were also there.

Mother's Day dinner guests at the Les and Carol Torgerson home at Clearwater Lake were Arnold, Sanna, Gordon and Sarah Brovold, Luke and Sanna Torgerson and Tony Gustafson. All enjoyed turkey and all the trimmings, too windy and chilly for much fishing on the Lake. They will wait for warmer weather, then lookout Mr. Walleye.

Visitors at the Wendt and Cathy Songe home for Mother's Day were Larry Songe, Joanie and Larry Sorenson, Bob and Joan Songe of Gonvick, Doreen and Sarah Brovold. They all served coffee and cake.

Mike Lehrer was also recognized but was unable to attend the meeting.

The Board recognized the Lincoln High School Student Senate for being named one of three Outstanding Student Councils in the State of Minnesota. The following students were also recognized for receiving awards in the State Spanish contest: Nate Koller for Level I, Jarod Brandt for Level II, Rick Donarski for Level III, and Reid Froiland for Level IV. Nate was also named in the top 5% of all students in the state.

Wayne Johanneson, Coordinator of the Area Learning Center, reported on that program indicating they served approximately 335 students in the past year with 219 of those considered as active students. Wayne noted that only about 47% of the students served are from the Thief River Falls School District with the majority from surrounding districts. A reception for students graduating from the program this year is scheduled for May 28th at 7:00 p.m. at the Heritage Center.

Visitors at the Dennis and Renae Clemenson home at Bemidji on Sunday were Arlo and Luverne Foss, Mary, Todd, Mike and Elizabeth Foss of Bagley, Louann and Steve Hughes, Shannon and Ben of Gonvick, John and Kerry Olson, Heather and Mathew Clemenson were both home. They all enjoyed a nice Mother's Day dinner.

On Mother's Day, Dianna Plant of Bemidji came over and took her mother Emma Nyland out for dinner.

Edna the cook at Gully Cafe was happy and tired on Monday. She said they'd had a good and busy day on Mother's Day. She noticed early they might run short of chicken so she tried to bargain with some farmers to bring her some chickens, but they said she'd have to catch them so she had to give that up. Years ago when we'd buy beef from a farmer they called it "beef on the hoof." What would you call buying live chickens?

Emma Nyland, Lyn Turenne and her mother Ellie visited Mathilda Handy in Bemidji on Tuesday. Supper guests on Saturday evening at Lyn and Eds home at Clearwater Lake were Mr. and Mrs. Rob Hanson from Faribault, Mr. and Mrs. Cory Hanson from St. Cloud, Mr. and Mrs. Marty Levine from Eagan, Amber People, Marion Handy and Ellie Handy.

Kathryn Olson had as her guests for dinner on Mother's Day at Morans in Wingar, Halvor and Vivian Rikjo, Keith Paulson and Peggy Ystenes and boys. Later on Sunday they all got together at the Peggy and Milo Ystenes home at Wingar and enjoyed Mother's Day cake and coffee.

Origami, the Oriental art of paper folding, was one of the classes offered during an activities day recently at Franklin middle school. Many of the activities took place at locations away from the school building, but a number of offerings involved volunteers who came to the school and shared their expertise. In the photo above, Katrina Johnson receives some personal help from May Wang who was assisting Yoshiko Duko. At left is Lisa Vigness.

JoAnn Bruzek faces fire in downtown Grand Forks

"Little did I imagine how much the 'Flood of '97' would so greatly affect my life," writes JoAnn Bruzek, a 1992 graduate of Lincoln high school and the daughter of the Curtis and Margaret Bruzek of Thief River Falls. In her own words, this is her story:

The week of April 13th was stressful. Everyone at our law firm (Camrud, Maddock, Olson and Larson Ltd.) was helping to fight the flood by sandbagging and volunteering where needed. By the end of the week, the Red River of the North was rising—washing out dikes and spilling over sandbags in several parts of Grand Forks, ND. Sirens and helicopters filled the air. National Guard vehicles were everywhere helping to evacuate people.

In the early morning of Saturday, April 19th, the waters were starting to fill the streets of downtown. I thought I was safe in my second story apartment and even had plenty of water and food to last for quite awhile. What's a few inches of water in the street for a few days?

By Saturday afternoon the water was three to four feet deep in the streets—enough for boats to maneuver in. I was a little nervous, but my friend Jamie (who had been evacuated from his house) was with me.

At about 4 o'clock in the afternoon I smelled smoke. At first I thought it might be from a boat in the street but it reminded me of a campfire and burning wood. I went out the back door to the fire escape (since the front door was half way under water) to see where the smoke might be coming from. There it was, pouring out of a window in the connecting building!

I saw a boat down the alley and waved to let them know people were still in the area. I ran back inside and yelled, "Jamie, get the cats—there's a fire!" Then I went upstairs to tell the two remaining neighbors to get out of their apartment. By this time the smoke was getting thick. I grabbed my purse and a couple of small bags that we had by the door ready for evacuation. Jamie had the two cats in a carrying cage and we ran!

The Coast Guard was near the fire escape with an airboat. We had to walk through waist high flood water and crawl into the boat. Someone said the water was cold... I don't remember.

We were taken to a National Guard truck to wait while other people were rescued. As we drove away, I was so happy to see dry land but I couldn't help but look back. Even though the fire trucks could not get near the buildings, I still had hope that something would be saved. That was not to be and all I had now were the clothes I was wearing. Even the law firm's building was virtually destroyed.

We eventually ended up in Reynolds, ND, at a co-worker's home, where I stayed for two days. On the Tuesday after the fire I was ready to make the trip to Thief River Falls. Even though only 70 miles separate the two towns, many of the bridges between the two states were closed and the trip home took five hours.

Now, through the kindness of family, friends and even strangers, I have started to rebuild my life. I am no longer a refugee.

Editor's Note: JoAnn said she and her friend were the first two people to be rescued during the fire and were with two others in the Coast Guard airboat which took them to the National Guard truck. They waited in the truck, wet and cold, for others to be rescued before the truck took them to Red River high school. In all, about 20 people were removed from the downtown area at the time of the fire.

From the high school she was taken to Northwood, ND, where she was able to get a second pair of jeans from a supply of donated clothing. Her apartment was one of six in the building which housed Campbell Programming on the ground floor and was connected to the Security Building, where the fire reportedly started. All her personal possessions were consumed in the fire.

A legal secretary program graduate of Anker's Business College in Grand Forks, JoAnn had worked at the law firm for nearly two years. The firm saved many of its records and will reopen in temporary quarters, but is planning to build a new office building. JoAnn has been doing some work for the firm now and will return to work full-time when the temporary quarters are ready.

Eventually nearly 90 individuals would be signed up and staying at the Evangelical Free Church in Thief River Falls following the 1997 flood in East Grand Forks/Grand Forks area.

CROP Walk effort helps projects feed the hungry

Wonderful weather helped get last month's CROP Walk off to a great start. At least 110 walkers of all ages walked the three-mile route. According to walk coordinators, more than $4,700 was raised through this event.

Funds raised will assist a variety of projects aimed at helping the hungry and those in need. Over $1,100 will go to the Thief River Falls Area Food Shelf. The Food Shelf assisted 740 individuals during the month of April alone, and over 125 people helped were from Grand Forks or East Grand Forks.

Monies raised through CROP Walks and other Church World Service events will also be used in flood relief assistance. Church World Service has issued an appeal for $400,000 for just such aid. Church World Service has already spent $5,000 for the Minnesota Council of Churches as seed money to coordinate with faith communities. Similar efforts are underway with the North Dakota Conference of Churches. Plus, health kits and clean up kits are being sent through the Salvation Army. If you wish to receive more information or wish to put such kits together to send, call Church World Services at 612-872-7332.

All participants in the CROP Walk did a wonderful job, according to walk organizers. Many organizations rewarded walkers for such things as raising the most money. Nachele Olson came in first and four-year-old Hurley Johnson was second in this category at the United Methodist Church. Others recognized were Josh Anderson and Jason Swenson. They tied for first in completing the walk. The youngest walker was Johanna Skildum at age two and one-half. The most senior walker was Bernice Knutson, age 85.

The CROP Walk committee thanks everyone for their support and urges anyone who still has pledges to collect, to turn in their sponsor envelopes and donations, as soon as possible. Special thanks to Rev. Bill Kerr, Orin and Marge Green, Jill Johnson, Rev. Skildum, Kathy Skildum, Shelby Sorvig, and Mary Jorganson, and all those who volunteered at Redeemer Lutheran Church, for their hospitality, the United Methodist Church, Police Officers Al Melbye and Mark Haugen, Dr. Jim Langland, The United Methodist Youth for distributing posters, the Thief River Falls Ministerial Association, and Lutheran Brotherhood, Branch 8129 for their contributions.

Viking Lutheran parish members participated in Crop Walk to help stop hunger.

Some of the Crop Walk participants posed for this picture. The fund-raising event was held in April.

Hospice honors Volunteer of the Year

Jane Unbchaun of Thief River Falls was recently honored as Volunteer of the Year by the Thief River Falls office of Hospice of the Red River Valley. She has been a volunteer with Hospice for nearly three years.

Hospice volunteer coordinator Angie Poole said Jane was selected for this honor because of her companionship, caring and dedication to Hospice patients in the area. Her work included home visits, providing meals and rides to appointments, and assisting with Hospice fundraisers. During 1996, she logged the most service hours in the Thief River Falls service area.

Hospice of the Red River Valley is a non-profit Medicare-certified organization whose mission is to provide physical, emotional, spiritual and grief support for the terminally ill and their families in a setting of their choice. The Thief River Falls office serves the counties of Pennington, Red Lake and Marshall.

For more information about volunteering with Hospice or to schedule a speaker, call 218-681-6189.

I went to bed at 11:30 and then my dad woke me up at 1:30 and said "Lets go get the generator going, the lights are out!" So I went out and helped my dad. At 5:00 a.m. I finally got to bed, but then at 6:30 a.m. my dad woke me up again and said "I have to go to work to do the chores and water the bulls." So I only got three hours of sleep. On Saturday some people called us and asked if they could stay. So my mom said yes. Then some people came to get water and to help me with chores. Then on Sunday morning my neighbor brought us some wood for our stove and then my dad came home and said we have to go help someone milk cows.

Cody Moen

We didn't have nothing to do so we had alot of people over. We helped people. We had two generators and we helped heat up peoples houses. My uncle had a generator for us, for awhile, then my Dad went to Plummer to get his own generator from his boss.

Nick Gillund

When the power went out at 1:00 clock in the middle of the night I was sleeping. The next morning I woke up at 6:00 and it was 57° in the house so I slept down in the living room. As the day went on, my dad found a way to get heat in the house. He found an old wood stove so he went and bought some pipes to fit the chimney hole in the kitchen. We got it all ready and the old woodstove kept us warm the rest of the three days and it was 51° then it got up to 75°. And my mom and my dad called people to see if they needed a warm place to sleep, and also gave some wood to some people.

Mindy Swenson

1. Things had happened to me and my family? We had to hook up our generator to the sump pump, wall pump, fridge, TV, coffee pot, heat and cooking pan.

2. What ways did you help others? Gave neighbors lamp oil for lantern. My dad welded a pump for the neighbors, helped neighbors get their well going. Let people stay at our house.

3. What ways did others help you and family? A person helped my dad string an electrical cord to the cow water fountain.

Luke Johnson

1. We couldn't take showers for two days. We had to pail out water because are pump didn't work. 3. My other grandma and grandpa said we could stay with them, but we didn't because they had electricity before us. We gave some people fire wood.

Devon Passa

1. The power went out at 5 to 1:00 and our stove went out. So we went to my grandparents house to stay warm, my cousins did too. When me and my dad woke up we went home and got food and tried to get our other wood stove going and we did. But it still didn't go very well and we went back to my grandparents to stay the night. My grandparents had 16 people at their house. We were all relatives except my cousins boyfriend. We fed all of them. On Monday night at 10 to 10.00 we got electricity, so we went home.

FROM THE WATER

by Wanda K. Nelson

From the water came fear, came uncertainty, came help.
Others cried, others offered, others came.

From the water came fire, came destruction, came promises.
Others watched, others tried, others cared.

From the water came families, came friends, came communities
Others opened doors, others fed, others clothed.

From the water comes help, comes hope,
comes opportunity.
You can go on, you can dream, you can!

First National Bank of Thief River Falls presented a $1,000 check to the Lutheran Brotherhood Challenge Fund to assist with Red River Valley flood relief. Using the Challenge Fund doubles the value of the donation since Lutheran Brotherhood is matching up to $500,000 in contributions by individuals and organizations for flood relief, with 100 percent of the donations to be distributed in Minnesota and the Dakotas. Any interested parties (Lutherans or non-Lutherans) may send checks payable to Lutheran Brotherhood Foundation to P.O. Box 1122, Minneapolis, MN 55440-1122. Prisoners In "Little Houses On the Prairie"

I knew there was supposed to be a storm, but one this bad I never expected. A catastrophe brought together a whole town. You could just tell how bored the town was just listening to KTRF.

I was hanging out with my boyfriend and friend's Saturday night. I was supposed to come home, but the weather progressed. I couldn't believe how fast those puddles were made, they kept getting larger. The wind blew so hard I felt like I was going to be blown away, and it was freezing! I called my parents, and for the first time they actually told me to stay. Usually I'd have to beg and whine to get my way, but this night the wind was very loud. What I didn't know was that power lines were being knocked over all over. My boyfriend's window was broken and only had a garbage bag over it which also had a couple of holes in it, so you can imagine how loud it was.

In the morning I noticed it was colder than usual. It was one of those days when you just didn't want to get out of bed. But then even that started to get cold, and your thinking "This is odd!" I realized something was weird when I was freezing with my jacket on. My nose was cold and my feet were numb. This is when my boyfriend grabbed a wool sweater and made me put it on over my sweatshirt. That kept me sort of warm. The house was about 40 or 50 degrees. Then we knew the power was out. We got out of the house and hopped into the car where it finally was warm. I just wanted to drive around all day because it was nice and warm and it actually had tunes. We drove over to a friend's house and found my sister stranded there. They were both coddled up in a million blankets. I could see my breath. My friend said laughing and shivering "My mother made coffee this morning by burning a toilet paper roll." My sister slept with only a sheet. She woke up shivering like a bat out of hell.

My boyfriend called one of his friends and found out they had heat so we cruised over there. They had blankets covering all openings to one room and one big heater. They had the grill going in the kitchen on which they were making coffee on.

Sunday night we stayed at my boyfriend's mom's friend. She had an old fashion furnace. It was nice to be in a heated house. She cooked hot dogs and roast beef on the furnace. The thing that irritated me was when we had gone to bed, and I was at the edge of sleep, the lights came on. But they went back out an hour later.

And while I was in the same clothes, hadn't showered for days, my parents were having the easy life with electricity. Their's came on at about 10:30 Sunday morning, plus we have a wood stove and a generator! Man, all weekend I complained about how bad I wanted to take a nice steaming hot bath. And when I got home that was the first place I went. It's crazy how we rely on something so much that we barely notice until it's taken away for a couple of days.

The Night the Poles Fell

People get a little kooky when they're cold. During this, The Power Outage of '97, I realized just how insane a family can be without being "dysfunctional." As Sunday progressed, so did the layers of clothes each of us had on. I sleep much later than the rest of my kin, so when I arose at 11:00 on Sunday morning, I found my family in bundles. Rachel was sleeping on the floor with an ear warmer on her head, numerous pairs of flannel and sweatpants she had dug out of her closet, and mittens sticking out of her terry cloth robe. I could hardly see her, however, because of the numerous quilts and blankets trapping her body heat. My mom and dad had an equal amount of blankets covering them, but they were on the couch with their heads sticking out of either end of the cozy contraption. My mom's green and red robe from Christmas covered her many layers, making her look like the Dough Boy in disguise. An old scarlet stocking cap fit snugly over her head and almost touched the top rims of her glasses. Chunks of morning hair escaped the hat's cover and desperately gasped for air. My dad's head at the other end of the couch wasn't any more attractive. A blue and gray stocking cap "from" 1968 concealed hair haphazardly pasted to his head. An old brown jacket and blue ski pants perfected his ensemble. I obviously felt left out and went to change into an attractive hooded sweatshirt and tied so tightly it only revealed my glasses and nose.

We set up a camp in one-half of our living room armed with blankets. We had no fireplace and no camping grill. My uncle had borrowed our small propane heater to thaw out his car many months ago, and right then we wished he had returned it. Our house had absolutely no source of heat. Our hands got too cold if we tried to read or play cards, so we mainly tried to think of interesting topics to bring up. When the phone rang, none of us wanted to leave our individual havens and venture across the cold linoleum. Being the antsy one, my dad would fly off the couch and hop to the phone in a sleeping bag. We hoped he wouldn't fall because that would require us to move in order to help him.

We discussed our options for lunch. My mom said we had to eat because she wasn't about to die and have people finding us looking the way we did. Stale bread and peanut butter sufficed as lunch along with milk we brought in from the garage where it was cold enough to keep it from spoiling. Our hands were too cold to eat anything else, so we hunkered down in our blankets for another few hours of nothingness.

Sunday evening we moved my parents' mattress onto the floor of Rachel's bedroom. Since this was the smallest room in the house we figured candles and body heat would get us through the night. We gathered every possible items we could use as a blanket and lit candles for a little warmth and heat. Everyone was asleep by ten o'clock because it was too dark to do anything else. Our phone rang at three in the morning. Mom, Rachel and I heard it, but we couldn't get to the phone because my dad was blocking the doorway. "Bruce, get up and get the phone!" she said as she whacked him in the shoulder. Being yanked from his deep slumber, I heard gasps and snorts while the blankets rustled.

"What? What?" he frantically asked in a daze.

"Go and get the phone," my mom said slowly.

I heard him shuffle across the floor on his hands and knees. He scanned the door for the knob and had trouble working the contraption. After rising to his feet on the 15th ring, he ran and stumbled across the living room floor knocking into several obstacles. The phone wheezed its final ring as my dad picked up the receiver.

"Hello! Hello? Ach!" He slammed down the receiver. We heard him head back to our room, but in the process, he repeatedly ran into the wall, missing the doorway to the hall. When he finally arrived through the door, we grilled him on what was wrong with him. Why did it take him so long to get the phone. He was now awake and angry.

"I thought I was in our room on the bed. I was trying to get down off the bed and I couldn't find the floor, alright?!" We snickered at his deliriousness and fell back asleep. At 5 a.m. my grandparents called to say they had heat and electricity. We planned to go there in the morning if we could get past our blown in driveway.

When we awoke, my dad was already outside shoveling an enormous drift by the garage. I needed to pack a few things, so I opened the door of Rachel's room to a slap of 28 degree air. Our body heat had warmed the little room more than I thought. The snow we had melted over a candle the night before was now frozen in the bowl. The vinyl bag I was about to pack was stiff and crackled with every item I put into it. I had to blow on my hands every so often to thaw them out. We hauled our belongings into the minivan and prayed we would make it past the piles of snow grappling our tires. When we hit the pavement, we had to go extremely slow because the roads were covered with a thick layer of ice.

As we walked through my grandma's front door, she cried. My mom joked, "We don't look that bad, do we?" Grandma had homemade soup waiting for us on the stove; we ate and let the heat soak in. I have never been so thankful to hear a furnace kick in as I was that day at my grandparents' house. We listened to the many announcements on KTRF while we played pinochle for hours. We didn't turn on the TV or any lights all day. We entertained ourselves just like the many people without electricity were doing at that moment. I realized we all take electricity and running water for granted, but when our daily lives are so dependent on it, we can do nothing else but take it for granted.

Spring Blizzard

There is always one last winter calamity before the flood and mud of real spring. A desperate grasp by the icy north to once again entrap us, like the villain that snatches the hero's ankle before going off the cliff. We had ours in Warroad.

It started out beautifully. The sedacious dark skies beaded necklaces of continuous gray raindrops. A wet-wool fog slumbered between the clouds and the thawing yellow earth. Slowly, however, and bit by bit the blizzard shed the "April shower" mask and froze the rain to flakes.

As we were awake all Saturday night, we watched from my friends doorway as the storm progressed. First, a white film of ice attracted more and more layers of snow. We paid it little heed, however, and continued with our revelry. Near eight Sunday morning when it was decided we should disperse, my friends Shane, Andon, Scott and I clambered aboard my friend Scott's dubious Ford Pinto for the short ride (the equivalent of a block or two) to my house. As we neared the mouth of my driveway, I remembered Scott getting stuck here last winter by turning his car a little too sharply.

Scott swung the blue and lozenge-like Pinto in a sweeping arc towards the gaping end of our whited-out driveway. There was no thump, no catch, no drop. There was just a gentle, firm, and final loss of all inertia. Lacking the necessary patience this early in the morning, after less than five minutes of fruitless effort we left the Pinto lodged in the snow, raw gouges through the drifts showing the sucking brown mud below.

It was a brief, quiet, and cold walk down the twisting drifting road back to my house. An outing that terminated any last will of wakefulness. As soon as we entered the door of my house, we split like spiderwebs to our different places of rest and slept.

When we woke, it was deep, white, cold, and January again. We eventually pulled the Pinto from the cesspool of snow and mud, and that being our one and only task we wasted the rest of the day.

We spent the rest of the day inside, poring over sundries, wasting time by minutes. We played a scoreless game of Scrabble, rolled marbles down plastic chutes, and generally spent our day freely, giving hours of our time to the most prosaic of bric-a-bracs. It wasn't until I received a phone call, around 2:30 pm, that I heard that power was out in Thief River. The apartment building my friend was calling from had no power and neither did most of North Dakota, Grand Forks, and the residents of a 150 mile strip along the Red River Valley.

It came as sort of a shock. It was bad in Warroad as well, but not to that extent. So we watched a movie. We kicked a hackey-sack. That was the extent of the blizzard's affect on us. We played some card games and read. We blew bubbles with some dishsoap and a few straws. Soon drowsiness overcame us, and we collapsed under its weight and slept heartily on the living room floor.

Monday we all awoke to find that school had not been canceled in Warroad, upon fully digesting that information, we ate some cereal. We kicked the hackey-sack for a long while, until we decided it was time for lunch. Unfortunately, we had no power. Out came the hackey-sack again. Almost half an hour later, I heard a strange beep from the microwave. Curious, I took a look. The power had returned. We used this fine opportunity to flex our culinary muscles.

We tossed some venison in a pan with a large piece of butter, some 'No Stick' spray, and some red wine. Someone found an onion in the fridge, and in that went. Scott found a jar of dried mushrooms, and in they went. Some garlic, salt, and pepper later, we pulled the pan off the oven and began to feed. It seem tasty enough.

After we had eaten our fill, and we were sitting around, doing a bit of after dinner conversation, my Mom came home. She was a little angry that my friends had skipped school, so Scott, Andon, and Shane dressed hurriedly and said their goodbye's.

That was my entire experience in Warroad.

Snow Daze

The electricity had gone out on Saturday, and the next day, we got our electricity back at about noon. We received many calls wondering if we were okay. Of course we were. Why wouldn't we be? Well, the rest of the town had lost their electricity and hadn't gotten it back yet, but we had ours. The only reason we had ours was because we were on the same power grid as the nursing home.

During the early stages of the relief effort in Thief River Falls, flood victims had an opportunity to find clothing and toiletries to meet their needs at the Evangelical Free Church in Thief River Falls.

Although we had our electricity back, my parents still felt that wee should suffer somehow. They felt it was only fair. As a result of their annoying guilt, they turned the heat down to fifty-five degrees, made sure to keep all the lights off, and said to go to the bathroom and only flush when we had to. That was kind of gross. So I spent most of my time cleaning, staying warm (although we did have heat), and keeping myself occupied playing the piano and singing.

We didn't have any television because the cables were down, so we watched all the old movies we had forgotten about. It was really interesting to see all the movies that we thought we have thrown away, sold, or had been chewed up by the dog. I also spent a lot of time on the phone. Of course, I just wanted to make sure all of my friends were okay, and to check the latest bit of juicy gossip, but the biggest concern was to make sure they were all right.

Another big concern was to make sure that there were enough generators to go around. For most families, heat was a big concern. Many families were worried about food spoiling, or pipes freezing.

For the families that lived on the river, they also had to worry about their basements getting flooded. My family, although we live on the river, didn't have to worry about at because we live high up on a hill. Looking out of our house was like looking at big, white, fluffy hills. Drifts blocked the road, so we couldn't get out, and our driveway now looked like a winter desert.

On the radio, I kept hearing about how it could take until the end of the week to get the power back on. I panicked at the thought of having to stay cooped up in my house for a whole week. Sure I love my house, but I usually am going to and from my house. On Monday afternoon, we heard on the radio that the electric company would get power going in fifteen minutes, but a half hour late, nothing had happened, nor did anything happen for the next few hours. All over town, different schools, churches, and businesses contained more than fifty to a hundred people, keeping them sheltered and warm. As the day progressed, people gave up on thoughts of ever getting their electricity back until the end of the week. At about three o'clock, another announcement was made. This time, the electricity was supposed to be back on by the end of the night in all residential areas in Thief River Falls. No one really thought it would be back on, but within hours, people had electricity and heat. Some were even lucky enough to have television.

Listening to the radio was a big reason I managed to make it through this hazard. Listening was all one could really do. It was the only thing that could bring any hope to this disaster.

The Following stories were written by Fourth grade students of Jean Petterson at Challenger elementary school in Thief River Falls put their thoughts about the Red River flood into poetry as a classroom assignment. Mrs. Petterson provided the Times with the following poems created by her students.

The Mighty Red

There's a mighty river named "The Red."
Each spring it floods, the people dread.
Many were evacuated
It's a river that will now be hated
It hasn't happened in five hundred years.
It caused a lot of pain and tears
But each citizen should hold high their head.
They survived the flood of the mighty Red

—Jenna Dillon

The Red River is getting full.
The people are saying,
"It's too much Please stop."
But it keeps on flowing,
And it keeps going and going,
Crashing into town after town.
There's no sign of the water going down.

—Danielle Martin

Red River speaking:
I really don't like the spring
They fill me up with rain every 500 years.
They say I'm so mean.
They say I don't take mercy.
But I really do
They say I'm really rotten,
But I'm not really.
All my friends say that
They flooded all these towns,
And so I wanted to be
In the group, too

—Kayleigh Jesme

Red River, Red River,
You've damaged a lot
You put us in a terrible thought.
We sandbag and sandbag
To keep you away,
But you still stay
Our thoughts and our tears
Bring us down to our knees.
You mean old river, you,
You had thing

—Lindsie DeFrang

The Red River is very mean
It flooded half the world.
It flooded Breckenridge.
Then the next thing you know,
Your town is flooded also.

—Tracy Dallmann

Red River, Red River,
Look what you have done.
This is your city that is Under water

Red River, Red River,
Look at this city.
The city that you have damaged
And almost destroyed.

—Jared Barmn

Red River, Red River,
Look what you've done!
You've destroyed the homes
Of practically everyone.
You've caused the worst flood
In five hundred years.
You've even brought people
Down to tears.
You've evacuated
A lot of towns,
You've drowned
A lot of sheep and cows.
Red River, Red River,
You are very bad,
To make all those people
So angry and sad.

—Kayla Grahn

You Flow

Red River, Red River,
You flow so fast
You destroy everything in your path
You damage everything in your way
But please listen as I say,
"Give mercy on Grand Forks."

—Alicia Hoff

Oh Red River, you are so mean,
You have hurt many people
You never stop,
You have done no good.
Red River

—Kory Kezar

Red River, Red River
You are very mean
You got inside every school
You're damaging everybody's house.
Everybody's saying, "Mercy!
Won't you stop!"

—Katie Barth

The Red River
Is so dangerous
It is destructive,
And homes are damaged
But never give up,
We will win the fight.

—Matt Lalonde

Red River, Red River,
Flowing so fast,
I hope we've seen the last.
Red River, Red River,
Fierce and cruel,
You have so much fuel
Red River, Red River,
The flood of the years,
You caused too much fears.
Red River, Red River,
Flowing so fast,
I hope we've seen the last.

—Kristi Joppru

Oh Red River was a killer,
Nasty and cruel it's true
Oh Red River you are mighty mean.
You know you are merciless, dangerous,
You are fierce and powerful,
You're the Red River

—Andy Kalsnes

The Red River is dangerous—
Big and fierce
The current is really strong—
Stronger than you can imagine

The Red River is very mean
It flooded half the world
It flooded Breckenridge
Then the next thing you know,
Your house will be flooded also

—Alli Dallmann

The Red River is a nasty river
It is a fearsome river
It floods every town in the state,
It will damage many homes
If you don't watch out
It will get yours
The Red River is a cruel river
This is the worst flood in 500 years

—Kari Wold

The Red River's mean
It is very cruel and nasty.
Red River, can't you see
What you have done
To all those homes?
I wish you would go away.
You're hurting many people.
Please, would you stop?

—Deserue Hopper

The Red River isn't a very nice river
It flooded, and a lot of people lost their house, and everything that was in there was destroyed.
I feel sorry for all the people who lost their stuff.

The Following stories were written by Fourth grade students at Challenger elementary school in Thief River Falls they put their thoughts together about the storm and power outage in the area.

Electricity Gone

By Jeremy Leonard

(Parents: Bill Leonard and Kathe Leonard)

Sunday I woke up. I went downstairs to let my dog outside. I looked at the time and the clock was blank. Then I went in my mom's room to talk to her. She told me all about it.

Later, my brother, Justin got up and he tried to turn on the TV. I told him all about it. Then my brother and I played cards until my mom woke up.

On Monday I went to my dad's house because they had electricity. Then we went home to drop off my dog and on to a friend's house.

When I got home the electricity was on.

The Big Storm

By Kelly Comstock

(Parents: Scott and Sandy Johnson)

We liked it because we got to sleep on the floor. If we had to go to the bathroom we had to take a flashlight with us.

My mom wanted the heat but she didn't care about the TV and lights. I liked it the way it was.

We had five little tanks but we used only two of them. One was in the kitchen and the other one was in the TV room where we were sleeping on the floor. Upstairs the walls were really wet. If you touched them water would fall off of them.

My grandpa had no heat at all. So my mom gave a heater to him to use. We were all happy when the everything came back on!!!

My Terribly Terrible Weekend

By Ali Kalsnes

(Parents: Glenn and Diane Kalsnes)

I had a terrible weekend. We didn't have any electricity so we were very cold. We had to cook on a little grill. The food tasted pretty good, I thought.

We had a generator so we could do some cooking. We got one on Saturday. My dad had to get our neighbor because his basement was flooded. He was in Minneapolis at the time.

At night we had to sleep in one room. I slept in my bed with my mom. My brothers and day slept on the floor. I was going to sleep on the floor with my little brother but I fell asleep in my bed.

My uncle came over and borrowed my dads friends's sunflower heater. When he brought it to his house, he left it alone. When he got back to his house there were sparks flying everywhere. I thought that sounded scary.

My dad was trying to get a water jug everywhere but he could not find any. He decided to go to Pennington Main. He found some.

We got our power back finally. My dad was very happy. I was too!

The next day we baked a cake. We were eating it all day. Last night there was only four pieces left.

The Happiest of the WORST!

Danny Kezar

(Parents: Carl Kezar and Vicki Richards)

When the storm hit, it was just rain, then freezing rain, then snow. It was the happiest, the worst was the next day. It was dark, but not very dark. It was cold and not very warm.

After about 4 or 5 hours we heard on the radio that there were generators for sale. We got ours from ARCTIC CAT.

After about 3 hours with that, it stopped because it needed gas. So my mom's friend put some in and we had electricity, heat, and everything.

For supper we had turkey. We could because the oven even worked. After supper we played super nintendo. Sleep was up next. That was the happiest of the worst.

April Blizzard

By Sarah Rothchild

(Parents: Rev. Daryl and Peggy Rothchild)

It all started on the 4th of April when it rained. On April 6 it turned to snow. The electricity went out. I had to bail water all morning from 2:30 a.m. My dad and my brother were dumping all the water outside on the driveway. Now, it's all icy.

My mom had left to bring my grandma to our house on Saturday. But we were stuck here and she was in North Dakota.

My dad is the Pastor of our church so one of our church members had a generator and let us use it. We had a generator.. FINALLY!!! A few hours after we used the generator, it broke down. Then I had to bail water again. Our church member came and fixed it. Then two days after that we got electricity back and my mom came home.

The Days Without Electricity

By Brittney Mosbeck

(Parents: Peter and Janette Mosbeck)

About two or three days ago we had no electricity. That means we had no water, heat or TV. I could go on forever with stuff we didn't have. We had to sleep in the living room because it was so cold.

My brother's iguana nearly froze to death. We let the St. Bernard in the house and she slept with me on the floor.

We roasted marshmellows over a propane heater. My friend stated with me and we used candles to see.

The bobcats loved to play in all the snow on Sunday!

We didn't have school on Monday or Tuesday. My cousin came over and we played on Monday. That night I slept over at her house. The next day we had a lot fun.

All of a sudden, the electricity came back on. Then we played nintendo and watched a movie. We played pinball too. We even cooked macaroni for her mom and dad.

The next day we had to go back to school and that's where I am now writing this story.

I think it was fun when you know what to do with the day.

The Day the Power Went Out

By Elizabeth Hodny

(Parents: Daniel and Randi Hodny)

April 6th, the power went out. My family and I were bored but we found things to do. There was a little water in our sump pump. We had alot of clothes on and we were warm. The bathroom and the bedrooms were cold because we had the doors shut.

My aunt and uncle and my cousins did not have water so we had to bring some to them.

We slept out in the living room overnight and stayed warm by the kerosene heater. In the morning when I woke up my mom had the radio on and was listening to the news. We still did not have power. He cooked food on a camp stove. When my aunt and cousins came to wash up we had spaghetti to eat for supper. After that my aunt went to get my grandpa so he could stay overnight with us. When my aunt was getting my grandpa the power came back on. That was the day the power went out!

Two weeks after 8,000 gallons of water had damaged the gym and the back of the Service Center at Seventh Day Adventist church in Thief River Falls, volunteers had the facility up and running in time to meet the demand from flood victims from East Grand Forks/Grand Forks. Eventually the center's racks of clothing spilled over into the gym and another storage facility because of the generous response of a sympathetic public. Seventh Day Adventist Church operates the facility which helps individuals in need. It also works closely with the Salvation Army service unit in Thief River Falls.

My Weekend
by Allison Rominski
(Parents: John and Lori Rominski)

On Saturday the lights flickered on and off. The the lights went out at 2:00 a.m. It was very cold. I had on 1 pair of sweatpants, 1 pair of socks and 1 pair of slippers.

We made a tent with 1 aluminum ladder, some string, a lot of blankets with couches on the sides and a mattress in the middle. We also got a chair and put the radio on the chair. We put pillows on the mattress and couch. We slept in the tent for one night.

My parents helped someone because he got stuck. Then my parents put firewood in the house. We made a fire with lots of wood then we took our grill and made hot dogs, corn and chips. We got our blankets and pillows and Amy, Andrew and I slept on the floor. My Mom and Dad slept on the futon. The next day Amy, Andrew, and I played all day.

The Storm
By Kayla Johnson
(Parents: Mark and Marilyn Johnson)

On April 4, 5, 6, and 7 there was a terrible storm. The power had gone out and it was very cold. My dad went to help people and try to get them warm. as my mom, sisters, and I worked at Pennington Main.

We stayed at a friend's house since ours was cold. I had a lot of fun. Three other people and I played games and listened to the radio. There was only one station on. That was K.T.R.F. On Sunday the electricity came on for about an hour. Monday and Tuesday they called off school.

At 9 o'clock Sunday we where driving home from Pennington Main and we saw a fire.

Late Monday we got power. On Wednesday we had school again. Now it's almost back to normal.

Power
By Amaya Ortiz
(Parent Mrs. Francis Ortiz)

I was not really aware of all that happened. The electricity kept going out every couple of seconds but when it really went out and started to get cold we used our gas stove to keep us warm. At night it was not warm because my mom shuts it off when she goes to bed.

Then that's when it started getting really cold but we had to keep it warm for the baby. My sister's friend stayed with us for two days. The first day we all sleep on the couch but the second day we sleep in different rooms. My friend had stayed the night too but she went home the next day.

The storm didn't stop until the next day. Our phone didn't work either because we have a cordless phone in our house. So we had to go over to the neighbors house to use their phone.

No Electricity
By Zach Johnson
(Parents: Pastor Gary and Diane Johnson)

I thought it was cool. Most of us were in our snow pants and jackets, but I wasn't. We did have water. I was up from 1 a.m. till 6 a.m. bailing water. The next day we got a generator.

I got to sleep in. I was in a big warm bed. We were lucky to have a gas powered stove. We had warm spaghetti O's. Did it ever feel good to taste something warm! I got sick during the storm. For a couple of days and it doesn't feel good to be sick during a storm. I was sick before we even had our generator.

My hamster was shivering like a motor was running. I was in a sleeping bag most of the day because our generator quit. Good thing it was only the spark plug, so we got it fixed.

I heard the answering machine talk. I ran and told my dad we had electricity. My dad went out and shut off the generator. We were so happy to have electricity--so was my hamster. He was climbing his metal bar cage.

That night I got to sleep in my own bed.

It's Cool
by Parker Comstock
(Parents: Bud and Jesse Comstock)

When the electricity was out we turned the fireplace on so we would not freeze. Our basement was 28 degrees F. and upstairs was 67 degrees F. I stayed upstairs so I would not freeze.

My brother, my Dad and I went to help my aunt so they would not have to bail water out of the sump pump. We used a generator to pump the water out of the sump pump. Then they could come to our house and not freeze. We left before them, then they came 30 minutes after we left. When they got to our house we started to eat. We ate almost all the food we had.

Cold!!!
By Laura Newton
(Parents: Barry and Paula Newton)

When we were asleep about 1:30, it happened! The electricity went out. I woke up about 8:00 a.m. because I was freezing cold.

My mom was up, and said, "You better put some warm clothes on." I put some warm clothes on, and got some books and read awhile. Then I looked at the temp. It was 60 degrees down to 50 degrees. It went down 12 more degrees to 38. It was very cold.

My dad was at work at the fire hall. We got to spend the night there, so did Ryan, and my sister's boyfriend who helped get the generator. The fire hall had electricity in case of a fire. My dad helped my Grandparents hook up the generator so they had heat.

I felt sad because we had to leave my dog home in the cold, but I gave her food and water. Later that night we went home to let the dog out and to get pillows, sleeping bags, and camping pads to sleep on. We went home on Monday and my dad didn't work so we had to go home. We got a gas grill so we could eat. Then my sisters, and I played cards while Ryan helped my dad get the generator.

I slept in the basement on Monday. The temp got higher until it stopped at 70 degrees. I was glad so I could take off some of my layers and be warm.

Tuesday night we got electricity. I was glad and that's my story.

Weekend With No Power
By Christian Hultgren
(Parents: Robert and Nina Hultgren)

It all started when my dad had to go to Duluth. My mom went with. My sister went to her friend's house. I went to my friend, Matt Stuckey's house.

That night we went to Adam Barth's house. There we had a great time. We went back to Matt's house. We all went to bed.

The next day was Sunday. Matt and I woke up and we were not going to church. I was puzzled. I found out the electricity had gone out. We all put on many layers of clothes. For breakfast we had one bowl of cereal. After a little Matt's parents brought in the grill.

When all the ice was off, it was almost time for lunch. For lunch, we had sausage, stuffing and corn. After lunch we all got in bed and listened to three tapes, then we got up. Matt, his brother, and I went downstairs to play basketball.

We had supper and listened to two more tapes. Then we went to sleep. The next morning Matt's Dad, Kevin, went on his snowmobile to check around. Everyone was all right except two people. They said they needed out because one of them just had open heart surgery.

We went to my house and had breakfast, lunch, and dinner. The Stuckey's went home. I went to sleep at about twelve. I woke up the next morning and power was back.

Power Out In T.R.F.
Andrew Greenwaldt
(Parents: Kevin Greenwaldt and Lori Baker)

I was not aware of the power going out. So we went to the school. I saw Josh. We played basketball. Soon that got boring.

We went to his friend's house on Sunday. I had the flu. That's why I was gone. My brother got the flu. Ross got sick. We left the next morning.

Then we went to our grandma's house. She has a wood stove. We stayed only one night. We went home. We cleaned our room-- it looked like a disaster. Chris, Travis, and I walked to Erls to get some stuff.

We had a total blast on our weekend.

Thief River Falls Avenue of Flags at Greenwood Cemetery in Thief River Falls, was dedicated Monday during Memorial Day services in Thief River Falls. Ten flags were raised and then lowered to half mast in honor of servicemen who have lost their lives for this country. The Avenue of Flags is a joint venture of the American Legion Post 117 and Veterans of Foreign Wards Post 2893. The 10 memorial flags are the first phase of the project.

Solid waste problem gets attention of government

One deadline has slipped by, and a second is approaching quickly for SwisPennCo in Thief River Falls. Monday, May 19, Pennington County, and Thief River Falls officials met with representatives of the Minnesota Pollution Control Agency (MPCA) and Office of Environmental Assistance (OEA), to discuss options.

On May 14, Pennington county officials met with SwisPennCo officials and neighbors of the solid waste handling facility to discuss the garbage handling problem which has led to the spread of garbage over a wide radius of the plant. Part of the discussion involved three options presented to the board by Howard Person, the county's solid waste officer. Basically, those options involved letting the plant continue to operate after cleaning up the waste piles, the county leasing the facility, and a third option was to abandon the relationship with Swis and operate its facility as a transfer station and haul it all to Grand Forks.

Jim Ziegler, regional supervisor for MPCA, said it was not their business to decide what option the county chooses. "It's not our role," he said. Ziegler did provide two major issues as information the county should know before making a decision.

Ziegler said they were very concerned about the pile of "fluff" at the north end of the processing building. Because of the fire last winter and new equipment, a mountain of it was created.

Their second concern is the compost piles, which were supposed to have been kept in windrows and turned regularly. Due to a number of factors, Swis was unable to keep up with those requirements.

Ziegler said MPCA officials met with Swis in February and they decided to write a compliance letter which set forth two dates for the company to become in compliance with rules and regulations. The first deadline, May 12, for compost was not met. Swis, he said, has asked for an extension on the second date of June 12 for getting rid of the "fluff" pile.

Ziegler said they have granted the extension, but on a number of conditions, two of which include providing written documentation that they have a market for the matter (the fluff pile); and that the contract or agreement with whoever is taking the fluff already be executed or being hauled.

The agreement also has or will have a penalty clause for non-com-

Chamber to recognize businesses

Purdy's Shoe Store, Universal Screenprint to be honored Tuesday, June 3rd

Cliff and Shirley Swanson have owned and operated Purdy's Shoe Store in Thief River Falls since 1984. The 50-year-old business has been selected as Small Business of the Year for 1997 by the Thief River Falls Chamber of Commerce and will be recognized at a breakfast June 3.

Doug Dallmann and his wife Pam, a consumer loan officer at Northern State Bank, created Universal Screenprint when they purchased the screenprinting business from Tom Goddard in 1991. The company now has a staff of 15 people, is located in a 10,000 square-feet building and includes among its accounts Arctic Cat, Marvin Windows, Christian Bros., Eli Lilly, San Jose Sharks, United States Hockey League and Grand Forks Varmints baseball team.

Purdy's Shoe Store and Universal Screenprint will be recognized as Small Business of the Year and Entrepreneur of the Year, respectively, at a breakfast sponsored by the Thief River Falls Chamber of Commerce Tuesday, June 3, at the American Legion club rooms.

Reservations for the breakfast at $6 each may be made with the Chamber of Commerce office by calling 681-3720 prior to May 29. The event is held in observance of Small Business Week 1997 when attention is called to the role small business plays in the nation's economy.

While the two businesses mentioned have been singled out for special honors, the breakfast is intended to honor all businesses, according to Bob Bergan, executive director of the Chamber of Commerce. Guest speaker will be Ruth Edevold, executive director of The Northwest Minnesota Foundation, formerly the Northwest Minnesota Initiative Fund, headquartered in Bemidji.

Purdy's Shoe Store
Cliff and Shirley Swanson

More than half a century ago Al Purdy opened his shoe store in Thief River Falls. The business later was operated by Al's son Bob and in 1984 was purchased by Cliff and Shirley Swanson.

Cliff is a native of the Thief River Falls community—one of 10 children of Mr. and Mrs. George Swanson—and has several brothers and sisters living in this area. Shirley is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Verner Arveson and a graduate of Goodridge high school. Cliff and Shirley were married in October of 1959.

For a number of years Cliff worked for the JC Penney company and from 1969 to 1983 was employed by Sears. Shirley was an employee at Purdy's Shoes in 1960 and also worked at Elaine's, a women's clothing store. For 15 years she worked in the business office at Northwest Medical Center.

While Purdy's had specialized in women's shoe fashions, Cliff and Shirley quickly expanded the inventory to a full line of footwear featuring athletic shoes, work and sport boots and shoes, and casual and dress shoes for the entire family.

C of C business awards

A major change took place in November of 1996 when the store changed its location from Third Street across from Norwest Bank to its present location on LaBree Avenue next to Bjorkman's. The move tripled the store's available space, providing use of two full floors and permitting the addition of athletic brand clothing, including Nike and Adidas. The store has a large selection of styles, sizes and brands.

The Swansons' son Trevor joined them in the business two years ago and his wife is also a part-time employee. Trevor created a map of the United States and used pins to indicate the places where people ordering shoes from Purdy's live. The map had pins scattered from coast to coast and border to border.

Although the Swansons are justifiably proud of the growth of their business, they are quick to point out that "we have grown because of our wonderful customers and our knowledgeable, courteous and helpful employees."

The employees include Joyce Olson, Janice Eckstein, Monica Swanson, Marie Engen, Stefanie Swanson, Eric Elder and Charlotte Strickler.

"Without customers there is no business," Cliff said. "We have many loyal customers from the immediate area and from throughout the United States and even foreign countries, and we appreciate every one of them. It's always fun when a customer comes back and tells us how satisfied he or she has been with one of our products."

Like all retailers who deal with a variety of customers, Cliff and Shirley have had many experiences worth remembering. Cliff recalls the lady who came to the store using a walker and accompanied by her daughters. They were looking for shoes for 'mom.' Cliff selected a pair of shoes he knew to be comfortable and the mother tried them on. She set the walker aside and walked around the store.'

The daughters were delighted, but knowing their mother was frugal in her spending, told Cliff to price the shoes at $25 and they would pay the difference.

"I like these shoes," the mother said, 'How much are they?

"Twenty-five dollars,' Cliff dutifully replied.

'Is this the only color you have?' she asked.

Cliff showed her the four colors he had in stock in her size.

'I'll take these....and these. . and these,' she decided.

The daughters, who had done a better selling job than they had expected, paid the difference on three pairs instead of one.

Purdy's Shoe Store makes a serious effort to provide selection for all ages and for all major types of footwear. What it may not have in stock it is willing to order to meet the customer's needs. As always, customer satisfaction is the ultimate goal.

Universal Screenprint

Universal Screenprint is the creation of Doug and Pam Dallmann, a name selected when they purchased the screenprinting business from Tom Goddard in 1991. It is living up to its name as its service area is expanding well outside the northwestern Minnesota area.

Roots of the business go back to 1978, however, when the Dallmann family started Dallmann Athletic in the Falls Hotel building across from the post office. That building was razed last year to make additional parking for Northwest Medical Center.

In 1982 Tom Goddard purchased the business and renamed it TG Sporting Goods. Doug worked for Tom as the business was located in several buildings, most recently next to Paint & Glass Supply on Horace Avenue. Since Doug and Pam bought the screenprinting business, technology in that field has grown immensely.

"It wasn't that long ago,' Doug recalls,' that I would cut out letters with a knife, one at a time, by hand. The printing process was slow and the finished product, although good for its time, lacked the creativity and color that are possible now.'

Last year Universal Screenprint purchased the former Putzy's Cafe building and two acres of land on the east side of highway 59 north. The move expanded the available office and production area to 10,000 square feet and positioned the company to further automate its equipment and compete for larger and more remote business.

'In 1991 we had a total staff of five people and virtually all of our business came locally and from surrounding schools and communities,' Doug said. 'We still derive a major part of our business from the northern Minnesota area, but have been successful in competing for some other interesting and promising accounts.'

Among these is a four-year contract with the U.S. Hockey League to embroider or print the official clothing line for the league's 12 teams. Another contract is for similar work for the San Jose Sharks NHL team and a third for the Grand Forks Varmints professional baseball team. Universal Screenprint work appeared in the Mighty Ducks movies and most recently on network television when the mayors of Grand Forks and East Grand Forks presented a T-shirt to Newt Gingrich in Washington, DC.

The shirt mentioned above is printed in five colors and features artwork of flood and fire scenes along with the words 'I Survived the 1997 Flood, 54.1 Crest, Grand Forks, ND/East Grand Forks, MN.' For the presentation to Congressman Gingrich, however, the 'I Survived' was replaced with 'I Helped Rebuild.'

Universal Screenprint has increased to a staff of 15 people since 1991, including five people on the road in sales. Two people are involved only in doing artwork, creating the designs to be printed or embroidered on items. Three people are in charge of the embroidery equipment which operates from 5 a.m. to 8 p.m.

"The variety and opportunity for creativity is endless," Dallmann said. 'For instance, we have 32,000 color variations in inks we can use. We can print fluorescent colors and even offer scented inks...so the strawberry in your logo smells like a strawberry. We operate a color printer off our computer so we can see how color schemes will look before we go to production.'

The goal now is for increased automation in several areas to offer more and better service in several areas. Within the next few months Doug plans to install an automated screen printer which will increase production potential from 150 shirts per hour to 800 to 900 shirts per hour.

Plans are also to expand the company's trophy and engraving line with automated engraving equipment. This will increase the number of type fonts available, provide automated centering and positioning and even allow engraving on glass and other surfaces.

'Everyone wants some means of identification,' Dallmann said about the growth of the imprinting and embroidery business. 'And it isn't only on shirts, jackets and caps. We have done work on notebook binders, money boxes, wallets, chair backs....you name it, we've probably printed on it.'

Schools, athletic teams and other groups and organizations have used the sale of printed items for highly successful fund-raisers and unity builders.

"We have been fortunate in having a really great staff of people working with us," Dallmann said. "A lot of the credit for our ability to adapt and grow is due to the quality of the people who work here and on the road."

Universal Screenprint is operated as a sole proprietorship by Doug and his wife Pam, a consumer loan officer at Northern State Bank.

Arctic Cat introduces 1998 All-terrain vehicle line to reporters

by Kathi Carlson
Times Reporter

Never in my wildest dreams did I imagine that my first opportunity as a reporter would leave me tired, dirty, stiff and aching for more of the fun that caused it.

But, that's how I felt after joining writers from across the country who gathered as Arctic Cat introduced its 1998 All-terrain vehicle (ATV) product line on Wednesday, May 21.

The day began early with a hearty breakfast and introductions. Then, it was off to the plant for a tech briefing presented by Paul James of Arctic Cat's promotional department. I learned that Arctic Cat was in its third year of ATV production in a stable and growing market.

Unlike other recreational vehicles, ATV sales are not weather affected. The average customer is a male between 36 and 44 years of age from a rural area who owns a pickup or four wheel drive vehicle. Forty-one percent of ATVs are sold for recreational purposes, followed by hunting and fishing at 23 percent and farm and ranch use at 12 percent. The rest are purchased for hauling and towing, transportation and commercial purposes.

Following more technical information about the ATVs themselves, the new Arctic Cat 300 4 X 4 was unveiled to oohs and aahs and camera flashes. When the pictures were taken and questions answered, the shiny new red ATV was rolled out the door and into the back of a pickup for what was to be an adventurous, fun-filled day.

From Thief River Falls, we caravaned to the Skime area. I rode with Advertising Assistant Heather Hauschild, the only other female on the trip. When we reached our destination, an entire fleet of ATVs awaited us. Surprisingly, they weren't all Arctic Cats but a mix of brands and models that would enable the reporters to make comparisons. Obviously, Arctic Cat felt confident with regard to the capabilities and quality of its product.

As with their snowmobiles, Arctic Cat offers a full line of ATV Gear clothing and accessories. I was outfitted in a Gore-Tex suit, boots, gloves, helmet and goggles.

All dressed in ATV gear, I looked like my fellow reporters, but there were several details that set me apart from the rest. The writers were male, most younger and wrote for publications like Minnesota Off Road, Sports Afield, and Farm Industry News, and they all had considerable ATV experience. The 40-something female from the hometown newspaper had never been on an ATV in her life!

Arctic Cat's Paul Bannister set up a course and proceeded to teach me how to ride an ATV. After learning how to start it, shift it and stop it, I made my way around the training course many times. I was raised on a farm and operated farm equipment and spent a lot of time riding a motorcycle so the procedure wasn't completely foreign. I caught on fast, according to patient Paul! Confident I knew what I was doing, we hit the trail. The others were long gone by then, so for the remainder of the morning it was just the two of us. I really appreciated the one on one attention.

The weather was beautiful as was the heavily wooded area, and much to my relief, the trails were wide. However, I was soon to find out that all terrain meant ALL terrain. Riding an Arctic Cat 454 4X4, I was amazed at what it would go over and through. We went over rocks and logs and through thick mud and deep water. If I did get hung up, getting out was easy. I could either jiggle it out, back it out or Paul would give me a little push or pull. We rode and rode, and by the time we went to join the others for lunch, I was an ATV enthusiast.

Arctic Cat had set up canopies and had hamburgers and bratwurst cooking on grills and a complete picnic lunch waiting for us at the Church in the Pines, a very old church that seemed like it was in the middle of nowhere. It had been restored and was all that was left of a once much more populated logging area. Reaching it first, there was time to explore some. It was a lovely historical site that would warrant another visit.

It wasn't long, however, and the rest of the group joined us. By the looks of them, they had found more mud than we had, and it was obvious, they'd reveled in every minute of it. We all enjoyed the lunch that had been prepared for us. There's something about fresh air that leaves one ravenous.

With everyone wanting to ride the new 300 4X4 model, I took it for a spin during the lunch break. It was very comfortable and easy to handle. I found the steering to be easier and more like a motorcycle. If there's an ATV request in my letter to Santa this year, it will be one that size.

With Paul and I confident that I was ready, we joined the group for the remainder of the day. As long as I could see their dust, I could keep up! We rode trails where the holes were wider, the logs and stumps bigger and the mud and water deeper. I somehow fell off the trail once and ended up in a ditch full of water. Thankful for the waterproof clothing and boots, I put the ATV in reverse and with a little pull from one of the guys was out in a flash. Later, I got stuck in a very big mud hole and required assistance. If he hadn't been laughing so hard, I might have felt guilty about absolutely spraying the young man who pushed me out.

Our trail brought us to a river and a very large mud pit. It was there I drew the line, parking my ATV and removing my helmet content to watch the others. Never have I seen adults have so much fun in mud! It wasn't long, and I was convinced to give it a try. I had as much fun in the mud as the others. I was once again amazed at the terrain these machines would go through.

While no one wanted the fun to end, it was getting late, and we still had to go to Roger Skime's farm where we would photograph an ATV in a working capacity.

As it turned out, Heather and I decided to forego the trip to the farm and head back to town.

We peeled off the outerwear, and looking at her face, I could only imagine what mine looked like. Her long, blond hair was full of mud and mine was flat from the helmet. We could have cared less.

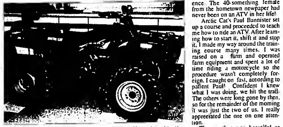
Reaching town a little after 6 p.m., the plan was to go home, shower and dress and meet the others at eight o' clock for dinner.

As I got ready for the evenings activities, I reflected on the day and recalled the warning decals on the ATVs. Arctic Cat warns that no one under the age of 18 use an ATV. They are definitely not for children. They also warn that they not be used in combination with alcohol or drugs. That could be a deadly mix. As with all recreational vehicles, ATVs require common sense in their use.

Cleaned up, the group met for dinner. I learned more about the other reporters and the publications they write for. I had a chance to thank Paul for his patience and the other Arctic Cat personnel for an experience that was new to me.

At home, I slept like a baby. For the next couple days I was a little stiff and sore. Would I do it again? In a heartbeat!

Driving through and occassionally getting stuck in waist-deep mud, journalists had a blast as they test drove ATVs during the 1998 Arctic Cat ATV Press Introduction held Wednesday, May 21. Arctic Cat introduced the new, smaller 300 4X4 and 300 2x4 models. These new models join their big brothers, the Arctic Cat 454 4X4 and 454 2X4, which are now in their third year of production at Arctic Cat's manufacturing facility in Thief River Falls.



The new Arctic Cat 300 4X4 was unveiled and introduced to the media on Wednesday, May 21. Writers from across the United States were given ample photo opportunities in an all day test ride excursion to Hayes Park in the Skime area.

Rolling through water and over large rocks, an ATV amazed Times reporter Kathi Carlson as she shot this photograph on Wednesday, May 21 during Arctic Cat's 1998 ATV Press introduction at Hayes State Park near Skime.

So Sew

I had to sew a button on my dress pants the other day, a major project at my house. When I opened my sewing "box" I realized I'm a very poor example of a homemaker.

When my son saw me open the box he wanted to know what you did with that "cool stuff" (fix stuff) and what was the pointy thing with the small hole (needle, I think). It's been so long since I used it, I was starting to wonder too.

My sewing box is a unique contraption. First, the "box" itself is a rust-colored tin container with a cute design on the lid, about seven inches in diameter and three inches deep (former home of a two-pound fruitcake). It holds all the items I'll ever need for my sewing projects.

Judging from my sewing kit it's easy to see why my professional calling was not that of a seamstress. (The last straw in that career choice was trying to sew a "dart" in a vest during my senior high home economics class.) I bet I could still sew a square pillow cover though, but only if someone changed the bobbin thread for me.

The contents of my sewing box confirm my lack of sewing skills. Nine of the 11 spools of thread came from the original owner of the box. She was at least 80 years old when she willed it to me and I was 15 or so (and I'm sure her grandmother gave her the thread). I'm not sure the thread would actually hold anything together if I used it, but the quantity sure looks good in the box. Makes it look like I really sew.

The box also holds a pin cushion with a dozen or so pins and a couple of needles. The outstanding characteristic of the pin cushion is that it looks like a very messy mouse made a nest in it. The cushion is covered with nine different colors of thread all tangled together. My husband wonders how I tolerate such a disaster, but it doesn't bother me. I don't use it much. If someone wanted to hide something from me, the sewing box would be a good place. I'd never find it.

There's also an unopened package of Velcro tape. That means there must be an unmended pair of something laying around my house. Maybe I sold it at the rummage sale instead of fixing it.

I found a small plastic container of silver things. I couldn't figure out what to do with them until I read the box and it said "hooks and eyes." Hmm, wonder what you're supposed to do with these hummers. I doubt it has anything to do with fishing. They must have come with the original box because I wouldn't buy something like that.

The bottom of the sewing box is littered with an assortment of buttons – including some green ones which must have fallen off of something extremely ugly. There's also a collection of other goodies: snaps, safety pins, drapery hooks, and family reunion name buttons.

Not everything in my sewing box is a hundred years old. After this recent opening (which I could liken to unearthing a time capsule) I discarded an old measuring tape. It was severed in two places so anything I measured had to be under six inches long. (There goes that skirt I was planning to concoct.) I splurged and purchased another tape at a dollar store, this one's plastic so it should last quite awhile, especially with limited use.

There was some good news inside the box. I discovered a package of buttons with two missing. That means I must have actually sewn them on a garment. On second thought, I think my husband sewed buttons on his dress shirt. At least someone gets some use out of that sewing box.

SPEAKING OF

Sherry LaCoursiere

…Always Water, Water Somewhere

If water weren't so necessary, I'd shut mine off where it enters the house and go without it. Water has been a problem all around the area for the past two months, first with the power outage and the sump pumps stopping, then with the flooding, and now my house seems to be trying to flood us out without any river to help it do so. I'm sick and tired of water. I think I have gremlins.

Thank heaven we weren't flooded by the Red River of the North, but we did have water in our basement from the power outage. We got that dried up, eventually, but somehow the cold or something during the power outage opened a crack in the basement wall and it has been leaking behind my washer every time it rains. Thank goodness it runs directly into the floor drain. If it would once dry up, we could fix it, I hope. Right now I'm trying to ignore it.

Two weeks ago my toilet began to leak. Luckily my son-in-law was staying here and he spent the entire evening getting a new flush mechanism and installing it. Does anyone ever make just one trip to the hardware store when they are trying to fix something? I now have an extra flushing mechanism because the first one he bought was too big. Maybe it will fit in the upstairs toilet.

After the flushing mechanism was installed, the valve leaked. We put a bucket under it and planned to replace it the following evening. It stopped leaking so we left it alone.

Last weekend I had a different kind of problem. I was washing a load of laundry and doing other weekend chores, most of which involved water in one form or another, when I noticed the floor under the kitchen sink was wet - quite wet. I went into the TV room (which happens to be near the downstairs bathroom) to tell my son about it and all of a sudden the toilet make a horrible "glug, glug" sound. "What the heck is that?" we both said, and ran for the basement.

When we got there, we found the fancy drain plug that I had the plumber install wasn't doing its job. The ball was supposed to let water down, but keep it from coming back up the hole. It wasn't working. The hole was filling with water, ball or not. Not only was the hole filling with water, but the overflow from the washer was running into my sump pump, which was pumping for all it was worth, and another part of the plumbing which comes from the kitchen was wet.

My son grabbed the wet vac, which we have standing around all the time now like a decoration in the basement rec room, and began to suck the water from the floor drain lest it run over and flood the rec room carpet - again. As soon as the vacuum touched the ball, the water in the hole in the floor squirted up in the air to the ceiling like a fountain, despite the fact that I had shut off the washer as soon as I saw what was happening. Water from the washer was still draining into the sump pump anyway.

I figured I had a major plug somewhere. The only thing, knock on wood, that wasn't pouring water was the sewer pipe. I was suitably grateful for this. After the washer quit draining and the floor drain quit spouting, we crept upstairs, careful not to make any noise or disrupt any of the pipes or gremlins in any way.

We called the plumber immediately and he said it sounded like it might be a city problem, so we should call them first. After making sure our plumber would be home the rest of the day so we could call him if needed, we called the city person and explained that nearly everything that could leak in our house was leaking and that the plumber thought it might be a city problem and the city man said he'd look into it.

About an hour later, a city truck pulled up in front of our house and the sewer repairman came to our door and said he found a big blockage in the sewer two or three of blocks from our house. How did he get it out? Turns out the truck he was driving has a monster roto-rooter in it, and he ran it all the way from the sewer south of our house to the blockage two or three blocks north of the house. Amazing!

Why were we the only ones with the water problem? Evidently our pipes are old and rather deep. I also think that I was probably the only person on the sewer line doing all of that water work that morning, like dishwashing and washing clothes. All of you other people on our sewer line are certainly lucky you weren't using much water that morning.

Turned out that the kitchen sink was leaking all over that day too, maybe from the pressure of the blockage, and needed to be replaced. The rest of our day was spent tearing out the floor under the kitchen sink, replacing the faucet, and then cleaning and returning everything to its tidy (and hopefully dry) cubbyhole under the sink.

I should have known that something would go wrong this weekend too. I decided to spend Memorial Day cleaning the house and when I picked up the bathroom rugs so I could wash the floor, the contour rug by the toilet was wet. The floor behind the toilet was wet. Any mother of sons knows what my first thought was when I saw that the area around the toilet was wet. But the only son who lives with me was in Missouri, so I was the only person who had been using the toilet, and I knew I hadn't done any spraying around.

Yes, this is the same toilet that my son-in-law fixed before, but the leaking wasn't from the valve - it was dripping from the middle of the back of the toilet - in two spots.

As I write this column, the toilet is still dripping. I have two little buckets under the drips but the water is still running around the toilet. I can hear the drips because my computer is in the TV room near the toilet. I hate the sound. If screaming would help, I would do it. I think I'll call the plumber tomorrow morning.

What I really need in my house is a plumber-in-residence.

ACTIVITIES
Silly Socks

Fill old mismatched socks one quarter full each with assorted items, such as dry rice, dry beans, aquarium gravel, bottle caps, coins, etc. Tie the top of each sock securely closed. As the children explore the silly socks, encourage them to talk about how the objects feel through the sock. Keep a close eye on the socks to be sure they do not come untied or that a hole does not form. Variation: Fill socks with an assortment of fragrant items, such as cedar blocks, potpourri, scented votive candles, cotton balls scented with cologne, flavoring extract or air freshener. Let your children take turns smelling the socks. What smells can they recognize? Which scents do they like best?

PARENTING TIPS
Sun Safety Tips

Children have tender, sensitive skin that needs protection from the sun's rays. Consider the following suggestions when your child plays outside.

•The sun's rays are most powerful and risk of sunburn is greatest between 11 a.m. and 3 p.m. central daylight savings time.

•Limit sun exposure time to 20 minutes at a time in the early weeks of spring and summer. Once the skin has developed some tan, you can increase exposure time gradually.

•Use a hat or bonnet for Baby's head, or an umbrella for shade.

•Remember, water reflects and scatters the sun's rays, so there is more chance of sunburn when in or near the water.

•Offer liquids often, every 30 to 60 minutes in hot weather. Remember that water is best. Try juice and ice cubes made from juice for a treat. Crushed ice and several tablespoons of juice concentrate whipped in a blender becomes a cool, fruity slush to sip.

SOMETHING TO TALK ABOUT

Talk with your child about the hot sun and the cool shade. Show your child what and where the shade is. Encourage your child to get out of the sun periodically. However, your young child is still not capable of doing this on his/her own. It is your responsibility as a parent to protect your child from the sun.

The Many Names of Arctic Cat II

When we moved to Thief River Falls in 1960, winter was the season that we stayed indoors, sort of waiting for spring to come. But with the advent of snowmobiles a few years later, winter became the most fun of the four seasons when our family "got out there" in the snow, keeping warm in Arctic Cat clothing and enjoying a new access to a world of snowy beauty, snowmobiling up and down the frozen Red Lake River.

It was with great interest then, that I talked with Edgar Hetteen, the founder of our city's largest industry, about the beginnings of snowmobiling and about how he named the Arctic Cat.

Hetteen called the first few gas-powered sleds that his Roseau company built in the late 1950s "cats." The word "cats" was shortened from the machine name, "caterpillars" that referred to caterpillars' endless track-laying device. For a time he and the workers at Hetteen Hoist and Derrick Co. at Roseau called them "Polaris Cats," then shortened that to "Polecats." But they dropped that because sometimes that means "skunks." Next they called the machines "Polaris Sno-Travelers."

So the name "cats" was used at the Roseau shop for a few years before Rudy Billberg first wrote "cats" to describe the Polaris Sno-Travelers in his 1960 journal of the snowmobile trip Billberg, his wife Bessie, Hetteen, and Erling Falk took across Alaska. When the four tested and showed off the snow cats on the 1,100 mile trip across Alaska, school children were fascinated with the machines and called them "iron dogs." The Alaska trip was one way for the fledgling company in Roseau to get the word out that snowmobiling was fun.

People could see that the snowmobile was a good thing to get a person to work or of use on the job in winter in rural areas, and they were the ones who bought them. Hetteen says that people who did ride the machines for work became "snowmobile missionaries" because they would persuade others to try it.

But it was hard for people to envision the snowmobile as a recreational vehicle. Hetteen knew that riding the snow machines was a lot of fun, and after he had invented, constructed, and tested the little machines he had to figure out how to get people to try them.

He split away from his and his brother Allan's company, Polaris, and Hetteen moved his fledgling company, Polar Manufacturing Company, to Thief River Falls in 1960 and brought out his first Polar 500 snowmobile. It had side-by-side seating, optional cab, and electric start for its 6-8-12 horsepower engine. "The new Polar 500 will solve all your winter transportation problems. Swamps, Marsh, Bog Country are Superhighways for the new POLAR 500," its advertising promised. Other models were named "series 450, and series 250."

In 1962 when he renamed his Thief River Falls business "Arctic Cat Enterprises," Hetteen was manufacturing, buying, selling, and distributing--a whole range of business enterprises. He used "Enterprises" in the name to show that indeed, this company had a wide latitude to its business. In the early 1960s, his company made portable electric steam cleaners, as well as a bug killing machine called the "Bug-o-vac", and snowmobiles. The name Arctic helped identify his business as being in the North. He also called his snowmobiles, which had tandem seats, "Arctic Cats."

The name "Arctic Enterprises, Inc." replaced "Math Barzen Co." on the marquee of the factory at 230 South Labree. Later, when Arctic built its new factory on Highway 32 South, they donated the old Barzen building and its additions to School District 564, and in 1997 that first Arctic Cat plant is the School District Service Center. When Hetteen had come in 1960, L. B. Hartz had rented the 30 x 70 foot building, once an important mill, to Hetteen.

Hetteen also told me that cat names used in the early years included The Ice Kitten, a forerunner of today's All Terrain Vehicle (ATV). The Ice Kitten had rubber tires and originally was intended to run on ice. In 1965 Arctic Cat produced the Arctic Cub, a two wheel, two-wheel drive utility scooter that could navigate challenging terrain at 28 mph. The newspaper Arctic Cat Enterprises published was called "Arctic Howl."

On September 1, 1965, Hetteen announced the sale of Arctic Enterprises to Lowell Swenson who became president. Swenson, an accountant for Dow Key, a local maker of electrical relays, had helped Hetteen with an audit of the company and had been one of the Thief River Falls group of businessmen that had asked Hetteen to move to their city.

Arctic Cat grew exponentially. In 1966 with the advent of the Panther, all black with its powerful, pint-sized two cycle engine and jazzy name, sales hit $2.4 million, up from $1 million in 1965. By 1970 sales were $46 million.

From 1966 on, cats names proliferated. Copywriters thought up clever ads like, "Out Here the Cat is Man's Best Friend." "This is the Year of the Cat." A sleigh designed to be pulled behind an Arctic Cat was called a "Cat Cutter." "Tales of the Cat" was the name of the publication for dealers.

Suddenly Arctic Cat was beset by problems and in 1981 the last model was produced. But business went on in many ways, such as sales of parts.

When Arctic Cat Enterprises underwent Chapter 11 in 1983, and assets were sold, optomistic former Arctic Cat people bought the rights to the name of Arctic Cat as well as production equipment. Eight lives were left: The Cat returned in 1983 with the company name Arctco, Inc. Under the leadership of people like Bill Ness, President, and Ole Tweet Vice President, the new Thief River Falls snowmobile manufacturer is again the largest employer in town. The ads that proclaimed "The Cat is Back," to be proved correct.

Snowmobile history was made all over, again. Net sales for the nine months of fiscal 1996-1997 were $444 million dollars. Today the company is named "Arctic Cat, Inc." and you can find "ACAT" listed on the stock exchange.

Gully Community News

Sanna Brovold

Many from here attended the Jeanne Ongstad and Harold Ongstad Estate Auction on Saturday. When the family moved here from California 31 years ago I remember we were happy and excited to have new people in our area and soon they became involved in community affairs. Death stole part of the family and Jeannie was left alone and our deep snow and cold became a problem for her. Now Jeannie and her daughters Judy Jan and Sherron have spent a couple of weeks here to prepare for the auction of household goods the Ongstad house and farm and Judy Bolducs farm, they will bring their mother back to California with them. They hope Jeannie will have the best of three "worlds" winters in Northern California where she will still be able to enjoy snow. Spring will find her in Luther Buerbanks back yard and late summer in San Diego. Jeannie has lived in the Gully area longer than in any of the other part of the country. Now she plans to travel a bit and enjoy life. Quite different from the hard work after their move here 31-years ago with the work of fencing and getting the farm ready for beef cattle. She wants us to know that all of her Minnesota friends will be deeply missed and she will take with her many, many happy memories. Thank you Jeannie and family for the time you spent here as our neighbor. We'll miss you too! Our loss will be California's gain.

We were invited by Erick Mallea to attend his Oklee high school graduation on Sunday afternoon. It was good to see 35 young folks getting thee high school diplomas. Congratulations! For Erick it was right back to Bemidji for his finals in his subjects at the college there. Later we stopped at the Harry and Nora Hanson home to sing Happy Birthday to Nora and a good visit. Others there were Orville and Gertrude Christianson, Lorraine Watne, JoAnn Olson, Luella and Clifford Arveson, Evelyn Hanson of Clearbrook, Howard and Linda and Luane Hanson, Dean Hanson of Mentor, Wendy and Jeff Fisne, Arial and Austin of Thief River Falls. We all enjoyed a big lunch including birthday cake.

pliance. "Putting them up front," he said, "is beneficial to all parties."

In response to a number of questions, Ziegler explained that he's not sure how much fluff is in the pile, but it is an "awful lot" and the penalty would reflect that.

Ziegler also explained that the permit for the facility expires November 9. Swis has already begun the process, but without substantial compliance with its rules and regulations he doubts a permit would be forthcoming.

Ziegler said he would prefer to see Swis continue to operate. As far as the compost problem, Swis is in violation, but it isn't as big a violation as the fluff pile and they know the company has done all it can to remedy the situation. That doesn't justify it, but it is a mitigating factor in the determination of a penalty.

Nolan Baratono, local government assistance regional planner for OEA, said OEA has a few concerns as well. OEA has a waste handling hierarchy, which has been legislated. OEA's job is to help counties move up that hierarch, not down. They also distribute SCORE funds (tax dollars on solid waste) based upon approved plans. Those funds are used primarily for recycling. Without approved plans, there are no funds. Baratono said from OEA's perspective they want to see the facility continue to operate. They would not like to see waste go out of state.

Person had said earlier that the options he presented were not the only options. At the meeting Monday, at least two other options were presented. Dale Wennberg, city council representative, asked whether it could be burned if it was used to produce electricity.

Ziegler said it was certainly permissible, but they would have to get a permit.

Milt Burstad, city council representative, asked about landfilling and building a new landfill.

Baratono said that from his experience the initial cost of building a landfill would be about $4 million. In addition, to make it work or be economically feasible, it would have to have high volumes — volumes exceeding 16,000 tons at a cost of $123 per ton.

(Currently the tipping fee at Grand Forks costs just over $19 per ton, and $45 per ton at Mar-Kit. There are numerous factors and other costs in hauling to landfills.)

Bob Kruse, Swis Corp. chief executive officer, said they had verbal commitments from two plants as a market and were working on the final arrangements. He said he deeply regrets what has happened, and that if property owners affected by the blowing garbage have not been contacted that they should contact SwisPennCo.

Wennberg said everyone has garbage and he hopes the neighbors to Swis would allow Swis time to clean up the situation.

Bob Carlson, county commissioner, echoed those sentiments, but added that it bugged him that taxpayer dollars could be used to set up a private business (Wellness Center) and other businesses, but not for Swis. Think of it as a small investment to make it work, he suggested. "We do have a problem and I hope we can all work together to solve it."

Property owners near SwisPennCo, of which there were several at the meeting, raised a number of other issues.

Tom Greelis asked whether anybody had looked into funding through the disaster declaration.

Ziegler said no, and was not aware of any program that would fit this situation. It is a private company as well.

Geno Kalinowski asked whether it was feasible to recycle without the pellet plant and transfer the rest to landfills.

Kruse said it was not economically feasible to take it all to a landfill.

Kalinowski was also concerned about the smell from the facility and wondered whether anything was being done to address it.

Rick Nordhagen of SwisPennCo explained that the smell was caused by the compost not being turned and getting oxygen. He expects it would smell worse now that they are beginning to turn the piles. He said they are adding something to the piles to reduce the smell, but that it's not effective as it has been promoted.

Sami Hoj of the Best Western said they had been through this with Future Fuel and Swis and were promised in both instances that it wouldn't smell. Every few years, he said, they tell us it's a state of the art facility, but the problem is still there. Hoj explained that it's difficult and frustrating to explain it all to 300 guests at the motel when the wind brings the smell in the motel's direction. He said "we're just kidding ourselves. We need a permanent solution. We cannot keep facing this problem."

One person asked why the facility was ever placed on one of the main roads into the community.

Carlson explained that he was on the city council at the time, and it was his understanding that there were two sites originally being considered — one near Arctic[illegible] and the other at its present site. At this time, he said, everyone was worried about jobs and they wanted it close to the city. The facility also wanted city water. Carlson said part of the deal involved adequate screening (berming and trees), and they were promised many things. There were promises, he said, that weren't kept.

Connie Melhkens wanted to know who governs beyond the facility's site and what could be done about the garbage in neighbor's yards.

Ziegler said there were [illegible] laws on the books. He said MPCA has not done anything since its last meeting with Swis. Their major concern at the time, he said, is with the fluff pile. He said they may get involved later if the effort to clean up the mess is not adequate.

Many from here attended the Jeanne Ongstad and Harold Ongsted Estate Auction on Saturday. When the family moved here from California 31 years ago I remember we were happy and excited to have new people in our area and soon they became involved in community affairs. Death stole part of the family and Jeannie was left alone and our deep snow and cold became a problem for her. Now Jeannie and her daughters Judy Jan and Sharron have spent a couple of weeks here to prepare for the auction of household goods the Ongstad house and farm and Judy Bolducs farm, they will bring their mother back to California with them. They hope Jeannie will have the best of three "worlds" winters in Northern California where she will still be able to enjoy snow. Spring will find her in Luther Burbanks back yard and late summer in San Diego. Jeannie has lived in the Gully area longer than in any of the other part of the country. Now she plans to travel a bit and enjoy life. Quite different from the hard work after their move here 31-years ago with the work of fencing and getting the farm ready for beef cattle. She wants us to know that all of her Minnesota friends will be deeply missed and she will take with her many, many happy memories. Thank you Jeannie and family for the time you spent here as our neighbor. We'll miss you too! Our loss will be California's gain.

We were invited by Erick Mallee to attend his Oklee high school graduation on Sunday afternoon. It was good to see 35 young folks getting their high school diplomas. Congratulations! For Erick it was right back to Bemidji for his finals in his subjects at the college there. Later we stopped at the Harry and Nora Hanson home to sing Happy Birthday to Nora and a good visit. Others there were Orville and Gertrude Christianson, Lorraine Watne, JoAnn Olson, Luelle and Clifford Arveson, Evelyn Hanson of Clearbrook, Howard and Linda and Luane Hanson, Dean Hanson of Mentor, Wendy and Jeff Frane, Ariel and Austin of Thief River Falls. We all enjoyed a big lunch including birthday cake.

Criminal sexual conduct, kidnapping in LEC report

Law enforcement officials received numerous complaints during the past week, and investigated several.

Criminal sexual conduct. On May 23 police received a complaint of criminal sexual conduct with a minor. Darrell Shar Sams, 22, Thief River Falls, was arrested and faces charges of criminal sexual conduct in the first degree.

Kidnapping. On April 24, police received a report that an individual had been abducted, assaulted and robbed. The individual was left on the Red Lake Indian Reservation where he was found by reservation authorities. Charges of kidnapping are pending against Patrick Jerome Myhrer, 23, St. Hilaire. Charges of aiding in kidnapping are pending against Daniel Lee Tim, 19, Thief River Falls, a 17-year-old male from Thief River Falls, Edward Louis Vondal, 22, Thief River Falls, and Nacoda Lee Vaughan, 23, Lakevdle.

Escape. On May 19 while Northwest Sentence to Serve participants were working in East Grand Forks, the smell of alcohol was noticed on the breath of one of the participants. He allegedly admitted to drinking three beers from an apartment he was cleaning, but when an East Grand Forks officer arrived to administer a breath test, he ran away. Craig Michael Limesand, Goodridge, was later caught and now faces charges of escape from custody.

On May 24 at 12:25 a.m. police received a report of an accident at Fourth and Horace. Randy Daniel Berger, Badger, was driving a pickup west on Fourth, when a Blazer driven by Robert Brandon Stock, Thief River Falls, entered the intersection from Horace and the vehicles collided. Damages were estimated at $6,000 to the Berger vehicle, and $5,000 to the Stock vehicle. A passenger in the Berger vehicle complained of a sore neck, but did not require hospitalization. Stock was cited for going through a stop sign and consumption under age.

On May 22 at 3:59 p.m. police received a report of an accident at Third and Main. Depending upon the circumstances of a case, charges can be, and sometimes are, changed or dropped by law enforcement officials or attorneys even before the case reaches court. Readers should also realize that under the American system of jurisprudence, individuals charged with crimes are innocent until proven guilty of those crimes in a court of law.

pliance. "Putting them up front," he said, "is beneficial to all parties."

In response to a number of questions, Ziegler explained that he's not sure how much fluff is in the pile, but it is an "awful lot" and the penalty would reflect that.

Ziegler also explained that the permit for the facility expires November 9. Swis has already begun the process, but without substantial compliance with its rules and regulations he doubts a permit would be forthcoming.

Ziegler said he would prefer to see Swis continue to operate. As far as the compost problem, Swis is in violation, but it isn't as big a violation as the fluff pile and they know the company has done all it can to remedy the situation. That doesn't justify it, but it is a mitigating factor in the determination of a penalty.

Nolan Baratono, local government assistance regional planner for OEA, said OEA has a few concerns as well. OEA has a waste handling hierarchy, which has been legislated. OEA's job is to help counties move up that hierarch, not down. They also distribute SCORE funds (tax dollars on solid waste) based upon approved plans. Those funds are used primarily for recycling. Without approved plans, there are no funds. Baratono said from OEA's perspective they want to see the facility continue to operate. They would not like to see waste go out of state.

Person had said earlier that the options he presented were not the only options. At the meeting Monday, at least two other options were presented. Dale Wennberg, city council representative, asked whether it could be burned if it was used to produce electricity.

Ziegler said it was certainly permissible, but they would have to get a permit.

Milt Burstad, city council representative, asked about landfilling and building a new landfill.

Baratono said that from his experience the initial cost of building a landfill would be about $4 million. In addition, to make it work or be economically feasible, it would have to have high volumes — volumes exceeding 16,000 tons at a cost of $123 per ton.

(Currently the tipping fee at Grand Forks costs just over $19 per ton, and $45 per ton at Mar-Kit. There are numerous factors and other costs in hauling to landfills.)

Bob Kruse, Swis Corp. chief executive officer, said they had verbal commitments from two plants as a market and were working on the final arrangements. He said he deeply regrets what has happened, and that if property owners affected by the blowing garbage have not been contacted that they should contact SwisPennCo.

Wennberg said everyone has garbage and he hopes the neighbors to Swis would allow Swis time to clean up the situation.

Bob Carlson, county commissioner, echoed those sentiments, but added that it bugged him that taxpayer dollars could be used to set up a private business (Wellness Center) and other businesses, but not for Swis. Think of it as a small investment to make it work, he suggested. "We do have a problem and I hope we can all work together to solve it."

Property owners near SwisPennCo, of which there were several at the meeting, raised a number of other issues.

Tom Greelis asked whether anybody had looked into funding through the disaster declaration.

Ziegler said no, and was not aware of any program that would fit this situation. It is a private company as well.

Geno Kalinowski asked whether it was feasible to recycle without the pellet plant and transfer the rest to landfills.

Kruse said it was not economically feasible to take it all to a landfill.

Kalinowski was also concerned about the smell from the facility and wondered whether anything was being done to address it.

Rick Nordhagen of SwisPennCo explained that the smell was caused by the compost not being turned and getting oxygen. He expects it would smell worse now that they are beginning to turn the piles. He said they are adding something to the piles to reduce the smell, but that it's not effective as it has been promoted.

Sami Haj of the Best Western said they had been through this with Future Fuel and Swis and were promised in both instances that it wouldn't smell. Every few years, he said, they tell us it's a state of the art facility, but the problem is still there. Haj explained that it's difficult and frustrating to explain it all to 300 guests at the motel when the wind brings the smell in the motel's direction. He said "we're just kidding ourselves. We need a permanent solution. We cannot keep facing this problem."

One person asked why the facility was ever placed on one of the main roads into the community.

Carlson explained that he was on the city council at the time, and it was his understanding that there were two sites originally being considered — one near Arctco and the other at its present site. At the time, he said, everyone was worried about jobs and they wanted it close to the city. The facility also wanted city water. Carlson said part of the deal involved adequate screening (fencing and trees), and they were promised many things. There were promises, he said, that weren't kept.

Connie Mehrkens wanted to know who governs beyond the facility's site and what could be done about the garbage in neighbor's yards.

Ziegler said there were litter laws on the books. He said MPCA has not done anything since its last meeting with Swis. Their major concern at the time, he said, is with the fluff pile. He said they may get involved later if the effort to clean up the mess is not adequate.

Community College. Jodie Torkelson presently serves as the Assistant for Management and Administration for President Bill Clinton in Washington, DC. For two and one-half years she has had direct responsibilities for the White House Military Office, Office of Administration and the White House Operations Office. Some of these services include the President's Air Force One personal aircraft, the President's medical unit, information systems technology and the White House Visitors' Office.

In 1993-94 Torkelson was Associate Director for Administration at the Office of Management and Budget, prior to which she was Administrative Assistant to former Representative Leon Panetta.

After graduating from Northland, where she served as editor of the Northern Light student newspaper and played on the women's softball and volleyball teams, she received a BA degree in 1980 from Moorhead State University. She now lives in the state of Virginia.

Tanya Henke
Student of the Year

Tanya is from Red Lake Falls and for the past two years has excelled in liberal arts courses which included an emphasis on physics, calculus and chemistry. She works well with other students and is very creative and energetic, according to the college commencement program.

In addition to being a member of the student senate and Phi Theta Kappa honor society, Tanya has also been a tutor in the learning center and has participated in Northland's choir and theater productions. She also graduates from Lafayette high school in Red Lake Falls this spring.

Earl Frazer
Employee of the Year

An 18-year employee of the college, Earl began his service in the Area Vocational Technical Institute in October of 1979. He became head maintenance employee in 1995 when the technical and community colleges merged into one institution.

Earl is respected and well liked by students, faculty and staff, the commencement program notes. His calm demeanor and cooperative manner are evident on a day-to-day basis. When Good Samaritan Nursing Home was evacuated from East Grand Forks because of the flood and relocated at Northland, Earl and his staff put in many long days helping residents and staff get settled at the college.

Dan Willoughby
Faculty Member of the Year

A mathematics teacher at the college, Willoughby is "a down to earth, friendly teacher who always takes the time to explain math problems from several different angles until everyone understands," the commencement program notes. According to students, he has patience with them and does not make them feel they are an "inconvenience." He has been employed at NCTC since September of 1994. "Dan is dedicated to his job and deserves our recognition. I applaud him," one student stated.

Graduation committee includes Avis Dyrud, Deb Filer, Paula Hovda, Ruby Jenson, Gene Klinke, Dorinda Sorvig and James Strandlie. Phi Theta Kappa honor society members serving as ushers are Brenda Dahlin, Linda Kasprowicz, Tara Nesland and Brent Waale.

Franklin middle school students who earned over 100 points in an accelerated reading program were treated to lunch at Hardee's or McDonald's restaurants in Thief River Falls and a ride around town in a Royal Limousine. Gary Bucklin is shown admitting this group of eighth grade winners to one of his limousines. The group includes Gabrielle Lee, Amy Rominski, Heidi Young and Tiffany McAnnany. A total of 21 students earned the limo rides and lunch.

22 Franklin students read, earn enough points to ride

Twenty-two students at Franklin middle school earned enough points in the accelerated reading program to win a limousine ride and lunch at a local fast food restaurant, according to Meri Jo Paschke, media specialist at Franklin.

"Once again the accelerated reading program has proved to be a success at Franklin," Paschke said. "Library circulation has tripled since the beginning of the program two years ago."

The accelerated reading program is computer-based, Paschke said. Students read a book from the reading list of more than 725 books, then take a multiple-choice test about content of the book on the computer. Students must earn at least 60 percent in order to pass a test and they may see which questions they missed upon completion of the test. Students are using the tests in place of giving book reports or just for fun.

Since the books on the list are assigned from zero to 36 points according to difficulty and length, students may use their earned points to purchase various prizes. Once a month students were able to have an extra prize drawing worth five points.

Monthly prizes included Arctic Cat hats and videos, baby boom box from Norwest Bank, $50 savings bond from Northern State Bank, mini jukebox/cassette/radio from KTRF, $25 gift certificate from J. C. Penney, $10 gift certificate from Maurices and $50 gift certificate from Budget Electronics.

Other prizes included bowling games, Domino's Pizza, Galaxy Twin theater passes, Lincoln activity passes, limousine rides and paperback books. All prizes were donated to the reading program by local businesses.

Earning over 100 points and qualifying for the limo rides and lunch were the following:

Grade 6—Tera Fugleberg, Katie Hruby, Kara Larson, Kate Levinson, Frannie Mann, Tiffany Sorenson and Erin Sleva;

Grade 7—Bethany Brown, Janae Harlow, Naomi Kenner, Brittany Larson, Becky Rolbchild, Rebekah Solem, KayLynn Steiger, Sara Sundby, Crissy Wegner and Sarah Willis;

Grade 8—Gabrielle Lee, Tiffany McAnnany, Amy Rominski and Heidi Young.

What's REALLY circulating through your home?
pet hair, dirt, pollen, dust, smoke, mites
Dust mites? Pet hair? Dirt? Pollen? Tobacco smoke?
It's possible. If the air ducts in your home have never been cleaned, it's probable.
Pollen, mold, mildew and bacteria can be in the duct work of your home's heating and cooling system. Every time your furnace or air conditioner runs, these pollutants whisk through the vents in your home and spew into the air that your family breathes causing allergies, stale odors, extra dust and even sickness.
The answer? Thorough duct cleaning with Abatement Technologies' patented Hepa Aire® system.

GENERAL NOTICE TO CONTROL OR ERADICATE NOXIOUS WEEDS AND GRASSHOPPERS

Notice is hereby given this 28th day of May, 1997, pursuant to Minnesota Statutes, section 18.83, subd. 7, (1992), that all persons in Pennington County, Minnesota, shall control or eradicate all noxious weeds on land they own, occupy or are required to maintain. Control or eradication may be accomplished by any lawful method but the methods may need to be repeated in order to prevent the spread of viable noxious weed seeds and other propagating parts to other lands. Failure to comply with the general notice may mean that an individual notice will be issued. An individual notice may be appealed within two working days of receipt to the appeal committee in the county where the land is located. Failure to comply with the individual notice will mean that the inspector having jurisdiction may either hire the work done or seek a misdemeanor charge against the person(s) who failed to comply. If the work is hired done by the inspector, the cost can be placed as a tax upon the land and collected as other real estate taxes are collected. You may obtain a list of the plants that are designated noxious and of the members of the appeal committee from your County Agricultural Inspector or Local Weed Inspector. The Local Weed Inspectors are township supervisors, city mayors or their appointed assistants.

Notice is also hereby given pursuant to Minnesota Statutes, section 18.0225, (1990), that all persons owning, occupying, or in charge of the maintenance of land shall control grasshoppers by any lawful method on land located in designated control zones. The methods used may need to be repeated to prevent the movement of grasshoppers to adjacent lands. Failure to comply with the general notice may mean the inspector having jurisdiction will issue an individual notice. Failure to comply with the individual notice may mean that the inspector having jurisdiction will hire the control work done and place the cost as a tax lien upon the land. A similar appeal process applies to violations of the grasshopper law as to the noxious weed law. You may obtain lists of the townships that are designated as control zones and of the appeal committee members from the County Agricultural Inspector or a Local Grasshopper Inspector. Local Grasshopper Inspectors are township supervisors or their appointed assistants.

NCTC graduation Thursday at 7 p.m.

Community College. Jodie Torkelson presently serves as the Assistant for Management and Administration for President Bill Clinton in Washington, DC. For two and one-half years she has had direct responsibilities for the White House Military Office, Office of Administration and the White House Operations Office. Some of these services include the President's Air Force One personal aircraft, the President's medical unit, information systems technology and the White House Visitors' Office.

In 1993-94 Torkelson was Associate Director for Administration at the Office of Management and Budget, prior to which she was Administrative Assistant to former Representative Leon Panetta.

After graduating from Northland, where she served as editor of the Northern Light student newspaper and played on the women's softball and volleyball teams, she received a BA degree in 1980 from Moorhead State University. She now lives in the state of Virginia.

Tanya Henke

Tanya is from Red Lake Falls and for the past two years has excelled in liberal arts courses which included an emphasis on physics, calculus and chemistry. She works well with other students and is very creative and energetic, according to the college commencement program.

In addition to being a member of the student senate and Phi Theta Kappa honor society, Tanya has also been a tutor in the learning center and has participated in Northland's choir and theater productions. She also graduates from Lafayette high school in Red Lake Falls this spring.

Earl Frazer

An 18-year employee of the college, Earl began his service in the Area Vocational Technical Institute in October of 1979. He became head maintenance employee in 1995 when the technical and community colleges merged into one institution.

Earl is respected and well liked by students, faculty and staff, the commencement program notes. His calm demeanor and cooperative manner are evident on a day-to-day basis. When Good Samaritan Nursing Home was evacuated from East Grand Forks because of the flood and relocated at Northland, Earl and his staff put in many long days helping residents and staff get settled at the college.

Dan Willoughby

A mathematics teacher at the college, Willoughby is "a down to earth, friendly teacher who always takes the time to explain math problems from several different angles until everyone understands," the commencement program notes. According to students, he has patience with them and does not make them feel they are an "inconvenience." He has been employed at NCTC since September of 1994. "Dan is dedicated to his job and deserves our recognition. I applaud him," one student stated.

Graduation committee includes Avis Dyrud, Deb Filer, Paula Hovda, Ruby Jenson, Gene Klinke, Dorinda Sorvig and James Strandlie. Phi Theta Kappa honor society members serving as ushers are Brenda Dahlin, Linda Kasprowicz, Tara Nesland and Brent Waale.

Franklin middle school students who earned over 100 points in an accelerated reading program were treated to lunch at Hardee's or McDonald's restaurants in Thief River Falls and a ride around town in a Royal Limousine. Gary Bucklin is shown admitting this group of eighth grade winners to one of his limousines. The group includes Gabrielle Lee, Amy Rominski, Heidi Young and Tiffany McAnnany. A total of 21 students earned the limo rides and lunch.

22 Franklin students read, earn enough points to ride

Twenty-two students at Franklin middle school earned enough points in the accelerated reading program to win a limousine ride and lunch at a local fast food restaurant, according to Meri Jo Paschke, media specialist at Franklin.

"Once again the accelerated reading program has proved to be a success at Franklin," Paschke said. "Library circulation has tripled since the beginning of the program two years ago."

The accelerated reading program is computer-based, Paschke said. Students read a book from the reading list of more than 725 books, then take a multiple-choice test about content of the book on the computer. Students must earn at least 60 percent in order to pass a test and they may see which questions they missed upon completion of the test. Students are using the tests in place of giving book reports or just for fun.

Since the books on the list are assigned from zero to 36 points according to difficulty and length, students may use their earned points to purchase various prizes. Once a month students were able to have an extra prize drawing worth five points.

Monthly prizes included Arctic Cat hats and videos, baby boom box from Norwest Bank, $50 savings bond from Northern State Bank, mini jukebox/cassette/radio from KTRF, $25 gift certificate from J. C. Penney, $10 gift certificate from Maurices and $50 gift certificate from Budget Electronics.

Other prizes included bowling games, Domino's Pizza, Galaxy Twin theater passes, Lincoln activity passes, limousine rides and paperback books. All prizes were donated to the reading program by local businesses.

Earning over 100 points and qualifying for the limo rides and lunch were the following:

Grade 6—Tera Fugleberg, Katie Hruby, Kara Larson, Kate Levinson, Frannie Mann, Tiffany Sorenson and Erin Sieva.

Grade 7—Bethany Brown, Janae Harlow, Naomi Kenner, Brittany Larson, Becky Rothchild, Rebekah Solem, KayLynn Steiger, Sara Sundhy, Crissy Wegner and Sarah Willis:

Grade 8—Gabrielle Lee, Tiffany McAnnany, Amy Raminski and Heidi Young.

Earning trophies for books read and points earned were the following:

Grade 6—First, Kate Levinson, 290.7 points; second, Erin Sieva, 268.1 points; and third, Katie Hruby, 233.3 points;

Grade 7—First, Rebekah Salem, 467.1 points; second, Crissy Wegner, 465.1 points; and third, Sarah Willis, 270.9 points, Grade 8—First, Tiffany McAnnany, 741.7 points; second, Heidi Young, 348.2 points; and third, Gabrielle Lee, 239.7 points.

GENERAL NOTICE TO CONTROL OR ERADICATE NOXIOUS WEEDS AND GRASSHOPPERS

Notice is hereby given this 28th day of May, 1997, pursuant to Minnesota Statutes, section 18.83, subd. 7, (1992), that all persons in Pennington County, Minnesota, shall control or eradicate all noxious weeds on land they own, occupy or are required to maintain. Control or eradication may be accomplished by any lawful method but the methods may need to be repeated in order to prevent the spread of viable noxious weed seeds and other propagating parts to other lands. Failure to comply with the general notice may mean that an individual notice will be issued. An individual notice may be appealed within two working days of receipt to the appeal committee in the county where the land is located. Failure to comply with the individual notice will mean that the inspector having jurisdiction may either hire the work done or seek a misdemeanor charge against the person(s) who failed to comply. If the work is hired done by the inspector, the cost can be placed as a tax upon the land and collected as other real estate taxes are collected. You may obtain a list of the plants that are designated noxious and of the members of the appeal committee from your County Agricultural Inspector or Local Weed Inspector. The Local Weed Inspectors are township supervisors, city mayors or their appointed assistants.

Notice is also hereby given pursuant to Minnesota Statutes, section 18.0225, (1990), that all persons owning, occupying, or in charge of the maintenance of land shall control grasshoppers by any lawful method on land located in designated control zones. The methods used may need to be repeated to prevent the movement of grasshoppers to adjacent lands. Failure to comply with the general notice may mean the inspector having jurisdiction will issue an individual notice. Failure to comply with the individual notice may mean that the inspector having jurisdiction will hire the control work done and place the cost as a tax lien upon the land. A similar appeal process applies to violations of the grasshopper law as to the noxious weed law. You may obtain lists of the townships that are designated as control zones and of the appeal committee members from the County Agricultural Inspector or a Local Grasshopper Inspector. Local Grasshopper Inspectors are township supervisors or their appointed assistants.

NCTC 1-2 in MCCC baseball...

Pioneers unable to match opener

A great start was followed by two lopsided losses for Northland at the 1997 Minnesota Community College Conference state baseball tournament played Friday through Sunday at Willmar.

Northland opened the six-team double-elimination event featuring the top two regular season finishers in each of the three MCCC divisions with a 7-3 Friday night victory over Bethany.

But Saturday was a different story for the Pioneers, who lost a 10-0 decision to North Hennepin in a 1:30 p.m. start, then dropped an 11-0 rematch with Bethany later that afternoon.

"The first game was probably as good a game we've played all year," pointed out Northland coach Terry Wiseth. "A lot of the credit goes to (pitcher) Chris Vanyo and (catcher) Brent Eaton. Chris did a good job keeping the ball low, and Brent was blocking the ones in the dirt. We made some nice plays on defense behind Chris, and our hitting really took off."

North Hennepin had an 8-0 lead after two innings. "We came out a little flat," noted Wiseth. "For whatever reason, we just weren't ready to play. I don't know if it was because we used up so much energy in the first one or what."

Bethany was bent on revenge in the late-afternoon contest Saturday. "They (Royals) were on a mission," mentioned Wiseth, "and at that point, our kids were reeling. We just did not look good."

Northland finished the year 14-17 overall.

"I think we represented the Northern Division pretty well," said Wiseth. "We won a game, and played well doing it. Saturday we did not hit the ball as well as we would have liked, obviously."

Annual Minnesota Fish Consumption Advisory released

Latest edition of Minnesota's annual Fish Consumption Advisory was released recently.

Minnesota Department of Health has been issuing fish consumption advisories since 1975 in an effort to help anglers make informed choices about catching and eating sport fish, and make fishing in Minnesota a more positive experience. The annual advisories contain recommendations for limiting consumption of fish from certain locations, based on the presence of contaminants like mercury or PCBs. However, the purpose is not to discourage fishing, but quite the opposite, according to MDH Commissioner Anne Barry.

The new advisory includes recommendations for 687 lakes – 75 more than last year – as well as 77 different fishing spots on Minnesota rivers. New fishing locations are typically added to the advisory every year as additional lakes and rivers are sampled for possible contaminants in fish.

The recommendations also vary according to who's eating the fish. PCBs and mercury – the contaminants of greatest concern from a public health standpoint – can be especially hazardous for children. For that reason, the most restriction guidelines in the advisory apply to pregnant women, women who may become pregnant, nursing mothers, and young children. The least restrictive guidelines apply to people who only eat fish a few times a year.

To request a copy of the 1997 advisory, call MDH at 612-215-0950 or 1-800-657-3908; PCA at 612-96-6300; or DNR at 612-296-2835.

Jacob Brotan is the Prowlers' lone representative at the 1997 Section 8AA boys high school tennis tournament in Brainerd this week. The Roseau senior who is in Thief River Falls under the state's open enrollment policy, placed second in the North Sub-Section 8AA singles competition. The state tournament qualifying Section 8AA competition included team finals Tuesday, followed by singles and doubles matches today (Wednesday).

NCTC 1-2 in MCCC baseball...

Pioneers unable to match opener

A great start was followed by two lopsided losses for Northland at the 1997 Minnesota Community College Conference state baseball tournament played Friday through Sunday at Willmar.

Northland opened the six-team double-elimination event featuring the top two regular season finishers in each of the three MCCC divisions with a 7-3 Friday night victory over Bethany.

But Saturday was a different story for the Pioneers, who lost a 10-0 decision to North Hennepin in a 1:30 p.m. start, then dropped an 11-0 rematch with Bethany later that afternoon.

"The first game was probably as good a game we've played all year," pointed out Northland coach Terry Wiseth. "A lot of the credit goes to (pitcher) Chris Vanyo and (catcher) Brent Eaton. Chris did a good job keeping the ball low, and Brent was blocking the ones in the dirt. We made some nice plays on defense behind Chris, and our hitting really took off."

North Hennepin had an 8-0 lead after two innings. "We came out a little flat," noted Wiseth. "For whatever reason, we just weren't ready to play. I don't know if it was because we used up so much energy in the first one or what."

Bethany was bent on revenge in the late-afternoon contest Saturday. "They (Royals) were on a mission," mentioned Wiseth, "and at that point, our kids were reeling. We just did not look good."

Northland finished the year 14-17 overall.

"I think we represented the Northern Division pretty well," said Wiseth. "We won a game, and played well doing it. Saturday we did not hit the ball as well as we would have liked, obviously."

Annual Minnesota Fish Consumption Advisory released

Latest edition of Minnesota's annual Fish Consumption Advisory was released recently.

Minnesota Department of Health has been issuing fish consumption advisories since 1975 in an effort to help anglers make informed choices about catching and eating sport fish, and make fishing in Minnesota a more positive experience. The annual advisories contain recommendations for limiting consumption of fish from certain locations, based on the presence of contaminants like mercury or PCBs. However, the purpose is not to discourage fishing, but quite the opposite, according to MDH Commissioner Anne Barry.

The new advisory includes recommendations for 687 lakes – 75 more than last year – as well as 77 different fishing spots on Minnesota rivers. New fishing locations are typically added to the advisory every year as additional lakes and rivers are sampled for possible contaminants in fish.

The recommendations also vary according to who's eating the fish. PCBs and mercury – the contaminants of greatest concern from a public health standpoint – can be especially hazardous for children. For that reason, the most restriction guidelines in the advisory apply to pregnant women, women who may become pregnant, nursing mothers, and young children. The least restrictive guidelines apply to people who only eat fish a few times a year.

To request a copy of the 1997 advisory, call MDH at 612-215-0950 or 1-800-657-3908; PCA at 612-96-6300; or DNR at 612-296-2835.

Jacob Broten is the Prowlers' lone representative at the 1997 Section 8AA boys high school tennis tournament in Brainerd this week. The Roseau senior who is in Thief River Falls under the state's open enrollment policy, placed second in the North Sub-Section 8AA singles competition. The state tournament-qualifying Section 8AA competition included team finals Tuesday, followed by singles and doubles matches today (Wednesday).

Shoreline Changes

Record floods, high lake levels, and the mid-April cold snap of 1997 left many year-round and seasonal residents in northwest Minnesota with ice and flood damage to their lakeshore or riverfront property. As property owners consider repair or improvement projects that might limit shoreline damage in the future, they should also be aware that some projects which alter natural shorelines can actually destroy valuable fish and wildlife habitat.

"Most landowners already know there are state laws, local ordinances and permit requirements for most construction and building projects; and the removal of trees, brush and other land-based vegetation near protected waters," explained Paul Glander, Area Fisheries Manager with the Minnesota Department of Natural Resources at Detroit Lakes. "There are also laws and permit requirements governing shoreline alteration projects on the water's edge, and removal of aquatic vegetation from the water.

"What most people don't realize, however, is that the purpose of these laws is to protect the lakes and shoreland area from the cumulative effects of changes made by individual landowners," said Glander.

"Natural shoreland vegetation is a necessary component of the aquatic ecosystem for fish reproduction, wildlife habitat, maintaining good water quality, and ultimately, maintaining property values," said Glander. "If convenient fishing is important to shoreland owners, there has to be some balance between the natural components necessary to maintain fish populations, and shoreline 'improvements' that don't improve fishing," continued Glander.

With natural vegetation and shallow waters that warm up quickly in the spring, shorelines serve as spawning beds and fish nurseries. Most types of under-water terrain in these areas – including weedy bottom, sandy bottoms, woody debris, and clean gravel – serve as spawning habitat to one or more species of gamefish. Each species has its own preference.

Upon hatching, schools of tiny fry swim in and out among aquatic plants, dodging predators and eating insect larvae and microscopic plants and invertebrates – the baby food of the fish world. Natural shorelines are also home to minnows, which are a major food source for larger game fish as well as shore birds, such as herons and egrets.

Bushes and trees along shorelines keep lakes and stream banks from eroding, and provide shade and shelter to fish and wildlife during the summer months. Shoreline vegetation, including what some may consider weeds, helps to filter out pollutants and sediment that would otherwise flow into the water from the surrounding land. These same areas provide sheltered nesting habitat for many types of songbirds, loons and ducks.

Minnesota Department of Natural Resources works with county and municipal zoning authorities, lake associations and individuals to protect natural shorelines and associated ecosystems. Regulations are in place, and permits are required to ensure that necessary shoreland projects do the least possible harm to lakes and rivers.

State and local regulations may apply to a variety of work carried out in or near protected waters. Projects such as adding beach sand; removing or chemically treating aquatic vegetation; building a retaining wall; removing trees and brush, excavating or filling in shoreland or wetland areas; and the construction of boat ramps, boathouses, decks, stairways, and permanent docks may require a special permit. Whether or not a permit is required may depend on the size or placement of the project, or the total area of water or shoreland involved. A larger project may require a permit, while a scaled-down version of the same project might not.

The DNR has informational brochures available to property owners, and those contemplating the purchase of shoreland property, which describe ecologically friendly landscaping for lakeshores – and outline the types of activities and projects that do, and do not, require a DNR permit. The information also suggests other government agencies to contact before initiating a project.

Property owners in northwest Minnesota can request brochures, and direct any questions they may have on shoreland issues to the DNR area office in Thief River Falls by calling Nate Dalager, DNR Hydrologist at 218-681-0947. You can also reach Glander in Detroit Lakes at 218-847-1579.

Three Deer Hunters Honored

Tom Flynn faced a dilemma when he shot a 10-point buck on a hilltop above his home near Winona. It would be easy to drag the animal downhill and along the street to his house, but the sight of the dead animal could upset some of the neighbors and children who play in the neighborhood. Instead Flynn dragged the deer out of sight several hundred yards up and over rough terrain and thick brush to get home another way.

Flynn's sensitivity was rewarded Feb. 10 when he received the 1996 Ethical Deer Hunter Award at the Minnesota Deer Hunters Association's (MDHA) Annual Habitat Banquet in Little Falls. The Deer Hunter Ethics Award Program is co-sponsored by the DNR and the MDHA.

Also honored at the banquet were Katie Beckmann of Brooklyn Park, who received the 1996 Youth Ethical Deer Hunter Award, and Roxann Lathrop of Remer, who earned the 1996 Future of Deer Hunting Award.

Beckmann, who is 14 years old, received her award for doing the right thing twice when a "deer of a lifetime" passed her stand. Although the big buck was in her crosshairs at 30 yards when it first appeared, Beckmann waited for a clear shot so she wouldn't wound the animal. Suddenly, it bolted and ran away. Thinking that she wouldn't see the big deer again, Beckmann then shot a smaller buck, only to see the huge buck return and present a broadside shot at 20 yards. Unfortunately, Beckmann knew her party had no more open tags, so she let her "deer of a lifetime" walk away again.

Lathrop set an outstanding example as a single parent when she accompanied her son Brad Holvey on his first deer hunt. Although neither of them was an experienced hunter, they saved money, bought equipment and read about the subject until the season arrived. When Holvey bagged a four-point buck, Lathrop was there to read the instruction book and help field dress the animal. "It took longer than it must take most people, but we did it," Lathrop said. "Even if it's not your interest, if it's your child's interest, you should be supportive," she added. "This is like when they get their first tooth or take their first step. You want to be there when they do these things."

"Promoting ethical hunting should be important to every member of the hunting community," said Rod Sando.

Area shoppers flock to Kordel's Thief River Falls location for historic furniture sellout

By JOAN BATSON
MCM Staff

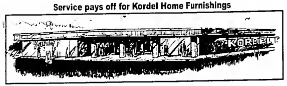
THIEF RIVER FALLS - Even long time observers have expressed surprise at the remarkable events of the last few weeks in Fergus Falls. When Marty Audette, General Manager of the Kordel Home Furnishings complex, announced a wall-to-wall sellout of their entire selection of furniture and mattresses, it was good news for the shoppers in the Thief River Falls area.

Over $500,000 in premium, regular-stock furniture and mattress sets were marked for immediate liquidation. The historic reductions caused a great deal of excitement. In some cases, below wholesale mark-downs were reported. Long-time sales records have been broken, and Mr. Audette declares: "We are not finished yet. If anyone has ever cleaned out an attic or a garage, they will understand what we are trying to do. For the first time in over five decades, we are selling out everything. A great deal has accumulated."

Jim Kath, a key corporate executive for Kordel who is helping direct the Kordel advertising effort in Fergus Falls, is pleased with the results. "We have long believed that if people knew what we offer — and the high integrity of our company — they would respond in record numbers. I'm happy to see so many new folks discovering Kordel Home Furnishings."

I was not so fortunate in getting information about the "new concept" in home furnishings that will be installed after the sale. But in the meantime, shoppers can enjoy some truly remarkable bargains.

Service pays off for Kordel Home Furnishings



When Kordel was founded back in 1940 folks were concerned about whether America would be drawn into the war that was going on in Europe, and Franklin Delano Roosevelt won an unprecedented third term as President. Since that time, Kordel's has won the hearts of Minnesota shoppers with a tradition of integrity, service and value. The Thief River Falls store features a spacious showroom of famous brand furniture, including La-Z-Boy, Bassett, Broyhill, Klausner, Leedo, Welsley Manor, Berkline, Simmons Beautyrest and many others. The store prides itself on its friendly and knowledgeable staff.

THIEF RIVER FALLS - "What is on sale here? You name it." That was the attitude of customers as they browsed through the vast displays at Kordel Home Furnishings.

Folks tested out the comfort of living room sofas, loveseats, chairs and recliners, and operated the 'automatic footstools' on sectional sofas. Many people had never seen so many full room settings and attractive vignettes of famous brand furniture. The spacious Kordel showrooms are also jammed with remarkable values in mattresses, dinettes, dining rooms, lamps, accessories, and about any thing you can name for the home. Shoppers with any interest in furniture at all are urged to see these offerings soon. The store honors major credit cards and has several credit plans to help shoppers take advantage of these historic reductions. Kordel Home Furnishings is located on Highway 59 South in Thief River Falls.

Kordel's historic sale draws crowds of bargain-hunters

▶ Patient shoppers are willing to wait a bit to get bargains of famous brands such as Bassett, La-Z-Boy, Beautyrest by Simmons, Broyhill, and many others. Shoppers seem to enjoy the flexible terms, knowledgeable and friendly staff of sales consultants, and especially the near-wholesale prices on hundreds and hundreds of items.

Competition wilts as Kordel offers "unmatchable" furniture bargains

AUDETTE

THIEF RIVER FALLS - Marty Audette, the store manager who is conducting the huge Kordel Wall-to-Wall Sellout, recently expressed pleasure with the results the historic sale is achieving.

Area competition seems taken by surprise, and unable to equal the Kordel bargains. Audette said: "We have been fortunate to have won the confidence of the people in this area. Kordel Home Furnishings has always offered good, name brand merchandise at fair prices."

The Kordel furniture complex, which is located on Highway 59 South in Thief River Falls, is offering over $500,000 worth of prime, famous brand merchandise at sacrifice-prices to make room for a mysterious "new concept in home furnishings." As happy area shoppers rushed in to get the bargains, Jim Kath, a corporate executive for Kordel, said: "You know, you can always buy ordinary furniture at so called 'sale prices.' But seldom, if ever, in a lifetime can you buy regular stock, first line premium merchandise, from a trusted dealer for a fraction of regular retail. That's what we have. That's the window of opportunity we are offering shoppers."

'Awesome'

Kordel employee since 1989 is impressed by the wall-to-wall sellout

Jolene

"This is a very exciting time for our store," said Jolene, a Kordel employee who has been with the store for 8 years. "It's simply awesome to see so many customers taking advantage of this opportunity. I can't wait to see the 'new' concept."

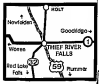
Competitors hope furniture sale will end soon

Carol Hay
MCM Staff

THIEF RIVER FALLS - "What do you do when your competitor is selling out? Especially when that competitor is one of the area's most trusted furniture sources?"

This was the question that must be on the minds of many area furniture dealers. They are facing a very difficult competitive situation as Kordel seems to be "Taking all the furniture business."

Indeed, rarely has there been so much excitement about furniture in this area. "The home is one of the most important things we can make beautiful and comfortable for our families," said Debbie, a salesperson for the Kordel firm since 1994. "Folks in this area see this as an opportunity to embellish their surroundings.



Easy route to sale

THIEF RIVER FALLS - Out-of-Town shoppers are encouraged to take the easy drive to Thief River Falls to get in on the historic "Wall-to-wall sellout" bargains at Kordel Furniture. Weekday store hours are from nine in the morning until six in the evening.

What's happening in THIEF RIVER FALLS?

Kordel's historic sellout continues, as new reductions were recently announced. Desperate measures are being taken to clear the Kordel Furniture Complex "As soon as it is humanly possible." Officials at the store caution that the 'once in a lifetime event' can't last forever. "When it's gone, it's gone," said one.

'New concept' for Kordel requires total sellout

THIEF RIVER FALLS - Jim Kath, the CEO of Kordel Home Furnishings, will tell you that he pondered the idea of a new concept in furniture retailing for many years.

"We decided it would have to fit our existing ideas," Mr. Kath stated today. "We share values here at Kordel Furniture that we would never sacrifice for any marketing concept, no matter how attractive."

Mr. Kath added that it "was not yet time" to disclose the nature of the new idea.

"We are concerned with clearing the decks first. We have a great deal of furniture to sell to do this. And, of course we enjoy making furniture history — while offering our friends and neighbors unheard-of values."

Goodridge DARE students celebrate completion of class

Goodridge sixth graders were honored last week upon completion of the Drug Abuse Resistance Education (DARE) program. The ceremony was held Friday in Goodridge and included reading of essays and conferring of certificates.

Eighteen students in the class completed the course, which is taught by Pennington County Sheriff's Deputy Ray Kuznia and Thief River Falls Police Officer Craig Mattson.

DARE brings drug education into the classroom, through a 17-week course for fifth and sixth graders, and teaches children to develop positive attitudes and behavior. It gives them the self-confidence, sense of self-worth and the will power they need to resist drugs and alcohol.

Goodridge students completing the course included Brady Fiedler, Scott Grabowska, Cole Halvorson, Andrew Hanson, Lacey Hoffman, Timothy Ireland, Christine Johnson, Kjell Juhnsrud, Larae Kangas, Megan Marquis, Jessica Mutnansky, Andy Rindahl, Andrew Ruhischko, Sarah Ruhischko, Nolan Schuler, Bethany Tharaldson, Amanda Weber and Kyle Wikert.

An element of the program included the reading of essays written by some of the students. Of all of the essays that dealt with "Taking a Stand" against drugs, alcohol and violence, three were chosen. Those three were written and read by Cole Halvorson, Andrew Hanson and Jessica Mutnansky.

Each class to participate in the program has role models. For the 1997 Goodridge class the role models were Jenny Johnson and Jessica Vettleson.

$17.5 million in SBA loans okayed

More than $17.5 million in disaster loans have been approved to residents of flood-stricken Minnesota, according to Mike Allen, area director of the U.S. Small Business Administration.

"These disaster loan funds will help homeowners, renters and non-farm business owners with their long-term rebuilding efforts," Allen said. "In the time since the President's major disaster declaration, SBA has issued nearly 10,000 disaster loan applications to residents and business owners affected by the flood. To date, SBA has received 2,589 completed applications and already approved $17,673,300 in disaster loan assistance."

SBA representatives stress the importance of completing and returning the SBA paperwork.

"The deadline for filing disaster loan applications is approaching quickly," Allen said. "Your application package must be returned to a Disaster Recovery Center or postmarked by the June 7, 1997 filing deadline."

Individuals not able to visit a Disaster Recovery Center or SBA workshop may return their disaster loan application by mailing it to SBA Disaster Field Office, P.O. Box 17361, Minneapolis, MN 55417.

SBA representatives remain at Disaster Recovery Centers and SBA workshops to assist individuals with disaster loan applications and answer questions. Flood survivors who need help completing their loan applications may visit any one of several centers or workshops, including those in this area at the Rural America Bank in Ada, senior high school in East Grand Forks, the recovery center at 627 Center Avenue in Moorhead and at First American Bank in Warren.

Cold weather testing shows gains

While Mother Nature finally relinquished her grip from a long and record-breaking winter for many Minnesotans, the Minnesota Cold Weather Resource Center posted one of its best seasons ever for cold-weather testing and research.

"In terms of the numbers of test groups and the size and scale of their program, this was one of the best winters ever for cold-weather testing in Minnesota," said Center Director Paul Nevanen. "As perverse as this sounds, we like these extreme winters — in fact we would have liked to have seen some colder temps."

This season, 45 testing groups from around the world tested in nine Minnesota communities, spent an estimated $6.1 million and employed 423 seasonal employees. That's up from last year's $5.7 million spent by testing groups and just shy of the record $6.2 million spent in 1995.

"This unique industry continues to expand and add to the diversity of the state's economy. I feel the Center has just hit its stride and the potential for continued growth is strong," added Nevanen.

The Center, a non-profit economic development agency created in 1990 to further develop the cold-weather testing industry in Minnesota, uses Minnesota's long and extreme winters as a selling point to attract testing clients.

Most of the clients that come to Minnesota to conduct testing are in the automotive industry — manufacturers and suppliers — and test a full spectrum of components and systems including anti-lock brakes, heaters, suspensions, and vehicle durability. The groups are as varied as the products they test; some programs take several days while others test the entire winter.

Area students earn degrees

Several students from the area were among 172 to receive Bachelor of Arts degrees from Jamestown College at its commencement ceremonies Sunday, May 11.

Graduates include Alison Peterson, Thief River Falls, magna cum laude in accounting/business administration, Ryan Tangen, McIntosh, accounting/business administration, April Scheuler, Mentor, business administration, and Amy Oscarson, Red Lake Falls, magna cum laude in accounting.

Detroit Lakes craft fair is taking entries

Registration applications are now being accepted by the Detroit Lakes Regional Chamber of Commerce for Arts & Crafts in the Park scheduled for Sunday, July 27.

Artists and crafters demonstrating original hand-crafted art and craft work are invited to apply for the event held in the Detroit Lakes City Park, adjacent to Detroit Lake. The Chamber of Commerce has succeeded the Becker County Friends of the Library as sponsor of the 19th annual event.

Exhibitor fee is $25 for those registered by June 1 or $35 after that date. The event will be open from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m.

For a registration form or more information, call the Detroit Lakes Chamber of Commerce at 1-800-542-3992.

ACS sponsors Longest Day of Golf event

Summer finds Minnesota golf enthusiasts in full swing. The growing popularity of the game is making tee times harder to find.

The American Cancer Society, Minnesota Division has always loved golf. On Monday, June 16, a Minnesota tradition called the "Longest Day of Golf" will take place at the Thief River Falls Golf Club.

"Golf foursomes will play as many holes as they can from sunup to sundown," says Julio Rohl, Longest Day chairperson. "The pledges they receive for each hole will support American Cancer Society research, education and patient services programs here in Minnesota."

"We welcome enthusiastic golfers of all ages and abilities to participate," said Rohl.

For more information call Rohl at 681-8556 or 681-3983.

Sanna Brovold

[illegible] Saturday at the Stadium at Fosston. This year as usual the meeting encouraged caring and sharing and because of the losses suffered from flood and fire it was especially fitting to be emphasized. Our Ladies Aid gave the quilt we made earlier to help the flood victims now Lutheran Brotherhood gave us quilting supplies. This will be used to help with more quilting. There are 26 churches in Branch 8734 area who received supplies. [illegible] represented at the meeting. If we decide to do a project to raise money for flood victims, Lutheran Brotherhood will match us up to $450. This matching would be besides our matching fund project in the fall.

Later on Saturday, Sanna attended the funeral services for Mabel Rosen Molz at the First English Lutheran Church at Fosston with Pastor Dean Bill Officiating. Mabel was born in Hickory Township and lived there until moving to Fosston in 1921 where she graduated from high school. She married Lloyd Molz in 1944. Lloyd passed away in 1967. Mabel and I lived on adjoining farms with our parents and have been good friends ever since. It's sad to think of her being gone, but Rev. Bill said "It was Mabel's time to go."

The Gully American Legion Auxiliary met on Tuesday evening for the annual meeting at the Gully Community Center with the election of officers. Nancy Lee called the meeting to order and a motion was made for the same officers to serve another year with Nancy Lee as president, Alice Forsberg vice president, Carol Tharaldson, secretary, Eileen Erlandson, treasurer; Sanna Brovold, chaplain and Mary Berg, parliamentarian. The Memorial Day observance was discussed and as usual we will meet on May 26 at 10:30 at the Community Center. We will not be meeting during the summer months so our next meeting will be in September. Nancy Lee and Eileen Erlandson served a nice lunch.

Marge and Donald Bolme of Fosston were Thursday morning coffee guests at the Wendt and Cathy Senger home. Wendt and Cathy spent Tuesday and Wednesday at Wendt's sister Issy and husband Paul Bosch home at Sebecca.

Cathy Senger gave me a ride to Fosston to attend the Spring 1997 Choral Concert at the Fosston high school gym. Our granddaughter Sarah was in the Junior Choir. It was an enjoyable evening. Sarah's mother Dorene also went with us.

Lyn Turonne visited her mother Effie last Sunday. Larry and Norma Emerson and Sonny Emerson and friend from Milwaukee visited Effie Sunday morning.

Danny and Laurie Wilde are the new owners of the Ongstad farm. We wish you much luck and success and welcome.

Mabel and I lived on adjoining farms with our parents and have been good friends ever since. It's sad to think of her being gone, but Rev. Bill said "It was Mabels time to go."

The Gully American Legion Auxiliary met on Tuesday evening for the annual meeting at the Gully Community Center with the election of officers. Nancy Lee called the meeting to order and a motion was made for the same officers to serve another year with Nancy Lee as, president, Alice Forsberg, vice president, Carol Theraldson, secretary; Eileen Erlandson, treasurer, Sanna Brovold, chaplain and Mary Berg, parliamentarian. The Memorial Day observance was discussed and as usual we will meet on May 26 at 10:30 at the Community Center. We will not be meeting during the summer months so our next meeting will be in September. Nancy Lee and Eileen Erlandson served a nice lunch.

Marge and Donald Bolme of Fosston were Thursday morning coffee guests at the Wendt and Cathy Senger home. Wendt and Cathy spent Tuesday and Wednesday at Wendt's sister Issy and husband Paul Bosch home at Sebecca.

Cathy Senger gave me a ride to Fosston to attend the Spring 1997 Choral Concert at the Fosston high school gym. Our granddaughter Sarah was in the Junior Choir. It was an enjoyable evening. Sarah's mother Dorene also went with us.

Lyn Turenne visited her mother Effie last Sunday. Larry and Norma Emerson and Sonny Emerson and friend from Milwaukee visited Effie Sunday morning.

Danny and Laurie Wilde are the new owners of the Ongstad farm. We wish you much luck and success and welcome.

Minnesota Seniors Are A Major Resource

Older Minnesotans continue to make substantial contributions to their families, friends and communities. And although most older people are doing well in terms of income, health and social support, some troubling disparities exist.

These are among the results of an extensive new survey of older Minnesotans recently published by the Minnesota Board of Aging, the Metropolitan Area Agency on Aging Inc., and the Minnesota Department of Human Services (DHS). The survey was released at a news conference at the DHS central office in St. Paul.

Data was collected by telephone between August 1995 and January 1996 from 805 non-institutionalized state residents age 60 and older, according to Jim Varpness, executive secretary of the Minnesota Board on Aging.

"These survey results provide a wealth of information that will be used by planners, policy makers and service providers to develop programs for older Minnesotans suited to their specific needs and concerns," Varpness said. "The data will help us prepare for new generations of older Minnesotans, including the baby boomer generation, which will begin retiring in the year 2010."

Among the study's key findings are the following:

- Older Minnesotans are a valuable resource to their families and communities. The study found most older adults perform some form of volunteer service. Sixty-one percent volunteer for organizations, 59 percent give help to families and 51 percent provide help to individuals. When all these activities are combined, 85 percent do at least one of these types of volunteering.
- Despite changing family patterns and lifestyles, enduring ties between older Minnesotans and their children continue. More than two-thirds of older Minnesotans have a child living within 30 minutes of them. Eight in 10 see these children at least weekly. Among older people with children living more than 30 minutes away, nearly one-half report talking on the phone with their children on a weekly basis.
- Older Minnesotans' incomes are quite modest. Their median per capita income now stands at $12,500—up from $9,036 in 1988. Among those who live alone, 19 percent reported incomes below the federal poverty level (the 1995 poverty level for one-person households was $7,470). Closer examination, however, reveals this poverty rate is much higher in rural Minnesota, where 27 percent of those living alone reported poverty-level incomes, compared to eight percent in the Twin Cities metropolitan area.

Varpness said the survey also dispels some myths regarding older Minnesotans' views of government programs. For example, three in four older Minnesotans would agree to pay more in personal Medicare premiums to keep the same level of benefits.

The survey also shows that seniors who need services the most are the ones using them, although many seniors don't know where to turn for information. Varpness said. Older Minnesotans most likely to use health and community services tended to be older, female, living alone and having lower incomes. Forty percent of older Minnesotans had used a least one of the 14 services included in the survey.

Varpness said the information released at the news conference is from the first in a series of surveys to be conducted at regular intervals over the next few years to monitor the changing status, attitudes and views of older Minnesotans.

While surveys such as the one noted above may be helpful in predicting some patterns or accumulating some data from which general assumptions can be drawn, they are inconclusive and certainly do not reflect the thinking of all individuals in "senior" status. The viewpoints of each senior in comparison to any other are as diverse as his or her background and experience.

There is no doubt, however, that Minnesota's senior citizens in retirement do provide a great deal of volunteer service which is extremely valuable to residents of all ages. Those who remain in employment also make valuable contributions through their experience and gained knowledge.

Another Graduation Time Has Rolled Around Again

Here it is, time for another round of high school and college graduations, and it seems like only yesterday when classes were starting for the fall. Although the winter was interminable—and seemingly still is—somehow the school year whipped past with unusual speed.

It is time again for us to extend our best wishes to the graduates as they leave high school for jobs or higher formal education of some type or another, or leave colleges and universities in quest of gainful employment that will prove their extra years of study were worth the effort and investment. The latter will soon become part of that exclusive group called "taxpayers," and learn the real life lessons the membership in that group has to teach.

If high schools across Minnesota have many of the caliber of students Lincoln high school has this year, we all better do what we can to convince them to remain in their home state. It would be a shame if many of them take their talents to other parts of the country when we could use them right here.

Good luck, graduates. May the future hold in store good things for you. Be honest with yourselves and others. Work hard. Study hard. Give life your best shot. We're proud of you. You're good people. Why not be the best?

LETTERS

To the Editor:

We have recently completed our role in providing assistance to the Good Samaritan Home of East Grand Forks when they relocated to Thief River Falls as a result of the Flood of '97.

During a 28-day period, April 18, 1997 through May 15, 1997, we saw the extraordinary kindness and goodwill of the people of Thief River Falls and surrounding towns in action.

Following the initial setup work by Northland Community and Technical College and Northwest Medical Center, we served as volunteer coordinators for this project. We learned daily — even hourly — how generous everyone was with their time, talents and possessions.

Because of the unending generosity of individuals, families, churches, schools and businesses we were able to provide the staff of the Good Samaritan with the equipment, supplies and volunteer staff they requested — usually within hours of their request — so that the residents of the Good Samaritan Home would receive the best care possible during this time.

We want all persons who participated to accept our sincere thanks for the ready and gracious response each of you gave when called upon. You all made a difference!

Sincerely,
Linda Spyhalski

FROM THE PAGES OF THE TIMES

National Guard Unit Is Subjected To Mock Bombing Attack

"The local National Guard unit Tuesday evening held its first outdoor maneuvers, marching to a point west of the fair grounds, where a mock bombing attack was staged by Gordon Camp, flight instructor at the local airport. He flew at low altitudes, dropping simulated bombs, which were in reality small bags of flour, while the ground troops returned the 'foe', using blank cartridges. Following the evolutions, the marchers enjoyed coffee and doughnuts at their headquarters in the arena."

Mercury Hits Record Low Of 22 Wednesday

"In what is credited with being a severe cold spell without precedent for the last week in May, the mercury has dropped well below the freezing mark each of the last four mornings, causing heavy damage to gardens and some field crops. A low of 28 was registered Monday and Tuesday followed by 22 Wednesday and 23 this morning. The high mark Wednesday afternoon was only 42. Rain fell last Sunday, while early Tuesday morning there was a light snowfall."

Mercy Hospital Plans Temporary Addition At Once

"Plans for the immediate erection of a temporary quonset constructed to relieve congestion at Mercy hospital until building costs become stabilized and the association is able to proceed with plans for a permanent new building were announced today by the board of trustees.

"The temporary building, which will be located north of the present hospital will provide space for 18 to 20 additional beds, and will be completely insulated and equipped with all necessary facilities."

School Heads Appeal For Quarters For Teachers

"Superintendent Philip I. Fjelstad of the local schools today appealed to Thief River Falls householders who will have rooms available for renting to teachers next fall to file the information at his office as quickly as possible, stating that the teachers wish to arrange for living quarters well in advance of the opening of school. He added that apartments or houses also are being sought for four married faculty members who have accepted positions here."

1947 Lincoln Yearbook Is Distributed Tuesday

"The 1947 edition of the Prowler, Lincoln high school senior class yearbook, was distributed to an expectant student body Thursday. The book, comprising 96 pages, is attractively bound and profusely illustrated. Delores Olson served as editor-in-chief, with Betty Nelson as assistant editor, Hal Ekeren, business manager, and W. G. Claffy, advisor."

Miss Cook Again Heads District WCTU

"Miss Mory Frances Cook of this city was reelected district president of the Women's Christian Temperance Union at its annual convention in Bemidji last Friday. Mrs. Earl Ripley of Thief River Falls was elected treasurer. Mrs. Teigen, state president, announced that Minnesota now boosts 8,000 WCTU members, and she spoke in favor of Governor Luther Youngdahl's efforts in the way of law enforcement."

Editorial comments from the files of Norm A. Holen —Folks might not be so concerned about the problem if inflation were as beneficial everywhere as it is in automobile tires.

—A lot of attention is given to the breeding of dogs, but, judging by complaints, all varieties seem to be partial to gardens.

—Those fines for overtime parking seem to have the effect of creating more space along the curb downtown.

—If Young America has a broader grin on his face these days than usual, it may be due to the fact that the school term is about over.

—As was to be expected, the town of Newburyport, Massachusetts, has abandoned its ten per cent price cutting plan. Merchants couldn't get the cooperation of their suppliers.

—Remember way back when the ladies wore watches on their blouses instead of on their wrists.

—In the county option election June 9, it seems to us, citizens aren't being asked to vote wet or dry so much as how the sale of liquor is to be handled.

—More than 11,000 pedestrians lost their lives in traffic last year. Better watch your step, folks.

—It's a neck-and-neck race this year between the lilac blossoms and Memorial Day.

—Graduating classes will step into the spotlight next week. Good luck, youngsters.

"It is an error to think that reliable Abstracts of Title to lands in this county cannot be had until the records of Polk county have been transcribed. The only set of Abstract books for Red Lake county which formerly were owned by Christianson & Strander, the reliable Abstract firm of Polk county, are now owned by Sortedahl & Storaasli, who can furnish complete abstracts of any real estate in this county."

Memorial Day . . .

"Was well observed, the original programme being faithfully carried out, all our citizens uniting to that end. At 2 p.m. the procession formed at the Engine House with H. E. Mussey as marshal, and marched to the M. E. church, which did not afford standing room for all the people, and some of the old soldiers gracefully surrendered their seats. Addresses were delivered by Rev. Reddell and H. W. Lee. After several patriotic songs were sung and pieces played by the two bands, the procession was reformed and marched to the cemetery where the graves were decorated."

OFFICIAL PROCEEDINGS
PENNINGTON COUNTY BOARD OF COMMISSIONERS

April 22, 1997 5:00 p.m.

Pursuant to adjournment the Pennington County Board of Commissioners met in the Commissioner's Board Room at the Pennington County Courthouse in Thief River Falls on Tuesday, April 22, 1997, 5:00 P.M. Members present: Donald Jensen, Bob Carlson, Charles Naplin, Oliver "Skip" Swanson, Arden "Bud" Comstock. Members absent: none.

County Engineer Dalton Schulz reviewed the projects planned for the next five years and answered questions about the proposed projects. The Chairman then closed the Hearing on the Five Year Road and Bridge Construction Plan and called the County Board Meeting back to order. The County Engineer will put together a final 5-Year Road and Bridge Construction Plan that will be available for anyone interested.

The County Auditor indicated there is scheduled a Thief River Falls City Council/Pennington County Board meeting on, May 5, 1997, 7:00 AM at the Best Western Inn of Thief River Falls, also the Final Challenger ditch hearing is set for May 24, 1997, at 7:00 p.m. at Lincoln High School.

The County Board reviewed a resolution from the Pennington Water Resources Advisory Committee. The County Board was in support of the City of Thief River Falls and the Red Lake Watershed to request the Minnesota Legislature for financial help to complete a dredging program in the Thief River Falls reservoir.

Commissioner Carlson moved, seconded by Commissioner Comstock to appoint Commissioner Naplin as Pennington County's representative to the Northwest Minnesota Civic Health Initiative and to have Commissioner Swanson as the alternate. This appointment is subject to mileage and per diem. Motion unanimously carried.

MCIT has scheduled a satellite conference to discuss the Prepaid Medical Assistance Program for May 1, 1997, from 10:00-12:00.

There is a charge of $150.00 per County. Pennington County will receive this broadcast in the Pennington County Board Room.

The County Auditor presented a letter from the Area Ag Information Center requesting financial assistance for operating funds due to the urgent need for assistance caused by the flooding. The County Board held this decision until the County Sheriff meets with them later in the evening.

Minnesota Rural Counties Caucus will have a meeting April 23, 1997, at the Morrison County Government Center.

Commissioner Swanson moved, seconded by Commissioner Naplin to approve sending a letter to the Hartz Foundation for funds for the horse barn at the fairgrounds and authorizes the Chairman to sign the letter on behalf of Pennington County. Motion unanimously carried.

The Pennington County has mandatory Employee Safety Training scheduled for April 28 and 29, 1997 in the County meeting room instructed by the Northland Community and Technical College. Items to be covered include AWAIR and Right-to-Know Training.

Commissioner Naplin moved, seconded by Commissioner Carlson to issue a duplicate check for warrant #116658 written to Chris R. Hagman on December 3, 1996 in the amount of $29.68 without issuing an indemnifying bond. The original check was never received. Motion unanimously carried.

A Public Drainage Workshop will be held at the Best Western Inn of Thief River Falls from 9:00 a.m. - 4:00 p.m. with a fee of $25.00. The Auditor needed to know who was planning to attend.

Lowell Enerson and Greg Hilgeman met with the County Board to discuss the Red Lake Watershed Annual report and beaver control.

Greg Hilgeman also mentioned that his three year term is up this fall and he has not yet decided he will take another term. Mr. Hilgeman will let the County Board know this fall.

The following residents assessed for the Red Lake Watershed Ditch #100 joined the meeting at this time: Clifford Arveson, Myles Olson, Olaf Olson, Wayne Olson, Oscar Nerhus, David Arveson, David Rindahl, Edwin Halvorson, Marvin Bakken. Also in attendance was Greg Hilgeman, Brent Johnson, Lowell Enerson representatives of the Red Lake Watershed District. Myles Olson and Gene Arveson spoke for the group of residents. Mr. Olson discussed the levies made against the property owners because of the construction of RLWD #100. He also pointed out that the bid for construction of RLWD Ditch #199 and the final cost were not close to being the same. The major question that came up was the engineering costs. The estimated engineering costs were $12,000, but ended up being closer to $39,000.00. The residents feel they already pay for these kind of costs through the property tax statement and that they should not have to pay for this large difference in engineering costs.

Brent Johnson, Red Lake Watershed Engineer, addressed the County Board and the audience about the expenses accumulated for the RLWD Ditch #199 and stated that the changing of drainage laws and length of time to finish the project contributed to the larger number. Mr. Johnson explained and also answered questions of why the ditch was built the way it was. Those in attendance asked to receive a more detailed explanation. The Red Lake Watershed will provide a detailed cost sheet to those that wish to see it.

The County Board noted that they do not oversee the establishment of a new ditch according to ditch law. The County Board suggested that representatives of this group attend the Red Lake Watershed Board Meeting to discuss their concerns of the engineering costs and request the Red Lake Watershed Board to reduce those costs assessed to the establishment of Ditch #100.

Commissioner Carlson moved, seconded by Commissioner Comstock that the Pennington County Board of Commissioners send a letter to the Red Lake Watershed Board in support of the benefited landowners of RLWD Ditch #100 requesting the Red Lake Watershed Board to absorb the engineering cost overrun. Motion unanimously carried.

Howard Person met with the County Board to discuss a request made by Les's Sanitation. Les's Sanitation would like to buy three used roll off containers from Pennington County. Commissioner Naplin moved, seconded by Commissioner Comstock to dispose of three roll off containers in trade for $1,500.00 in services from Les's Sanitation. Motion unanimously carried.

Howard Person has talked with Rick Nordhagen, Bob Kruse and Roger Ralph (MPCA) about clean-up at SWIS PENNCO. MPCA is concerned about any plans to put the fluff in anything, but a certified landfill. SWIS PENNCO noted they are continuing to try to clean up the area.

Howard noted that he had now received two quotes for a dry sprinkler system in the old Solid Waste Processing building. The County Board asked that the quote from Grinnel be more specific.

Howard Person had called the department of Health in regards to the plastic blown around from SWIS CORP property. A letter was received from the Department of Health. The letter stated there was no serious health risk with handling the plastic. SWIS PENNCO will provide latex gloves for anyone picking the plastic and paper. Ken and Connie Mehrkens and Suzanne Browning also received a copy of the department of Health letter. Suzanne emphasized the importance of vigorously washed hands after handling the type of material. She also felt there should be a message announced over the radio about washing hands after being in contact with it. The County Board is very concerned that the piles of fluff will have to be contained so when the clean-up starts the piles won't blow away again.

Howard Person would like to proceed with the Thief River Falls Fire Department to do a controlled burn at the Arctic test track and the pie shaped piece of the Solid Waste Processing Property and also possibly the road ditches. The County Board is O.K. with this if it is controlled.

Sheriff Gerald Moe met with the County Board to request a Presidential Disaster Declaration resolution be passed. The following resolution was moved by Commissioner Swanson, seconded by Commissioner Comstock and upon vote was unanimously carried.

The Sheriff mentioned that there are now over 890 evacuees in Pennington County. The County Board appreciated the tremendous efforts and help from the County Sheriff and the Community during this terrible disaster.

It was appropriate Tuesday, May 13, during an unseasonal snow storm that Red Lake Watershed District Administrator Lowell Enerson, presented a snowmobile to the Northwest Sentence to Service (STS) program, represented by Pennington County Sheriff Gerald Moe. Each year, the STS program performs a number of contractural duties for Red Lake Watershed District. Enerson said the snowmobile was in payment for their work for the district and will assist STS crews in completing future projects.

Strandquist

The weather in Northwest Minnesota is producing all four seasons in 48 hours this past month. If the sun is shining and you are in short sleeves when you go out in the field you had better take along your overcoat. It may be snowing before you come in for supper. A bit exaggerate, I think but a freeze is expected again tonight and the Peonies and Bleeding Hearts are bout 2 feet tall, and Roy says that they could break down if we tried covering them. The Dahlias aren't planted yet and if it doesn't quit freezing so I can dig them down he may have to use a crowbar to get them in the ground. The last time he did that for planting tulips late one fall evening so nobody would see us all bundled up outside the house, he made the holes so deep with the crowbar, that the tulips didn't come up for three years.

An adolescent Robin has chose to build her nest in the corner on the brick ledge outside the window. The overhang is a couple of feet wide, so she chose a nice warm place for her young to make their entrance into this world. Not so stupid an idea for one who may have been brought up on green Chokecherries.

Ted and Lori Johnson, Andy and Alissa of Osage were here to attend Dionne Lindstrom's confirmation in the Bethesda Lutheran Church on Sunday morning and visited later with Morris and Marcelyn Lindstrom. Lloyd and Lois Lindstrom visited there later Sunday evening.

Vance, Adrienne Lofrooth, Vanetta Pettis, Jeff, Margaret, Alaura and Sara Donaldson attended the impressive confirmation service at the Bethesda Lutheran Church in Strandquist on Sunday. There were four young people who were confirmed, April Sjovall, Nick Lofrooth, Dionne Lindstrom and Mike Nelson. Each student had an open house and a lunch was held at the Community Center.

Flood adds 53 students to Thief River Falls schools

Between April 1 and May 1 enrollment in Thief River Falls schools jumped 53 students, according to a public schools enrollment report for School District 564. The report was presented to the school board Tuesday night during a board meeting.

Most of the increase is due to students coming from areas affected by the flood. The largest increase was seen at Challenger Elementary school where enrollment climbed from 953 to 988, a total of 35 students. Enrollment jumped by 16 students at Franklin Middle School, and by two students at Lincoln High school.

Year end statistics have not been compiled, but this total would surpass last year's total of 2,328, which includes 53 (FTE) Alternative Learning Center (ALC) students. The total as of May 1, 1997, was 2,373, which includes 80 ALC students.

Per pupil unit credits totaled 2,663.1 at the end of the 1995-96 school year. As of May 1, the per pupil unit is 2,713.7, and increase of a little more than 50 units.

Close-Up Program Coordinator Charlie Carnell and students Danielle Goulet and Pully Cullen gave a presentation to the board on their trip to Washington, DC. They stated that it was an excellent learning experience.

Technology Coordinator Jim Kotz presented a proposal to hold MacIntosh workshops again during the summer months and offer them for lane change credit. The workshops would include the ClarisWorks 4.0 Goes to School for two credits, which was offered last year, and the following for one credit: Introduction to Graphics and Sound, Introduction to Spreadsheets, Developing Database Skills, and Publishing Newsletters with ClarisWorks. Information will be distributed to all staff and neighboring school districts once approval is given for them to be offered.

The board later authorized the workshop to be offered.

The board has authorized the administration to post for a 220-day minority coordinator position for the district effective for the 1997-98 school year.

Superintendent Jerry Robicheau reviewed the recommendation to establish and post for a minority coordinator for the district noting the individual hired for the position would work with curriculum and inservicing staff on minority issues, counseling minority students and working with minority families.

Group health coverage was renewed with Blue Cross/Blue Shield effective July 1, 1997, through June 30, 1998.

Resignations were accepted from Arlyce Twistol as educational assistant at Franklin, from Mike Hoglin as cleaner, Dawn Schindler as cleaner, Pat Cullen as head girls golf coach, from Kim Maidment as head boys tennis coach, Lora Sisler as seventh grade volleyball coach, and from Scott Bomholdt as high school stage manager.

The following teacher assignments were approved for the 1997-98 school year: Marcy Mickelson, from third to fourth grade teacher, and Denice Nelson from fifth to fourth grade teacher.

The employment of the following was approved: Diedre Nordin, summer school speech therapist; Terri Staples, guidance counselor at Lincoln; John Vukmanich, band teacher at Franklin; Diane Aandal, .5 FTE speech clinician in the Early Childhood Special Education program at Challenger; Judi Egenes and Kathy Langness as pupil program support assistants for the summer school Early Childhood Special Education program; and Joni Larson, kitchen helper at Franklin.

Pennington county 4-H representatives earned top state recognition recently from the Minnesota 4-H Adult Volunteer Association (MAVA). Barb Natvik (right) of the New Solum 4-H club was recognized at the outstanding volunteer for the Northwest District as one state award is given for each of four districts. Linda Helgeland (left) and Sharon Larson are co-leaders of the Smiley 4-H club which won the state Championship Club Award from MAVA based on its 4-H and community service and involvement.

Barb Natvik was named the outstanding adult volunteer for the Northwest District of the Minnesota 4-H Adult Volunteers Association (MAVA) and Smiley 4-H club was named a state Blue Ribbon Club by the same association as a result of recent competition.

The adult recognition of outstanding service to the Minnesota 4-H program is for work above and beyond the expectations of any volunteer. Nominations are made by other volunteers or extension educators. One recipient is selected by committee annually from each of four MAVA districts.

Barb Natvik's nomination points out that she has been a 4-H Key leader and project leader for 11 years, serving as treasurer and president of the county leader's council and being very active in leadership of her club. She has served on the awards, budget and food stand committees on the local level and was instrumental in starting the General Livestock Knowledge Bowl in Pennington county.

Business manager at Northern Motors, Barb has also found time to be president of the Academic Boosters, member of the Education Foundation, secretary-treasurer of Friends of the Orchestra, president of Rosebank Historical Society, member of the school volunteer program, Project 2000 and Sports Boosters. She and her family have hosted several exchange students from other states and foreign countries over the years.

Barb uses her vacation time to volunteer at the county fair where she manages the 4-H food stand and puts in long hours planning and conducting that activity. She uses her personal vehicle to transport 4-H members to 4-H events such as the Knowledge Bowl and to give them rides home from activities and meetings.

She has cooked hamburgers for Football Burger Night even though she has no one involved with the football program at school. She has assisted with crowd control at basketball games and volunteered to help provide Christmas Eve meals to people in the Pennington county area who have no place to go or family to join for that holiday.

Recently Barb received the County Award of the Gold Clover for 10 years of 4-H service. She has received the leader's council "Hot Dog" award given to recognize exceptional achievement although she prefers to stay behind the scenes and out of the spotlight.

Smiley 4-H Club Honored

Smiley 4-H club has an average of 85 per cent of its members at each club meeting and last year had 90 percent record completion of the 85 projects among its membership. The club was not only represented by an average of four members at all 12 meetings of the county 4-H leaders council but had members serving as president, secretary and reporter/historian.

All 27 of the club members participated with at least one exhibit at the county fair and nearly all had presented demonstrations or project talks at club meetings. Project meetings held during the year included 10 in the foods project, 22 for rabbits, 20 for safety, six for clothing, 12 for shooting sports, 15 for junior leadership, 10 for general livestock and one for record keeping.

The club was involved in several projects with good member participation in each. Nineteen club members were involved in restroom restoration at the county fairgrounds, 12 in a fairground bench project, 18 in ditch cleaning as a club project and 22 in safety camps.

"Safety—Live With It" was the theme of the club's safety project which had 100 percent club enrollment. The club distributed farm safety books, had a safety training session at a club meeting, instructed members on how to conduct the Farm Safety Trivia game and stressed safety in its "Share the Fun" skit.

At the county safety camp, seven club members served as counselors, younger members assisted with the farm safety trivia game and with other events, and youth leaders demonstrated dog safety and CPR. The club was responsible for outdoor and indoor stage decorations and presented its "Share the Fun" act for entertainment.

Other safety projects included a newspaper article by a club youth leader, safety coloring contest, video of the club safety project, club

Finseth is cited for MPCA amendment

State Rep. Tim Finseth of Angus has been commended by the Coalition of Greater Minnesota Cities for offering an amendment to the House Environment Finance Bill that is intended to bring greater accountability to the Minnesota Pollution Control Agency (MPCA).

The amendment requires a biennial report on wastewater treatment projects and water quality standards adopted by the agency. The MPCA must list and prioritize wastewater projects and their costs and estimate the impact on local sewer rates.

A list of existing and proposed water quality standards stricter than federal guidelines, and those not required under federal guidelines, also is required. The bill was recently approved by a House and Senate conference committee.

"This amendment requires the MPCA to simply compile basic information that the public can use and understand," Rep. Finseth said. "As a legislator, I want to know the costs of the wastewater projects on my constituents who have to pay for them. The projects can be extremely expensive.

"Because the water quality standards are imposed on local governments, the MPCA should be accountable to the legislature for its mandates," Finseth added, "and this provision does that."

"Representative Finseth is a respected legislator who wants to protect our environment and make sure our tax dollars are spent wisely in the process," said Thief River Falls Mayor Bob Reeve. "His common-sense approach to state environmental policy is refreshing."

The Coalition of Greater Minnesota Cities is an organization of 58 cities located outside of the Twin Cities metropolitan area. One of the group's main advocacy programs focuses on ensuring the wise use of cities' limited resources in protecting the state's natural resources.

FEMA extends flood funding

Federal Emergency Management Agency (FEMA) director James Lee Witt announced Monday, May 12, that 10 additional days of 100 percent federal funding for emergency work performed by the U.S. government in Minnesota and North and South Dakota, had been authorized.

President Clinton on April 22 directed FEMA to reimburse 100 percent of the eligible costs for all flood-related emergency work undertaken by the federal government in each of the three states, effective from the dates of the declared disasters through April 30.

Under the extension, Witt said that such work will continue to be reimbursed at 100 percent through May 17 in all counties that to date have been designated for federal assistance to the state and affected local governments.

Direct federal assistance is made available to relieve health and safety concerns and pay for critical emergency work resulting directly from the disaster. Eligible work undertaken by the federal government can include debris removal; search and rescue operations; temporary facilities for schools and other community services; demolition of unsafe structures; transportation of emergency workers, supplies and equipment; and other assistance to alleviate immediate threats to life and property.

AAUW recognizes Women of Honor

Recognized recently as Woman of Honor by American Association of University Women were (from left) Marilyn Winters, Carol Ihle and Susan Olson. They were recognized for their past and continuing contributions to the community.

The American Association of University Women recognized three Women of Honor at their branch spring meeting held recently. The women honored this year include Carol Ihle, Susan Olson and Marilyn Winters.

Women of Honor originated in 1983 when a number of women were honored by the AAUW for service in certain catagories such as religion, politics, education, art, business, etc. Over the years more catagories were added. Recently, the list was shortened with no particular catagory named. The honorees are recognized for all-around contributions to the community.

The American Association of University Women was founded in 1881. The local branch was organized in 1976 and is open to all graduates of accredited colleges or universities. AAUW is an advocate for education and equality for women and girls. AAUW is working to eliminate gender bias in education in order to create classrooms where all children receive a quality education. Also, they encourage more girls to take math and science courses.

Gayle Borchert is president of the local AAUW which currently has 35 members. Scholarships are given annually to students at Northland Community and Technical College who will be continuing their educations. They also sponsor, along with Lincoln High School, the Senior Honors Banquet for top scholars in the graduating class.

This years Women of Honor come from a wide range of knowledge, expertise and experience. They are recognized not only for their past contributions but also those they continue to make in improving the quality of life in the community.

Carol Ihle

AAUW recognizes Carol Ihle as a talented and dedicated person in the community. She has served as the Volunteer Coordinator for School District 564 for the past six years.

Carol is a 1968 graduate of Lincoln High School and a 1972 graduate of Moorhead State University with a B.S. Degree is Speech Pathology.

Married to Paul Ihle, they have four children, Kate, Lesley, Peter and Joe.

Carol is currently on the School District 564 PER Committee, Project 2000 Strategic Plan, Band Boosters, Academic Boosters, PSTP, Sunday School teacher, Inter County Nursing Board and school volunteer. She sees education as a team approach and contributes to committee work groups by sharing her ideas and solutions in a positive manner. She is a great listener and tries to gain knowledge from others while bringing out the best in them.

Carol was a speech therapist in the Jordan Public School District and worked as a speech therapist in Thief River Falls for six years. Volunteer Coordinator for School District 564, she has also been a presenter/trainer at workshops and schools across Minnesota talking about establishing school volunteer programs.

Carol is credited with establishing an outstanding local school volunteer program through her enthusiasm and genuine concern for education. She has received a state award on behalf of the volunteer program for District 564.

Her most rewarding accomplishments include raising and supporting her four children. She enjoys being involved in the many activities her family participates in. Carol enjoys reading and has been a Junior Great Books leader. Her love of reading is reflected in the quality of discussions the students participated in. Her leadership style reflects a highly professional person.

Susan Olson

AAUW recognizes Susan Olson as a wanted woman - a kindergarten teacher requested by many parents who have heard of her excellent teaching skills at Challenger.

Susan has taught school for 25 years at a variety of levels. She received her BS from Concordia College with a major in Elementary Education and Kindergarten. She has 45 graduation credits from Bemidji State College and Moorhead State College.

Susan grew up in Wolverton. Her family includes her husband, Myles, and daughters, Heather, a teacher at Middle River, Myndy, a freshman at Concordia College, and Katy, an eighth grader at Franklin Middle School.

She has and continues to volunteer many hours with 4-H as a leader and project leader. She is currently a member of the Pennington County Extension Committee.

Susan is a member of Bethany Church, having served as both a teacher and superintendent in the Sunday School. She is also a Fraternal Communicator for Lutheran Brotherhood, a member of the Minnesota Education Association, National Education Association and the local American Legion Auxilary.

Between her work, her daughters' activities and volunteer work, Susan tries to find time to read, fish, spend time at her cabin near Park Rapids and especially have time with her family.

Susan feels fortunate to have taught many wonderful students who have gone on to successful careers, and after so many years of teaching, she continues to love her job. She and her husband are very proud of their daughters who are also successful in their school and community lives.

AAUW recognizes Susan Olson for all her tireless efforts in the community and schools.

Marilyn Winters

After high school, Marilyn Winters furthered her education with business school and used her acquired knowledge at Norwest Bank for 28 years.

In 1985, Marilyn received the "Woman of the Year" award from the Thief River Falls Business and Professional Women's Association. Currently retired from banking, numerous organizations benefit from her many talents. Marilyn has been president of the American Legion Auxiliary numerous times. In addition, the VFW Auxiliary, Hospital Auxiliary and Noon Lioness keep Marilyn very busy.

She has been the treasurer of the Kidney Foundation since 1984. She also is a board member and artist contact for the Thief River Falls Concert Association and is a WIC volunteer. One of Marilyn's most rewarding volunteer activities is spending time at Oakland Park Nursing Home visiting with residents and helping with bingo.

With all the volunteering, Marilyn still finds time to play bridge, bowl on a number of leagues and enjoy music.

Marilyn's two children live in Oregon along with her three grandchildren, five step-grandchildren and five great-grandchildren.

ON THE OTHER HAND

Aaron Furuseth
Lincoln High School

Normally, the second to the last "On the Other Hand" of the year has some sort of wrap up or overview of the year. But I hate to be trite, so I am going to tell you about the escapades of my last weekend (Friday the 16th, through Sunday the 18th).

My Dad had called me the week before to tell me that we were going to go fishing in Canada. I was very excited. I don't usually get to spend that much time with my father and brother, and a whole weekend of camping and fishing sounded just like what I needed. My dad told me to leave on Thursday night because we had a lot to pack so that we could get to the border in Baudette by 1 p.m. Friday. I was even more excited then. Not only did I get to be with my dad and brother, but I got to miss a whole day of school!

The trip to Northome (where my dad's house is) was uneventful. I arrived on our front porch slightly after 1 a.m. I went straight to bed so that I would be ready to go bright and early.

The next day came quickly and we packed our fishing gear and camping gear into the boat, attached the boat to the car, and were off. My brother slept in the back seat of our green Honda Accord, and I sat up front and talked to my dad. I found out that we had to be in Baudette by 1 p.m. because my Uncle Eddie (one of dad's older brothers, lives in Warroad) was meeting us there with his wife.

We arrived in Baudette about 15 minutes early and bought gas for the boat and then sat down for what we thought would be a short time to wait for Ed. I wasn't. An hour and 30 minutes had passed before Ed showed up. He had a good excuse, but I wouldn't have minded if he hadn't.

Eddie and Marlys were in Ed's truck ahead of us as we slowed to a stop at the Canadian border. My dad had his window rolled down and was trying to remember where it was we were going. He kept repeating "Morson, going to Morson..." My brother leaned his head to the left side of my dad's seat to say we would sound suspicious if they had microphones around. He began to chant "Just going fishing, going fishing in Morson." There were about three video cameras around which leads me to believe that there may have been some microphones. That was the start of our problems.

We got up to the window and the guard began to ask us the usual questions. "Where are you going?" "How long will you be here?" Then without any flicker of any emotion he said, "Please pull into the second lane for inspection." Even if there hadn't been microphones around, my appearance probably would have gotten us in trouble.

For those of you who have never seen me, this next point may sound strange. I am the world's palest human. It doesn't bother me, but it is true. As a result of that fact, I usually prefer dark clothing. This day was no different. I had on huge forest green pants, a black turtle neck, my gray flannel, chauffeur hat and silver mirrored sunglasses. To top it off I had showered that morning and not pulled my hair back. It billowed frantically around my neck and face. My dad thinks that may have been the reason that they were stopped in the first place.

The border patrol searched EVERYTHING! They questioned us separately. They searched all of our bags. One of the questions that they asked my dad (and me, later on) was if we had ever had any trouble with the police. My dad, being truthful, said "Yes. I had a DWI when I was 19 years old." The police flipped.

They said that was a felony in Canada, they said that he could take some forms for "Rehabilitation" and pay them $150 and come back in a few weeks. They said that he could pay $150 right then, but that he would only be pardoned for about a week, and then he would have to pay the $150 again if he wanted another week. It just went like that forever (my dad told my brother and me this at a later time).

While they were questioning my father, my brother and I, full of vehemence at being stopped on our way to a wonderful sounding weekend, started spelling sentences and talking Pig Latin in low, menacing tones. That probably didn't help us at all.

We waited in the station for about an hour and a half. Finally, my dad said "forget it." We got back in our car, signaled to Ed, and went to Warroad for the night. We got in the next day because my dad went to the police station in Warroad and got a print out of his record (which was clean). But the damage had been done. We still got some fishing in on Saturday and Sunday, but it wasn't the same. The weekend was still fun...just a bit more interesting than I had expected.

ON MY MIND

Kim Chadwick-Quade

Is it summer yet?

I have been complaining this last month that it didn't SEEM like spring and certainly, the weather wasn't cooperating. When it came time to plan Memorial weekend activities, I felt like boycotting. If it didn't FEEL like the start of summer, I wasn't going to participate.

We usually spend weekends at the lake, and have ever since the first year of my life. But this year the enthusiasm wasn't there. I listed the excuses: It's too chilly to enjoy the lake. There's too much work to do at home. I didn't FEEL like going.

I finally mustered a wee bit of excitement, packed the car with my husband and son and drove about 90 miles south. By the end of the weekend, I was rejuvenated. I saw many signs that summer is near, even if it doesn't FEEL like it.

This cabin officially belongs to my parents, but if you ever hear me talk about it I claim it as "ours" or "mine." We've owned it 15 years and it's as much a part of me as my name. Of course, being the biased quasi-owner I say that it is unlike any other lake cabin anywhere.

The main two-bedroom cabin is tastefully furnished by my mother, as she lives there the entire summer recuperating from her job as a high school attendance secretary. It's a place we can go barefoot, track sand and sit nearly-wet on the furniture. We have the run of the place as long as we bring food and toilet paper.

Then there's my dad's domain – a small porch off the back of the cabin. It used to be my sister's bedroom, but since she's long gone and gainfully employed it's become the "playroom." This is definitely the place to be on a rainy day or if you're sunburned or bored.

It's outfitted with an old juke box stocked with '50s music, a bar-size popcorn popper, pinball machine, antique nickel slot machine, electronic dartboard, Coca-Cola machine, church pew, bar stools, neon sign and lots of Coke gadgets. (He's soon going to add a deep-fat fryer so he can sell hamburgers, french fries and popcorn at the upcoming rummage sale.)

So how did I FEEL that summer was near? We popped the first batch of popcorn and munched on it as we sat on the deck. The juke box kicked out the sounds of "Little Willy," "Splish Splash" and "Wasn't That a Party." Nickels clanked in the slot machine as my son tried to win grandpa's jackpot, all of $1. The pinball machine chimed as it hit the bells and lights. Another summer dart contest was underway.

And outside the signs of the oncoming summer were there. Maggie, the black lab from next door, greeted us and never left. Trucks and pails littered the sand in front of the lake. The kids tried the slide - swooping into the lake – even if it was cold. Dad and son caught the first sunfish off the end of the dock.

The tree fort was explored and the slide inaugurated (Grandpa paid my son 25 cents for sliding down 60 times.) The merry-go-round spun wildly. The makeshift basketball hoop was erected on a tree. The kids confirmed the teeter totter in good shape for the summer. Way out back, the field was being used for a baseball game and kite flying.

Yes, the signs of summer were definitely visible. Now it FEELS like it. I'm ready.

Bill protects farmers and homeowners

As part of his efforts to help Minnesotans whose lives have been devastated by the flooding disaster, U.S. Senator Rod Grams has introduced legislation which would protect farmers and homeowners from possible foreclosures on existing loans and expand the supply of available credit in disaster-declared areas. Grams said he planned to attach this bill, the "Depository Institution Disaster Relief Act of 1997", to emergency flood relief legislation being moved through Congress.

TIMES FOR TODDLERS

ACTIVITIES
Summer Songs

Teach your child the following song. Then provide your child with a copy of the song to decorate and deliver to his or her Dad.

Happy, Happy Father's Day!
(Tune: "Twinkle, Twinkle, Little Star")
Here's a little song to say,
Happy, happy Father's Day!
No one's father is so sweet.
Your kind ways just can't be beat!
Happy, happy Father's Day!
I love you in a big, big way!

Heading to the pool, lake or ocean for a swim? Have a splashing good time with the next song! Sing the song twice, first loudly and then softly.

Splashing's So Much Fun
(Tune: "Ten Little Indians")
One big, two big, three big splashes,
Soaking even my eyelashes!
I like making water smashes!
Splashing's so much fun!

PARENTING TIPS
Picnics

Going on a picnic is a wonderful way to enjoy the outdoors and summer. Whether you picnic in your backyard or miles from home, the change of pace can be fun for children and adults alike. It's important for parents to remember that any new environment will be exciting for children but it can also present some unsafe conditions. Children must be watched carefully.

Eating outside can create interest and a real appetite for the picky eater or there may be so much to do and look at that children won't want to eat at all. Be flexible! Prepare nutritious snacks so that children who want to snack or eat "on the go" will be getting a well-balanced meal, too.

Take along lots of boxes, jars or pails to hold collections. As children explore this environment allow them to bring some of their precious collections home. You might even give them "assignments" such as to find three leaves or five rocks or two pine cones, etc.

SOMETHING TO TALK ABOUT

Talk about and describe what you see around you. Don't forget the little things: the ants crawling across your picnic basket can be just as fascinating as the playground equipment.

MN Extension Service changes its name

University of Minnesota Board of Regents approved a name change Friday for the Minnesota Extension Service, the major educational outreach arm of the University with offices in every county of the state. It will now be known as the University of Minnesota Extension Service.

Katherine Fennelly, dean and director of the University of Minnesota Extension Service, says the organization sought the change because "being a part of the University of Minnesota is integral to our identity and mission." She adds, "This name change will highlight that connection in all of our communication."

She says that the new name does not in any way diminish the organization's partnership with counties. Instead, she states that the name change will "highlight and reassert that partnership, as well as our connection with other colleges and units within the University of Minnesota."

Work will begin immediately to develop a plan and timetable for making the many changes accompanying a name change, such as a new visual identifier, new signs and letterhead, according to Fennelly.

USDA automates home loan servicing

A state-of-the-art, computerized loan servicing is now online which enables the U.S. Department of Agriculture to improve service to its 6,585 home loan borrowers in Minnesota.

"This project represents a major stride forward by USDA to meet the promise of Vice President Gore's National Performance Review initiative to improve the efficiency of the federal government," said Agriculture Secretary Dan Glickman.

"The dream of homeownership is closer to a reality for many rural Americans as a result of USDA's centralized loan system," Glickman said. "Minnesota families will have better service and easier access to mortgage information, and employees can provide better follow-up and tracking of payment progress."

The new loan system relies on one center in St. Louis, MO, to provide loan servicing nationwide. USDA has been using a network of 1,200 field offices to service home loans for 550,000 low-income rural borrowers nationally. Howard Botman, acting state director in Minnesota, described the old system as "an antiquated process where employers filled out forms on electric typewriters and make notes on index cards — making tracking of mortgage payments labor intensive."

The new system modernizes the application process and provides easier access for borrowers to receive information about their accounts. New USDA home-loan services include access seven days a week to account information through a toll-free number, customer service representatives available 10 hours a day; escrow for real estate taxes and property insurance; and a new automatic payment service.

"There is no other program in rural America that enables so many low-income families to achieve the dream of homeownership," said Jill Long Thompson, under secretary for USDA's rural development. "USDA's 502 direct single family home loan program offers 'supervised credit' that provides borrowers with lower payments, deferred payments and financial counseling to help borrowers not only buy their own homes, but also keep payments current on those homes. By reinventing our loan program for rural families with low incomes, we're showing how responsive and flexible USDA can be."

When fully implemented, the computerized loan system will save USDA $250 million over five years. In addition, the new loan system cuts red tape for low-income home borrowers, replacing 16 regulations covering 290 pages with one regulation on 30 pages.

3.4 million fewer acres of CRP

Results of the 15th Conservation Reserve Program signup announced recently indicate there will be 3.4 million fewer CRP ares in the 23 wheat production states affiliated with the National Association of Wheat Growers (NAWG).

Wheat states with acreage gains are North and South Dakota, due largely to inclusion of wetland areas like prairie potholes, and a new emphasis on wildlife habitat in the program. A major decline of over 1 million acres occurred in Texas, 770,000 in Minnesota and 613,000 in Washington. The NAWG has requested information from USDA to show how bids were scored and evaluated.

The NAWG commended Agriculture Secretary Dan Glickman for meeting his commitment to announce CRP signup results before the end of May. "Wheat producers who did not make the cut can now either prepare to plant, or prepare a new offer for the next signup," said McLain, NAWG President and wheat producer from Statesville, NC.

The NAWG supports the secretary's intention to schedule an additional 1997 signup to give producers another chance to offer land for CRP enrollment. "The secretary has accepted 16 million acres into the program, but there's room for more," said Carl Schwensen, NAWG executive vice president.

"The 16th signup should be available for land under CRP contracts that will expire October 1, 1998, as well as land that was not accepted in the 15th signup. Producers need to know well ahead of planting time whether their land will be going back into CRP or whether they should begin planting preparation," Schwensen said. The 16th signup will come too late for winter wheat producers to decide to plant a crop for harvest in 1998, however. Preparation of CRP land for fall seeding should already have begun.

Q&A SOCIAL SECURITY

Provided by the Social Security District Office in Grand Forks, ND

Q. I know retirement benefits are reduced before age 65. If I start at 62 nd one-half will the reduction be as much as at age 62?

A. No. Age reductions are determined by the number of months that you are before age 65, not your age. For example, your starting retirement at age 62 and one-half would mean a reduction based on approximately 30 months rather than 36 months at 62. Reductions would vary from none at 65 to 36 months at age 62. The monthly reduction for retirement is five-ninths of one percent per month which is about 20 percent at age 62, 13.3 percent at 63 and 6.6 percent at 64. Age based reductions are permanent.

Q. When does starting retirement benefits at age 62 vs. age 65 balance out?

A. For retirement, age 77 is about the balance point. In other words, assuming all monthly benefits were paid, a person would have received about the same amount in Social Security retirement at age 77 whether they started benefits at age 62 or age 65. This is only for benefits paid based on the person's own work record.

As a reminder, the age that a person must attain to receive unreduced benefits is changing for individuals born after 1937. While that age is now age 65, it is scheduled to slowly increase until people born in 1960 and later will have to be age 67 to receive unreduced benefits. Early retirement at age 62 will still be possible although rates of reduction will change.

SPEAKING OF

• Sherry LaCoursiere

...Dear Library Suggestion Box:

I don't have a suggestion for you, but I have a question: Where are the new books?

I love to read. I love the library. I would love to work at the library. I love to browse among the books and pick a whole bunch of them to take home with me. I always said if I had to choose between reading and eating, I would choose to read, and I would be thin. (However, since I can do both at the same time, I am not thin.)

Yes, I love the musty smell of the library – all those old books just waiting to be read. One of the best musty old books I ever read was one I found when I was a helper librarian in high school. The school library hardly ever threw away a book – we helpers used to fix the old books, repairing the pages and replacing the covers. One day I fixed a book called "Little Lord Fauntleroy." I took it home and read it and cried because it was a wonderful story. After that I read "Uncle Tom's Cabin" and cried some more. Since I am so old, both of these books must have been the original stories without any "modern" changes to them, but they were two of the best books I ever read.

When I was 10 years old I had rheumatic fever and had to spend my summer sitting around – no swimming, biking, running or anything else physical. I spent it reading. My mother worked next to the old Carnegie library and used to bring books home for me.

That was the summer I read the entire "Little House on the Prairie" series. I also read fairy tales – the library had really large books filled with fairy tales and my poor little mother would tote these big books home and I would devour them. When I got well, my cousins and I played "Little House on the Prairie" until they were sick and tired of it. I never tired of it. I would like to play it again today. And I'm sure all those fairy tales stuck in my little brain and made me have the imagination I have today – a little warped, but very fertile.

When I was finally able to go to the library myself, I could spend hours there, hidden in the narrow aisles between the tall shelves. I can still remember how it smelled – just like a library. (Some day I'm going to go back in that building and see if it smells like it did when it was a library.)

After I was an adult, I would read in categories. I spent one summer reading only science fiction (improving my imagination), another reading about antiques and collectibles (to learn what to buy at those rummage sales I go to), and one summer long ago I did my best to wade through the library's "History of Civilization" series, which led me to spend a couple of summers reading about British, French and Russian history. Now I read mysteries as fast as I can.

But I don't just like to read old books - I do love to read new books too and I can't find them in my favorite place - the library. A library is a special place, a place to look at books and touch them and peek into them to see if they are good to read. It is a place where people can sit down and read a little of the book, or stay all day and read the entire book. It's not just a place for people who love to read, but a place where people will learn to love to read.

So, since the library now has a suggestion box and anyone is invited to write to it, I am asking the box a question: "Where are the new books?" Where are the new books that will catch peoples' eyes and make them want to read and learn to love it?

Yes, I've seen the New Book section. Every time I go to the library, I stop there. There are a lot of empty spots. Can it be that all the new books are home with someone else? I don't think so.

I don't think they are ever there. No matter when I stop in, I cannot find any of the new novels I have read about in the newspaper and magazine book reviews. What I do find in the New Book section are paperbacks – lots of westerns, a few mysteries (all of which I have read), and some very worn fiction novels. The hardbound book sections have a handful of fiction novels, and several strange nonfiction books that, obviously, no one else wants to read either. Where are the GOOD NEW books?

Yes, I've asked people at the library about the books. According to what I was told, one must request a book from the several-state area library group and then, eventually, the book will be sent to the TRF library and I will be notified and then get to check it out and read it. From what I have heard, this can take from a few weeks to several months. If it takes that long, I can just as well wait and buy it in paperback, right?

Perhaps the long wait to obtain a new book through the library group accounts for the 1992, 1993, 1994 and 95 copyright dates on the books in the New Book section. If you have a book from the New Book section at home, check the copyright. Call me if it says 1996 or 1997, would you? I still haven't found one.

First of all, the problem with the several-state area library group is that I don't always know the name of the book I want to read. I want to browse. I want to hold the book and check the flap to see if I will like it, and read about the author. I want to look at the picture on the dust cover to see if it is something I will like. I want to touchy-feely (and smell) my books.

Secondly, I don't want to wait months to read a new best seller by my favorite author. I would like to get it as soon as possible – as soon as I can get it from a book club. (Of course I belong to book clubs – it is the only way I can read a novel before it is a year old. Would the library accept donations of my used books, I wonder?)

Third, I feel that our library should have at least a single volume of each of the popular new novels. Give me a two day limit check-out time – make me pay a few cents per day for new books – put a limit on the number of new books I can borrow – just give me some new novels – some best sellers!

Now that summer is well on its way, people are looking for novels to curl up with on a sunny day. I really wish our library could provide us with those novels. Please!

Theft report, investigation results in chase and arrest

Shortly after being released from prison, Joshua Marvin Goulet, 21, Thief River Falls, was back in jail for alleged crimes similar to the ones that put him in prison.

According to a Pennington County Sheriff's department spokesperson, the sheriff's department received a complaint on May 27 at 12:08 p.m. that a purse had been taken from the back room of a local business. At 12:45 p.m. police received a report of a check forgery at Hugo's and then an off-duty officer reported observing a suspect at another downtown business.

A police officer then went to the downtown store and allegedly observed the individual use a check that did not belong to him to pay for merchandise. Joshua Goulet was then informed that he was under arrest. While being escorted from the store he broke away and ran from the officer. Goulet started running downtown with the officer on foot behind him. The officer saw former Sheriff Bob Wold and requested help. Wold was able to slow Goulet and the officer tackled him.

Goulet faces felony charges of forgery, and escape from custody. Other charges are pending. As of last Thursday, four checks, totaling over $700, had been written on one account.

Burglary. On May 27 at 7 a.m. a local merchant reported a break in. Officers investigating the scene discovered several drops of blood. No entry was gained, but there was $50 damage to a window. Upon further investigation, Shane Ray Hanson, 24, Thief River Falls, was charged with attempted burglary in the third degree.

Vandalism. Three 16-year-old males face charges of criminal damage to property after a Star township resident reported on May 25 that seven cars at his rural residence had been damaged. Several windows had been shot out or broken out. Two of the males charged with the crime are from Thief River Falls and the third from Goodridge.

Accidents. On May 29 at 10:37 a.m. police received a report of an accident at Third Street and Atlantic Avenue. Lorissa Ann Eggerud, Thief River Falls, was driving a van west on Third and allegedly attempted to beat the yellow light when her van collided with a car driven by Esther Lillie Sevre, Thief River Falls, which was traveling north on Atlantic. Sevre complained of chest pain. Damages were estimated at $2,500 to the Eggerud vehicle, and $3,000 to the Sevre vehicle.

On June 1 at 3:37 p.m. police received a report of an accident at Third Street and Markley Avenue. Amy Tvedt, Thief River Falls, was driving a car east on Third and was in the process of making a left turn when the rear of her car was struck by a car driven by Orrin Grindeland of Thief River Falls. Grindeland had looked away for a moment and did not see Tvedt stop in traffic. Grindeland was cited for inattentive driving. Damages were estimated at $2,000 to the Tvedt vehicle and $2,500 to the Grindeland vehicle.

Consumption under age. On May 31 at 10:51 p.m. the sheriff's department discovered a large number of individuals at a dead end south of the airport in Rocksbury township. Four males, one 20-, and three 18-years olds of Thief River Falls, and three 18-year-old females all of Thief River Falls, were cited for consumption under age.

Driving while intoxicated. On May 31 at 1:56 a.m. Nadine Claire Haugen, 39, Thief River Falls, was arrested for driving while intoxicated, refusal to test, and open bottle.

On June 1 at 12:22 a.m. Lloyd Vincent Donnell, 41, Red Lake, was arrested for driving while intoxicated, refusal to test and driving after suspension.

On June 1 at 6:21 p.m. police arrested John Wayne Grindeland, 62, Thief River Falls, for driving under the influence.

Thefts. Law enforcement received a report of the theft of a 1974 Chevrolet pickup valued at $500. It was taken from a residence in Hickory township.

Drugs. On May 29 parents of some youth notified Franklin Middle School that children were crushing a prescription drug called Ritalin and inhaling it to get a high. The school contacted law enforcement. Law enforcement suspect one youth who has a prescription for the drug, which is used to combat hyperactivity, has been allowing friends to use it. No action by law enforcement has been taken yet.

These reports include names of individuals charged, arrested or cited with various crimes and offenses by police, the sheriff's department or other law enforcement officials. Depending upon the circumstances of a case, charges can be, and sometimes are, changed or dropped by law enforcement officials or attorneys even before the case reaches court. Readers should also realize that under the American system of jurisprudence, individuals charged with crimes are innocent until proven guilty of those crimes in a court of law.

Several pets held at animal pound

Several cats and dogs are being held in the Thief River Falls animal pound. They can be claimed by their owner or adopted by individuals willing to care for the pets. Pound fees, license fees and any other expense incurred by the police department will be assessed prior to release. Each animal will be kept for a minimum of five days.

Animals being held include: two gray kittens caught May 30 in St. Hilaire; a brown male pit bull caught May 30 in Red Lake county; an orange male cat caught May 29 on 10th Street; a white and tan husky caught in Smiley township; and a great Pyrenees male, which is pictured to the right.

Fire damages garage on North Conley

Fire caused damage to a garage at 115 North Conley on Monday, June 2.

According to the fire department, they received a report of the fire at 9:25 p.m. There was minimal damage to the building. There were no injuries and the cause is still under investigation.

Police suspect that a cigarette butt may have started the fire, which began near a windowsill.

Investigation into the incident is continuing. Arson has not been ruled out.

USDA to begin contacting farmers to complete nationwide survey

Lorraine Rustad of McIntosh will contact selected Red Lake and Pennington county farmers during the first half of June to ask them to take part in a nationwide survey of American agriculture.

As a primary source of agricultural information, the June Agricultural Survey is one of the largest and most important conducted by the U.S. Department of Agriculture's National Agricultural Statistics Service. The resulting information will be used to make reliable State, regional, and national estimates of crop acreage, grain stocks, and hog inventories. The Minnesota Agricultural Statistical Service in St. Paul is handling the Minnesota portion of the survey.

"In order to make the reports released from this survey as accurate as possible, it is important that each selected farmer participate in the survey," said Rustad, the trained interviewer who will carry out the survey in this area.

This June survey is particularly vital. It will provide the first clear indications of the potential production of major crops on the heels of spring floods in some areas of Minnesota, and early planting progress in other areas of the state.

Producers themselves rely on the data to reach valid production, marketing, and investment decisions. Congresspersons and regulators use the information to produce better regulations and farm programs. Industry analysts, extension personnel, farm organizations, and agricultural lenders need the information for a variety of reasons.

It is very important for Red Lake and Pennington county farmers to participate in the survey to ensure that local agriculture is accurately portrayed. Most producers selected for interviews have already been notified by mail.

"We safeguard the confidentiality of all survey responses," said Michael Hunst, Minnesota State Agricultural Statistician. "Data about individual operations are used only in conjunction with information from other producers." Participants may receive summarized survey results for their State and the Nation upon request. Results of the June Agricultural Survey will be released in the Hogs and Pigs report on June 27, and on June 30 the Acreage and Grain Stocks reports will be released.

FEMA deadline extended

The deadline to register for disaster recovery assistance has been extended from June 7 through July 7 for Minnesotans who suffered losses in the March floods. Officials of the Minnesota Department of Emergency Management, Federal Emergency Management Agency (FEMA), and the U.S. Small Business Administration (SBA) announced the extension Friday, May 30. This action extends the deadline for residents and businesses affected by the April disaster declaration to apply for aid from FEMA, SBA, and other federal and state disaster recovery programs.

"More than 11,600 disaster survivors have already registered for assistance following the March floods," said Federal Coordinating Officer Bob Teen. "Our intention is to make sure those people affected throughout the declared areas have ample opportunity to seek the federal and state assistance they need."

Residents and businesses affected by the floods may apply for aid by calling the FEMA toll-free registration number 1-800-462-9029. Persons who are speech or hearing impaired should call TTY 1-800-462-7585.

Since the Presidential declaration, 11,609 Minnesota citizens have applied for FEMA assistance, nearly $12,613,300 has been disbursed for temporary housing assistance; $28,637,800 in U.S. Small Business Administration (SBA) loans have been made to homeowners and businesses; and almost $1,247,500 has been allotted in individual-and-family grants.

Disaster survivors have been declared eligible for FEMA's individual assistance, public assistance and hazard mitigation programs. Individual assistance includes funding for temporary housing and emergency home repairs, low-interest SBA loans to homeowners, renters and businesses of any size, and grants to persons who cannot qualify for other recovery sources. Public assistance provides funds to state and local governments and certain non-profit organizations for emergency community cleanup and infrastructure repairs. Hazard mitigation projects are designed to minimize or eliminate future disaster damages.

Just What Is ERT?

There's been a lot of talk lately about Estrogen Replacement Therapy, or ERT. Its main purpose is to ease the symptoms of menopause, but it's also been shown to help prevent osteoporosis.

Menopause develops naturally, usually around age 50, unless it's brought on artificially by the removal of the ovaries in a partial or complete hysterectomy. ERT provides a synthetic estrogen to replace the hormones the ovaries no longer produce, relieving or reducing symptoms like hot flashes and vaginal dryness. This synthetic hormone also helps slow the loss of bone caused by osteoporosis. Today, many doctors use a combination of estrogen and progestin in ERT to simulate the regular menstrual cycle.

ERT is not for everyone, but if you've had severe menopausal symptoms or are at high risk for osteoporosis, talk with your doctor about it.

SPEAKING OF EDUCATION

by Jerry Robicheau
Superintendent
School District 564

This article is written to the young men and women who graduated from the Thief River Falls Independent School District No. 564 on Friday, May 30. At 7:30 p.m. on the 30th you went through a commencement exercise signifying the completion of your school experiences in Independent School District No. 564. However, the true definition of commencement is an exercise for a beginning.

You will begin a new phase of your life. New challenges, new opportunities, new experiences, new adventures, new friendships, new hopes and new dreams--that's what high school graduation is. It's not the closing of the door to your experiences in Independent School District No. 564, it is the opening of the door for opportunities that you don't know that await you, but, believe me, they do wait for you.

You begin these new adventures with the skills that have been given to you by people who have taught you, coached you, counseled you, picked you up when you have fallen, and people who have principled you. Each and every one of these individuals has given part of his or her life to make sure you are prepared to make a decision that is best for you. That decision may be to go on to a post-secondary institution, to the military, to continue learning in Thief River Falls, to move to a different part of the state, a different part of the nation, a different part of the world or to continue to live in Thief River Falls. It is now your decision. It is now your opportunity to do what you need to do to achieve and continue to achieve only the best that you can be and never settle for anything less.

We also thank you for what you have done for us. You have given us the opportunity to laugh, to stand proud, and to say "those are students from School District No. 564 and they are the best in the state."

I wish this column was big enough to list every single one of you and identify the accomplishments and contributions you have made to our school district. Unfortunately, space does not allow me to do that. However, to each and every one of you, we wish you only the best. We encourage you to always strive for the next level. We encourage you to never settle but to always continue to move to the next level.

You have made a significant difference in Independent School District No. 564's history because there will never be a graduating class of 1997 again. You have been here and now it's time for you to move on and commence a new beginning.

We wish you well. We wish you the best. We congratulate you on your new beginning. We just offer you one suggestion--take time for some enjoyable reading. Pickup up a book written by Dr. Seuss titled Oh, The Places You'll Go. And as you commence on new directions and all the places you'll go--enjoy them!

banner at the county fair, demonstrations and project talks at club and county levels and community pride exhibit at county and state levels.

Most members exhibited in the safety project at the county fair and one at the state fair. The club earned a $100 fourth place award from the Colgate Youth for America contest, a silver Award of Merit from the National Safety Council for project activities and bronze Award of Commendation for an individual member from the National Safety Council. Five club members and two adult leaders attended the National Safety Council's Youth Safety Congress in Orlando, FL.

Seven Smiley 4-H club members were enrolled in the youth leadership project and eight planning/training sessions were held at the club level. The members were involved in a number of club and county activities, and represented the club at the Youth Safety Congress, Capitol Experience, camp counselor training, Sandhill Lake camp, county day camp, county fair and awards banquet. Seven youth members were County 4-H Ambassadors.

Community service by the club was one of its outstanding areas. The club tackled restroom renovation at the county fairgrounds, starting with pressure wash and scraping to remove rust, dirt and peeling paint. Fixtures were polished with steel wool and primed; walls, ceilings and dividers were spray painted white; floors were roller painted gray and sprinkled with sand to prevent slipping; walls were feather duster decorated with red and blue, divider panels were hand painted blue, and the outside trim was painted red, white and blue in honor of the City of Thief River Falls Centennial.

The club purchased materials for 25 benches to be placed throughout the fairgrounds during the fair. Business sponsorship was sold at $50 per bench and the sponsors' names were routed into the backs of the benches. Club members sanded the pre-cut 2x4s used in the benches and delivered the benches to the fairgrounds.

Club members cleaned two miles of ditches for a community service organization, purchased a gift for the community-sponsored Angel Tree at Christmas and assisted with wrapping gifts for distribution.

The club purchased a subscription for the large print Reader's Digest for Oakland Park Nursing Home and purchased and wrapped "Small Gifts for Grand People" to be distributed to nursing home residents.

Club members did face painting at the city park gazebo fund-raiser and a local bank's 60th anniversary, served ice cream at the gazebo fund-raiser and planted and maintained a flower bed at the county fairgrounds.

The club promoted 4-H on radio and in the newspaper, assisted with the 4-H carnival and a ham dinner fund-raiser for the leader's council, joined in "An American Festival" on the Fourth of July for the city's centennial commission, helped operate the food stand during Northwest Dairy Day and the county fair, sponsored a county 4-H safety award, sponsored a coloring contest, served lunch at an auction sale and operated several fund-raisers which provided enough money to cover transportation, hotel and National Safety Council Congress expenses for those attending.

Thursday, Dawn Hanson, Clifford and Ounda Haggo, Leona Slatto and Gerhard Larson traveled to Ada and attended the funeral services for Edna Josephson at the Grace Lutheran Church. Edna is Gunda Hegga and Leona Slatto's double first cousin and Gerhard Larson's sister.

Due to the recent flooding, the fellowship following was held at the Catholic Church because the basement of Grace Lutheran was damaged. Later they visited at the Tim and Joanna Holla home and the Ronald Josephson home. Sincere sympathy to the family. May her memory be blessed.

NCTC nursing program receives new equipment

Equipment valued at $6,750 has been donated to the nursing programs at Northland Community and Technical College by the Baxter Healthcare Corporation and Ross Laboratories.

Baxter donated two intravenous infusion pumps, valued at $5,600, which will be used in nursing labs to train nursing students. This corporation is an international supplier of home and institutional health care products.

The Flexiflo Quantum pump—an enteral feeding pump used to feed patients intravenously—was donated by Ross Laboratories, which provides medical nutritional products. It is valued at $1,150. Through use of the pump, nursing students will learn how to operate the feeding pump, monitor its flow and administer nutritional substances through it.

Healthcare facilities in the communities of Roseau, Crookston, Bemidji, Park Rapids and Thief River Falls also play an important and active role in nursing education, according to Deb Filer, director of nursing at NCTC. As educational partners, they provide the student nurses with hands-on clinical experience.

Northland offers a diploma in Practical Nursing, an associate degree in Registered Nursing and an 84-hour nursing assistant course each quarter. Upon completion of the latter course, students may take the Nursing Assistant Registry exam.

Johnston herd leads DHIA during April

Dairy herd of Todd and Jay Johnston led the Red Lake-Pennington Dairy Herd Improvement Association for the month of April, according to supervisors Melvin, Randy and Margaret Rasmussen.

Eighteen herds were listed in the top 15 for the month as there was a four-way tie for the final place on the list.

The Johnston herd of 68 cows was 90 percent in milk and had average production of 71 pounds of milk, 2.7 pounds of butterfat and 2.3 pounds of protein.

A close second was the herd of Tom and Diane Kolstoe. Ninety-five percent of the 43 cows were in milk and the herd averaged 71 pounds of milk, 2.6 pounds of butterfat and 2.2 pounds of protein.

Lyle Swanson herd was in third place with 93 percent of the 44 cows in milk and averaging 71 pounds of milk, 2.4 pounds of butterfat and 2.3 pounds of protein.

Other herds in the top 15 were as follows with number of cows, percentage in milk, and average pounds of milk, butterfat and protein listed respectively:

Northwest Agricultural Experiment Station (large cows), 50, 94%, 70, 2.7 and 2.3; Richard Dummer, 88, 86%, 70, 2.2 and 2.2; Northwest Agricultural Experiment Station (small cows), 59, 95%, 69, 2.5 and 2.3; and Mark Hanson, 50, 88%, 65, 2.0 and 2.0;

Monthly averages are calculated on the entire herd of each member, including dry cows, to give the dairyman a record of the herd's earning power for the month. The number of dry cows adversely affects the overall herd average.

Johnson, Eriksen win AAUW student writing competition

Heidi Johnson won first place and Jenni Eriksen won second in the student writing contest recently conducted by the Thief River Falls branch of the American Association of University Women.

Theme of the contest was "Women in Government: Working to Make A Difference." Both girls are members of the 1997 graduating class at Lincoln high school.

Heidi is the daughter of Dr. Peter and Judy Johnson and wrote her entry about Supreme Court Justice Sandra Day O'Conner. She received a $50 first prize donated by Northern State Bank and her essay was submitted for statewide judging by the Minnesota AAUW.

Jenni is the daughter of Bradley and Janelle Eriksen and wrote her essay on Eleanor Roosevelt. She received a $25 award from Northern State Bank.

Two other seniors at Lincoln received honorable mention. Steph Wold wrote about Margaret Thatcher and Tinesha Porter wrote about Golda Meir. All of the winners are students of Loiell Dyrud at Lincoln.

Criteria for judging essays included research that shows sufficient breadth of inquiry, clarity of thought and a style that is lively and concise. AAUW promotes equity for all women and girls, lifelong education and positive societal change.

Heidi Johnson's first place essay is being published in today's issue as a guest editorial. Jenni Eriksen's second place entry follows:

Eleanor Roosevelt
by Jenni Eriksen

"Nobody in our time has done more for the rights of men and women and children than Eleanor Roosevelt," writes Henry Steele Commager in Crusaders for Freedom. She was born on October 11, 1884. Her parents died when she was young, and she was raised by her grandmother. On March 17, 1905, she married Franklin D. Roosevelt.

Despite her unhappy childhood, Eleanor wrote in her diary, "I can feel it in me sometimes that I can do much more than I am doing and I mean to try 'til I do succeed."

She fought for equal rights, human rights and protection of the poor. Her motivation led her to become one of the most influential American women ever.

Eleanor Roosevelt first took interest in politics after her husband was paralyzed by poliomyelitis in 1921. Determined to be independent, she became involved in the League of Women Voters, the Woman's Trade Union League and the women's division of the Democratic Party.

Roosevelt always spoke out and urged women to vote and take part in their government. She also took part in many women's organizations that dealt with social legislation, learned to speak publicly, and wrote magazine articles on women's problems. She wrote almost sixty articles, three books, a daily newspaper column and a monthly magazine page. Even though she was paid for her work, she gave away all of the money.

Roosevelt's compassion for a young man at St. Elizabeth's led her to realize insanity was a prison. She begged for money to fix up the hospital. "We would not keep animals in such a shameful condition," (she said). Because of an investigation, Congress gave a large amount of money to St. Elizabeth's. Roosevelt was still unsatisfied. Later, a recreation room was added, books filled the shelves, a work program was started and volunteers worked with the patients. This was just the beginning of Roosevelt's influences.

Eleanor Roosevelt had extra concern for the underprivileged, education and racial relations. She gave beggars a card that offered a free meal at her home. During the Depression, Roosevelt sponsored a Works Project Administration that gave jobs to older women, and the National Youth Administration which allowed boys and girls to finish school and work part-time.

Teaching in a private school, she helped girls understand how people lived and how the government worked. In the South, Roosevelt became aware of the racial prejudice. She resigned from the Daughters of the American Revolution after the DAR didn't allow Marion Anderson to sing in Washington's Constitution Hall, and this was the impetus that drove Eleanor Roosevelt to improve the lives of many minority groups.

Eleanor Roosevelt fought for the rights of all humans. She was the key to writing and passing the Declaration of Human Rights, the first document clearly stating the things everyone should be entitled. In charge of Human Rights, she worked endlessly for peace. Roosevelt worked with the UN, and in 1952, New Jersey became the thirteenth state to have equal pay for men and women.

The twentieth century opened many doors to women where they had once been forbidden. Women artists, writers, scientists, actresses and athletes emerged. Among them was Helen Keller who proved intelligence exists in the world of the deaf and blind, and because of Roosevelt's influence many handicapped people were able to find fulfillment.

Roosevelt had many government occupations. While her husband was sick with polio, Roosevelt became her husband's political stand-in. Roosevelt also helped with the Red Cross during World War I. In 1928 she was director of women's activities for Alfred E. Smith in his political campaign. Roosevelt was Assistant Director of Civilian Defense in 1941-42. She was Chairman of the Human Rights commission of the U.N. Economic and Social Council.

In 1945 she was appointed U.S. delegate to the U.N. by President Harry S. Truman, resigned in 1952, but was reappointed by J.F.K. in 1961. After her husband's death, Roosevelt went on for seventeen more years of public service.

For her endless contributions, Eleanor Roosevelt became known as the First Lady of the United States, and later as the First Lady of the World. She influenced many people who had no hope.

"The poor, the oppressed, the sick, the physically handicapped, the unhappy—those were the ones to whom her loss would be greatest," wrote Robin McKown in Eleanor Roosevelt's World. Without her influence, opportunities would not be available to many people today."

SPEAKING OF EDUCATION

by Jerry Robicheau
Superintendent

This article is written to the young men and women who graduated from the Thief River Falls Independent School District No. 564 on Friday, May 30. At 7:30 p.m. on the 30th you went through a commencement exercise signifying the completion of your school experiences in Independent School District No. 564. However, the true definition of commencement is an exercise for a beginning.

You will begin a new phase of your life. New challenges, new opportunities, new experiences, new adventures, new friendships, new hopes and new dreams--that's what high school graduation is. It's not the closing of the door to your experiences in Independent School District No. 564; it is the opening of the door for opportunities that you don't know that await you, but, believe me, they do wait for you.

You begin these new adventures with the skills that have been given to you by people who have taught you, coached you, counseled you, picked you up when you have fallen, and people who have principled you. Each and every one of these individuals has given part of his or her life to make sure you are prepared to make a decision that is best for you. That decision may be to go on to a post-secondary institution, to the military, to continue learning in Thief River Falls, to move to a different part of the state, a different part of the nation, a different part of the world or to continue to live in Thief River Falls. It is now your decision. It is now your opportunity to do what you need to do to achieve and continue to achieve only the best that you can be and never settle for anything less.

We also thank you for what you have done for us. You have given us the opportunity to laugh, to stand proud, and to say "those are students from School District No. 564 and they are the best in the state."

I wish this column was big enough to list every single one of you and identify the accomplishments and contributions you have made to our school district. Unfortunately, space does not allow me to do that. However, to each and every one of you, we wish you only the best. We encourage you to always strive for the next level. We encourage you to never settle but to always continue to move to the next level.

You have made a significant difference in Independent School District No. 564's history because there will never be a graduating class of 1997 again. You have been here and now it's time for you to move on and commence a new beginning.

We wish you well. We wish you the best. We congratulate you on your new beginning. We just offer you one suggestion--take time for some enjoyable reading. Pickup up a book written by Dr. Seuss titled Oh, The Places You'll Go. And as you commence on new directions and all the places you'll go--enjoy them!

Most members exhibited in the safety project at the county fair and one at the state fair. The club earned a $100 fourth place award from the Colgate Youth for America contest, a silver Award of Merit from the National Safety Council for project activities and bronze Award of Commendation for an individual member from the National Safety Council. Five club members and two adult leaders attended the National Safety Council's Youth Safety Congress in Orlando, FL.

Seven Smiley 4-H club members were enrolled in the youth leadership project and eight planning/training sessions were held at the club level. The members were involved in a number of club and county activities, and represented the club at the Youth Safety Congress, Capitol Experience, camp counselor training, Sandhill Lake camp, county day camp, county fair and awards banquet. Seven youth members were County 4-H Ambassadors.

Community service by the club was one of its outstanding areas. The club tackled restroom renovation at the county fairgrounds, starting with pressure wash and scraping to remove rust, dirt and peeling paint. Fixtures were polished with steel wool and primed; walls, ceilings and dividers were spray painted white; floors were roller painted gray and sprinkled with sand to prevent slipping; walls were feather duster decorated with red and blue, divider panels were hand painted blue; and the outside trim was painted red, white and blue in honor of the City of Thief River Falls Centennial.

The club purchased materials for 25 benches to be placed throughout the fairgrounds during the fair. Business sponsorship was sold at $50 per bench and the sponsors' names were routed into the backs of the benches. Club members sanded the pre-cut 2x4s used in the benches and delivered the benches to the fairgrounds.

Club members cleaned two miles of ditches for a community service organization, purchased a gift for the community-sponsored Angel Tree at Christmas and assisted with wrapping gifts for distribution.

The club purchased a subscription for the large print Reader's Digest for Oakland Park Nursing Home and purchased and wrapped "Small Gifts for Grand People" to be distributed to nursing home residents.

Club members did face painting at the city park gazebo fund-raiser and a local bank's 60th anniversary, served ice cream at the gazebo fund-raiser and planted and maintained a flower bed at the county fairgrounds.

The club promoted 4-H on radio and in the newspaper, assisted with the 4-H carnival and a ham dinner fund-raiser for the leader's council, joined in "An American Festival" on the Fourth of July for the city's centennial commission, helped operate the food stand during Northwest Dairy Day and the county fair, sponsored a county 4-H safety award, sponsored a coloring contest, served lunch at an auction sale and operated several fund-raisers which provided enough money to cover transportation, hotel and National Safety Council Congress expenses for those attending.

NCTC nursing program receives new equipment

Equipment valued at $6,750 has been donated to the nursing programs at Northland Community and Technical College by the Baxter Healthcare Corporation and Ross Laboratories.

Baxter donated two intravenous infusion pumps, valued at $5,600, which will be used in nursing labs to train nursing students. This corporation is an international supplier of home and institutional health care products.

The Flexiflo Quantum pump—an enteral feeding pump used to feed patients intravenously—was donated by Ross Laboratories, which provides medical nutritional products. It is valued at $1,150. Through use of the pump, nursing students will learn how to operate the feeding pump, monitor its flow and administer nutritional substances through it.

Healthcare facilities in the communities of Roseau, Crookston, Bemidji, Park Rapids and Thief River Falls also play an important and active role in nursing education, according to Deb Filer, director of nursing at NCTC. As educational partners, they provide the student nurses with hands-on clinical experience.

Northland offers a diploma in Practical Nursing, an associate degree in Registered Nursing and an 84-hour nursing assistant course each quarter. Upon completion of the latter course, students may take the Nursing Assistant Registry exam.

Johnston herd leads DHIA during April

Dairy herd of Todd and Jay Johnston led the Red Lake-Pennington Dairy Herd Improvement Association for the month of April, according to supervisors Melvin, Randy and Margaret Rasmussen.

Eighteen herds were listed in the top 15 for the month as there was a four-way tie for the final place on the list.

The Johnston herd of 68 cows was 90 percent in milk and had average production of 71 pounds of milk, 2.7 pounds of butterfat and 2.3 pounds of protein.

A close second was the herd of Tom and Diane Kolstoe. Ninety-five percent of the 43 cows were in milk and the herd averaged 71 pounds of milk, 2.6 pounds of butterfat and 2.2 pounds of protein.

Lyle Swanson herd was in third place with 93 percent of the 44 cows in milk and averaging 71 pounds of milk, 2.4 pounds of butterfat and 2.3 pounds of protein.

Other herds in the top 15 were as follows with number of cows, percentage in milk, and average pounds of milk, butterfat and protein listed respectively:

Northwest Agricultural Experiment Station (large cows), 50, 94%, 70, 2.7 and 2.3; Richard Dummer, 88, 86%, 70, 2.2 and 2.2; Northwest Agricultural Experiment Station (small cows), 59, 95%, 69, 2.5 and 2.3; and Mark Hanson, 50, 88%, 65, 2.0 and 2.0;

Also Tom Willett, 45, 87%, 64, 2.2 and 2.0; Arnie and Barb Schmitz, 38, 92%, 62, 2.1 and 1.9; Mylo Carlson, 72, 81%, 60, 2.1 and 1.9; Goodvue Ayr Farms II, 47, 91%, 59, 2.1 and 1.9; Warren Malwitz Dairy, 113, 91%, 59, 2.0 and 1.8; and Walter Bros. Farm, 168, 83%, 58, 2.2 and 1.9;

Also Mark Lehmann, 41, 83%, 58, 2.0 and 1.7; and (four-way tie) Wayne Vettleson, 139, 86%, 56, 2.1 and 1.9; Leonard and Marge Geske, 45, 87%, 56, 2.1 and 1.7; Greg Zak, 70, 93%, 56, 2.0 and 1.7; and Gary and Grant Gullekson, 57, 88%, 56, 1.9 and 1.7.

Monthly averages are calculated on the entire herd of each member, including dry cows, to give the dairyman a record of the herd's earning power for the month. The number of dry cows adversely affects the overall herd average.

Johnson, Eriksen win AAUW student writing competition

Heidi Johnson won first place and Jenni Eriksen won second in the student writing contest recently conducted by the Thief River Falls branch of the American Association of University Women.

Theme of the contest was "Women in Government: Working to Make A Difference." Both girls are members of the 1997 graduating class at Lincoln high school.

Heidi is the daughter of Dr. Peter and Judy Johnson and wrote her entry about Supreme Court Justice Sandra Day O'Connor. She received a $50 first prize donated by Northern State Bank and her essay was submitted for statewide judging by the Minnesota AAUW.

Jenni is the daughter of Bradley and Janelle Eriksen and wrote her essay on Eleanor Roosevelt. She received a $25 award from Northern State Bank.

Two other seniors at Lincoln received honorable mention. Steph Wold wrote about Margaret Thatcher and Tinesha Porter wrote about Golda Meir. All of the winners are students of Loiell Dyrud at Lincoln.

Criteria for judging essays included research that shows sufficient breadth of inquiry, clarity of thought and a style that is lively and concise. AAUW promotes equity for all women and girls, lifelong education and positive societal change.

Heidi Johnson's first place essay is being published in today's issue as a guest editorial. Jenni Eriksen's second place entry follows:

Eleanor Roosevelt
by Jenni Eriksen

"Nobody in our time has done more for the rights of men and women and children than Eleanor Roosevelt," writes Henry Steele Commager in Crusaders for Freedom. She was born on October 11, 1884. Her parents died when she was young, and she was raised by her grandmother. On March 17, 1905, she married Franklin D. Roosevelt.

Despite her unhappy childhood, Eleanor wrote in her diary, "I can feel it in me sometimes that I can do much more than I am doing and I mean to try 'til I do succeed."

She fought for equal rights, human rights and protection of the poor. Her motivation led her to become one of the most influential American women ever.

Eleanor Roosevelt first took interest in politics after her husband was paralyzed by poliomyelitis in 1921. Determined to be independent, she became involved in the League of Women Voters, the Woman's Trade Union League and the women's division of the Democratic Party.

Roosevelt always spoke out and urged women to vote and take part in their government. She also took part in many women's organizations that dealt with social legislation, learned to speak publicly, and wrote magazine articles on women's problems. She wrote almost sixty articles, three books, a daily newspaper column and a monthly magazine page. Even though she was paid for her work, she gave away all of the money.

Roosevelt's compassion for a young man at St. Elizabeth's led her to realize insanity was a prison. She begged for money to fix up the hospital. "We would not keep animals in such a shameful condition," (she said). Because of an investigation, Congress gave a large amount of money to St. Elizabeth's. Roosevelt was still unsatisfied. Later, a recreation room was added, books filled the shelves, a work program was started and volunteers worked with the patients. This was just the beginning of Roosevelt's influences.

Eleanor Roosevelt had extra concern for the underprivileged, education and racial relations. She gave beggars a card that offered a free meal at her home. During the Depression, Roosevelt sponsored a Works Project Administration that gave jobs to older women, and the National Youth Administration which allowed boys and girls to finish school and work part-time.

Teaching in a private school, she helped girls understand how people lived and how the government worked. In the South, Roosevelt became aware of the racial prejudice. She resigned from the Daughters of the American Revolution after the DAR didn't allow Marion Anderson to sing in Washington's Constitution Hall, and this was the impetus that drove Eleanor Roosevelt to improve the lives of many minority groups.

Eleanor Roosevelt fought for the rights of all humans. She was the key to writing and passing the Declaration of Human Rights, the first document clearly stating the things everyone should be entitled. In charge of Human Rights, she worked endlessly for peace. Roosevelt worked with the UN, and in 1952, New Jersey became the thirteenth state to have equal pay for men and women.

The twentieth century opened many doors to women where they had once been forbidden. Women artists, writers, scientists, actresses and athletes emerged. Among them was Helen Keller who proved intelligence exists in the world of the deaf and blind, and because of Roosevelt's influence many handicapped people were able to find fulfillment.

Roosevelt had many government occupations. While her husband was sick with polio, Roosevelt became her husband's political stand-in. Roosevelt also helped with the Red Cross during World War I. In 1928 she was director of women's activities for Alfred E. Smith in his political campaign. Roosevelt was Assistant Director of Civilian Defense in 1941-42. She was Chairman of the Human Rights commission of the U.N. Economic and Social Council.

In 1945 she was appointed U.S. delegate to the U.N. by President Harry S. Truman, resigned in 1952, but was reappointed by J.F.K. in 1961. After her husband's death, Roosevelt went on for seventeen more years of public service.

For her endless contributions, Eleanor Roosevelt became known as the First Lady of the United States, and later as the First Lady of the World. She influenced many people who had no hope.

"The poor, the oppressed, the sick, the physically handicapped, the unhappy—those were the ones to whom her loss would be greatest," wrote Robin McKown in Eleanor Roosevelt's World. Without her influence, opportunities would not be available to many people today."

Krize introduced as NCTC coach

Ted Krize, the new men's [illegible] basketball coach at Northland Community and Technical College, was introduced to the local media and a small gathering of students and staff at a Tuesday (May [illegible]) news conference in Thief River Falls.

The 26-year-old Krize was a member of the 1991 Minnesota Class A state basketball champion Chisholm squad who went on to play at St. John's University. He completed his graduate work recently at the University of St. Thomas.

Krize, who has worked at a number of basketball camps over the [illegible] five years and for the past two seasons served as a scout for St. John's, will be making his coaching debut at Northland, where he succeeds Mark Dannhoff. Krize will be an english/literature instructor at the school.

"I'm real pleased to be here," Krize told the audience in his first Thief River Falls public appearance. "[illegible] I'm looking forward to [illegible] and coaching here. It's [illegible] a lot of fun."

[illegible] was 10-12 last year [illegible] Dannhoff, who stepped down [illegible] the season after five [illegible] the post to seek an assistant [illegible] job at a four year school. [illegible] the 12 players on the 1996-[illegible] squad were freshmen, but it's not [illegible] how many of those will be [illegible].

"[illegible] have some good players [illegible]," said Krize in assessing [illegible] projected class of [illegible] 15 sophomores. "I think we [illegible] have a good season."

[illegible] a coach this late in the [illegible] puts the Pioneers at a disadvantage in the recruiting process, [illegible] Krize. "First thing you do [illegible] known I'm here," he said. [illegible] northwestern Minnesota [illegible] emphasized, according to Krize. "We will try to stay regional," he [illegible].

On the court, the Pioneers' new coach plans to be a stickler on defense. "We'll play aggressive man-to-man defense," he said in response to a question concerning his preferred style of play. "I recognize the need to put points on the board to win," he added. "We'll try to put together a hybrid defense and offense that should make for exciting basketball."

Krize comes from a basketball family that includes all-state high school honors for him and a sister. His father, Dennis, is an assistant coach at Chisholm under legendary Bob McDonald.

Paul McDonald, the head men's basketball coach at Vermilion Community College and a long time friend, was instrumental in getting Krize to take the Northland position.

"It (the Minnesota Community College Conference) is a competitive league," noted Krize. "We want to be competitive, and we want to have some fun."

"They ran and threw well," said Thief River Falls coach Tim Olson. "They did a nice job."

The 5:25 turned in by Mooney was two seconds off her personal-best, but she was in control of the race from start to finish, winning by 10 to 15 meters, pointed out Olson.

Kopari set school records while winning the shot with a 39-4 throw and the discus with a 130-9 toss.

Thieves open 1997 baseball schedule

Glyndon-Felton swept Thief River Falls 11-0 and 22-7 Saturday afternoon in an amateur baseball doubleheader at Irv Wilson Field.

It was the 1997 season debut for the Thieves, who were no-hit by Glyndon-Felton righthander [illegible] Lang in the opener. Jason [illegible] hit a two-run home run for the winners, grabbed a 3-0 third inning lead to kick off a 10-hit attack.

Aaron Chaput was the losing pitcher in Game 1.

Thief River Falls put together an offense in Game 2, but it still paled in comparison to the barrage that came from the Glyndon-Felton bats.

After spotting Glyndon-Felton a 1-0 lead in the top of the first, the Thieves came up with a three-run home run by Chris Nelson in their first at-bat.

But Glyndon-Felton erupted big time in the second inning, sending 22 men to the plate in a head-shaking 17-run assault that included 12 hits, four walks and two errors.

Rob Karr had three hits in the Glyndon-Felton second inning march to the plate, with Lang and Mark Kragnes both picking up two hits that inning. Loeseh went [illegible]-for-5 with a home run. Brannon Wiegel also homered.

For the Thieves, Nelson and Mitch Bernstein had two hits each. Bernstein was the losing pitcher. [illegible] Bachman was the winner.

The current 18-game regular season schedule (which could be expanded with the addition of games against Bemidji or Fargo) will be followed by July 25-27 league playoffs and Aug. 1-3 district tournament play. Thief River Falls' regular season schedule features nine home and nine road games, with eight games planned on Saturdays or Sundays, and 10 games slated to be played on week nights.

Broten is named as most valuable on tennis squad

Jacob Broten was named the most valuable player on the 1997 Thief River Falls boys high school tennis team. Post-season honors and athletic letters were presented recently by Prowlers coach Kim Maidment.

Matt Winjum was selected as the team's most improved player and Jeremy Treitline was voted hardest worker.

Andy Janisch and Tom Fogarty were named co-captains of the 1998 Prowlers.

Athletic letters went to seniors Matt Gustafson, Brock Walseth, Broten, and Treitline, sophomores Darin Bjerknes, Allen Bolar, Josh Cahalan, Fogarty, Janisch, and Winjum, freshmen Dailey Nordin and Shane Peterson, along with eighth grader Joe Broten.

Bud Ice wins TRF Lake Agassiz title

Trophies went to the top four finishers, plus the consolation champion, during Sunday's annual Lake Agassiz Invitational men's slow pitch softball tournament played in Thief River Falls.

Bud Ice defeated Amoco 24/Cellular 2000/Pizza Hut 10-6 in the title game; Danny's Pizza downed Baker's Auto Salvage 12-7 in the third place contest; and Kandiyohi stopped Budget/Star Tribune 10-6 for consolation honors.

Tech tops Alex twice

St. Cloud Tech swept Alexandria 8-5 and 6-3 in the finals of the 1997 Section 8AA high school softball tournament.

The best-of-three state tournament-qualifying series matched the North and South Sub-Section 8AA winners in a doubleheader at Alexandria that was played Wednesday and Thursday.

Experimental Fish Regulations

Anglers who intend to wet a line in their favorite fishing hole this year should first cast an eye into Minnesota's fishing regulations booklet to ensure that catch and size limit regulations remain the same.

New experimental and special fishing regulations, which differ from statewide regulations, take effect at more than 20 different lakes and rivers this fishing season. The purpose of these regulations is to improve the quality of fishing by providing anglers with more larger fish. In addition to these newly designated waters, existing experimental and special regulations have been modified on several other lakes and rivers.

Angler compliance is the key to success of the new regulations. These regulations are unlikely to produce bigger fish if anglers don't release the ones they are supposed to said Tim Goeman, DNR research biologist in charge of evaluating experimental regulations. The DNR has created special rulers for many of the experimental regulation lakes to help anglers comply with the new laws. The rulers, which can be adhered anywhere inside an angler's boat, show which size fish can be kept and which size fish must be released. The rulers are available from local DNR fisheries offices and bait shops.

New experimental and special regulations for 1997 in northwestern Minnesota cover northern pike in the Rainy, Warroad, Baudette and Winter Road rivers (Lake of the Woods, Roseau, Koochiching counties, where the possession limit is three, with not more than one over 40 inches. All from 30 inches through 40 inches must be immediately returned to the water. The expanded regulation will include all of Rainy River by adding Koochiching County.

For more information, contact Henry Drewes, DNR Fisheries, (612) 297-3287.

Save A Walleye

Anglers who catch-and-release walleye can do themselves and their catch a favor by simply cutting the line when the hook is deep within the fish.

Most walleye survive after being caught and released. However, mortality is higher when hooks are deep within a walleye's throat and anglers remove them.

"Usually, you can save a walleye for the cost of a hook and a few inches of line," said Henry Drewes, Department of Natural Resources fisheries biologist. "The hook will be dissolved by the same acids that dissolve minnows, small fish, and other things that walleyes swallow."

Drewes said the "clip the line" advice will have practical implications at Lake Mille Lacs this year, where a new 15-inch minimum size limit is in effect.

"If the hook is in the fish's lip or roof of the mouth, definitely remove it," said Drewes. "But if the fish inhaled the hook deeply, just snip the line. Usually, the fish will be just fine."

The DNR conducted an extensive walleye hooking mortality study during the late 1980s. The mortality of walleye caught and released by anglers averaged 5 percent though some evidence suggested it may be somewhat higher. Mortality of walleye caught on leeches was the highest at 10 percent. Mortality for walleye caught on artificial lures was zero. Mortality for walleye caught on nightcrawlers, minnows and other live bait was between these two percentages.

Anglers who catch and release fish are encouraged to:

- Play the fish quickly
- Hold the fish firmly but gently
- Use a needlenose pliers to remove hooks
- Use brass hooks rather than stainless steel, which rust more slowly
- Gently slide the fish into water
- Unless required by law, don't release a fish that can't right itself and bobs back to the surface or that is bleeding profusely.

Water Accesses

Minnesota harsh winter and spring flooding took a toll on public accesses to the state's lakes and rivers. Department of Natural Resources employees are working hard to undo that damage. That can be a challenge, noted Mike Markell of the DNR Trails and Waterways Unit.

"Winter often leaves its mark, especially on the launch ramps, which can be damaged due to ice action on lakes," Markell explained. "Trails and Waterways crews reset the launch ramps, most of which are concrete planks, to their original grade."

In flooded areas such as the Red River, Minnesota River and St. Croix River, ramps might not be ready by the opener, Markell said. "And boating might not be advised on parts of those rivers," he added. "Boaters should check with the local DNR Trails and Waterways office before they set in on those waters."

"With 1,525 state public accesses to get ready, this is no small job," Markell said. "It's a good idea to check the ramp before you launch to be sure the ramp is ready, especially if you are unfamiliar with the site."

Public access maps are available from the DNR Information Center by calling toll free in Greater Minnesota, 1-800-766-6000.

Nuisance Goose Problems

Soaring temperatures herald the return of one of Minnesota's more regal snowbirds: our resident population of Canada geese. Once thought extinct, the "giant" subspecies, as these are known to scientists, are now the most numerous subspecies of Canada geese on the continent. In Minnesota, the breeding flock has grown more than 10-fold in two decades to over 200,000. It's one of Minnesota's major wildlife management success stories.

To get a copy of a Department of Natural Resources brochure concerning the goose problem, call 1-800-766-6000.

TRF Swim Club has week-long camp for grades 1-through-5

Fifty-five first-through-fifth graders participated in the annual Thief River Falls Swim Club sponsored elementary swim camp completed recently.

Led by Lincoln High School head swimming coach Brian Olson, camp participants were given instructions in the four basic strokes, starts and turns. A swim meet "for fun" was held at the close of the week.

Thief River Falls Swim Club summer program began May 27, with sessions scheduled from 3:30 to 5 p.m. Interested swimmers of all ages are encouraged to stop by the Franklin Middle School pool to register for the program. Registration fee is $40.

Tunheim says legislative session good to farmers

Minnesota's 1997 legislative session was very productive for farmers, according to Rep. Jim Tunheim of Kennedy.

Rep. Tunheim authored two funding programs—a $1.6 million research grant to the University of Minnesota for continued research on wheat and barley diseases, primarily head scab, and $100,000 for turf seed producers in Roseau and Lake of the Woods counties to develop new varieties of grass.

Other agriculture-related legislation approved during the session was listed by Rep. Tunheim as follows:

- Farm equipment sales tax exemption: The sales tax exemption for used farm equipment was made permanent this year. In addition, the exemption will be extended to new farm equipment starting this summer and phased in over two years.
- Farm fuel tax exemption: Bulk deliveries of fuel for off-road uses will be exempt from fuel taxes under new legislation. This spares farmers the problem of paying the tax and then having to file for a refund.
- Farm preservation: Efforts to help families stay on the land include $100,000 for the Passing On The Farm Center, $300,000 for agriculture information centers and $403,000 for family farm advocates.
- Vo-ag education: A new effort to improve vocational agriculture education is launched with creation of a Minnesota Agriculture Education Leadership Council and a Center for Agricultural Education.
- RIM: The legislature appropriated $4.78 million for the Reinvest in Minnesota (RIM) Reserve Program and general purpose grants. The Legislative Commission on Minnesota Resources (LCMR) devoted more than $1.8 million of lottery and cigarette tax funds for RIM Critical Habitat and Wildlife Acquisition programs.
- Conservation projects: The Board of Water and Soil Resources (BWSR) is given more than $20 million for conservation, including $10.7 million for natural resources block grants; $5.6 million to soil and water conservation districts for general purposes and the conservation reserve program; and $4.24 million for cost-sharing contracts for erosion control and water management.
- Value added agricultural livestock processing and marketing grant program: A new program to help farmers finance new cooperatives that organize for the purposes of operating livestock and dairy processing facilities and for marketing activities related to the sale and distribution of processed livestock and dairy products.

"I appreciate all the letters, calls, e-mail messages and visits I received this session," Rep. Tunheim said. "Input from constituents is very important to me. Sincere sympathy is extended to the families of Malcolm Stucy who unexpectedly passed away Friday evening, April 25. Funeral services were held at Oak Park Lutheran Church, rural Oklee, on Tuesday, April 29, with Rev. Daniel Fugstad officiating. Green Funeral Home of Thief River Falls was in charge of the arrangements. Burial was at Oak Park Cemetery. Mac will be missed by his many friends in Oak Park.

The River Valley/Star Homemakers Spring Tea was held on Friday, May 2 at Oak Park Church dining hall. Over thirty people had the opportunity to meet Eric Borgeson of Borgeson Nursery, rural Fertile, who was the featured speaker. With his unique wit and humor, Eric gave an excellent presentation and slide show of the new and beautiful gardens of Borgeson Nursery. Eric is also the author of the much talked-about book, "Down on the Farm." Highly recommended reading for this area!

Roman and Eliano Radniecki, formerly of Staples and Oklee's newest residents, stopped by for a too-brief visit at the Kim Chervestad home Sunday. I understand that they, too, will have a wooden basement under their new Vandele custom home in Oklee, with Gene Kalinoski as the contractor. No doubt they will be very happy with their decision to have a wooden basement.

DAIRY DAY

Wednesday, June 4, 1997 – Supplement To The Times

48th Annual Northwest Dairy Day is June 10th

Region I Dairy Princess Rachel Klopp welcomes everyone to Thief River Falls for Northwest Dairy Day Tuesday, June 10

Forty-eighth annual Northwest Dairy Day will take place Tuesday, June 10, at the Pennington county fairgrounds in Thief River Falls, beginning with a pancake breakfast to be served from 7:30 to 10 a.m. in the curling club building.

The breakfast is sponsored by the Pennington Red Lake division of the American Dairy Association of Minnesota and everyone is invited to attend. Support for the breakfast is provided by Bridgeman Creameries, Hugo's, SuperValu and Hartz Foods, Inc. Cost of the breakfast is $2.

Because the number of entries in the dairy cattle show continues to decline with reduction of dairy herd numbers in the region and the Region 1 Dairy Princess contest will not be held in connection with Northwest Dairy Day this year, several changes have been made in the schedule of events for the day.

Registration of entries for the dairy cattle show will start a half hour later than previously at 8 a.m.

Showmanship demonstration by Kelly Fulton of Warren, 1996 senior showmanship champion at Northwest Dairy Day, will take place at 10:30 a.m. This demonstration will be followed immediately by junior and senior showmanship competition for 1997.

Judging of the dairy show will start at 11 a.m. with Howard Person, Pennington county extension educator and president of the sponsoring Northwest Dairy Improvement Association, serving as livestock show supervisor. Judging the show this year will be Andy Paulson of Atwater. The public is encouraged to stop by the fairgrounds to watch the judging take place.

Although the Region 1 Dairy Princess contest will take place June 27 and 28 in Mahnomen instead of at Northwest Dairy Day this year, there will be dairy royalty on hand for the 48th annual event.

Special guests will be Kristi Ann Pettis of Winthrop, reigning as the 43rd Princess Kay of the Milky Way, and Rachel Klopp of Karlstad, selected at Northwest Dairy Day last year as Region 1 Dairy Princess. Rachel was the first Kittson county entrant in the 47 years of Northwest Dairy Day to win the regional crown.

Kristi and Rachel are expected to be on hand to meet the public at the pancake breakfast, visit the dairy show and assist with distribution of awards at the awards presentation scheduled for 2:30 p.m.

Major awards to be recognized in addition to classes within each of the dairy breeds represented include junior and senior showmanship, best uddered cow, grand champion grade and purebred over all breeds, overall show champion, Hamre individual dairy herd award, Klem Gigstad county herd award, junior champion plaque, trophy awards for 10 years of Dairy Day showing and the Stuart McLeod Award in memory of one of the founders and longtime president of the Northwest Dairy Improvement Association.

Ten-year awards will go to Kelly Fulton of Warren and Brian Grunhovd of Gary.

Once again this year most of the entries in the dairy show are Holsteins, although there are entries in the Ayrshire, Brown Swiss and Guernsey breeds as well. For the first time there are no Jersey entries in the show.

Northwest Dairy Day is conducted for Region 1 of the Minnesota American Dairy Association and includes the counties of Kittson, Roseau, Lake of the Woods, Polk, Beltrami, Marshall, Pennington, Red Lake, Norman, Mahnomen, Clearwater, Clay, Wadena, Becker, Cass and Hubbard.

Kelly Fulton, Warren, reigns as Marshall County Dairy Princess

Trophies, plaques and ribbons won by Kelly Fulton in dairy and horse show competition cover the walls of the rural Warren girl's home. Kelly is the reigning Marshall County Dairy Princess and will be showing cattle for the 10th year at Northwest Dairy Day June 10.

by Marvin Lundin
Times Editor

If the truth be known, Kelly Fulton would not be the Marshall County Dairy Princess if the contest were held at Northwest Dairy Day in Thief River Falls this year.

"No way," she said flatly. "I'd be showing my cows."

There have been Region I Princess candidates before who had cattle entered in the Dairy Day cattle show. Rules provide that the candidates can have others—friends or family members—show their animals for them.

For Kelly, however, that arrangement just wouldn't do. She is first and foremost a cattle showman, and this princess stuff—although fun and a little exciting—would take a back seat to defending her senior showmanship title in the show ring June 10.

Didn't Have To Make A Choice

As luck would have it, however, Kelly didn't have to make that choice. The Region 1 princess contest is being held in Mahnomen this year on Saturday, June 28. There is also a get-together and activities for the contestants Friday evening, June 27.

Every other year the contest alternates between Northwest Dairy Day in Thief River Falls and a site further south in the sprawling 17-county American Dairy Association Region 1. That rotation was interrupted a year ago when Thief River Falls was permitted a second successive regional contest in observance of the city's centennial celebration.

Since there is no conflict in dates of the two events, Kelly can make it to the show ring and the royal party as well.

Twice Champion Showmen

Although she will have shown cattle at Northwest Dairy Day for the 10th year this year, she never won a junior showmanship title. She has captured two senior showmanship awards, however, and was reserve champion once. At the Red River Valley Winter Shows in Crookston she has captured four dairy showmanship titles.

She has shown her cattle at the Minnesota State Fair 4-H show seven years and been at the halter of show and sale animals for other exhibitors and consigners at the Minnesota State Holstein Show and the International Dairy Expo in

Mother and daughter are these two cows on the Don and Rosa Fulton farm at Warren. Kelly Fulton, Marshall County Dairy Princess, showed the 11-year-old at right three years, winning grand champion grade honors in 1994 and 1995 and senior showmanship in 1996.

Kelly Fulton, Marshall County Dairy Princess, will be able to compete in the regional princess contest and show cattle at Northwest Dairy Day this year because the events are separate. Dairy Day will take place June 10 in Thief River Falls and the regional princess contest on June 28 in Mahnomen. One of Kelly's animals coming to Dairy Day is this junior yearling, a registered Holstein named "K-Anders Emory Rudie." Kelly also showed this animal at the livestock show in the Winter Shows building in Crookston this spring.

Madison, WI. They included local area dairymen Dilo Rupprecht, Jerry Muzzy, Lyle Swanson and Lowell and William Peterson, and well known Holstein breeders Sonny Brutel and Bruce Winters.

Shows Despite Knee Injury

Her showing at Northwest Dairy Day this year will be in spite of a knee injury and re-injury that will require several future surgeries.

Kelly said she "blew out" the knee in the last regular season game of the 1995-96 basketball season. She didn't know how serious the injury was and wanted to go back in the game, but the knee wouldn't support her. Later she learned she had torn all the ligaments and one tendon. She underwent surgery in March and spent three months on crutches.

She had been off the crutches only a few weeks when the 1996 Dairy Day came around. All she did was win senior showmanship honors, have three of her animals in the five-animal county herd and show the reserve champion best uddered cow.

Then, at the Marshall County Fair in Warren, she fell while putting ribbons up by her animals and re-injured the knee.

Veteran Cow Stays Home

Kelly has her work cut out for her this year, as she will not be showing the veteran cow which is now an 11-year-old and twice won Grand Champion Grade honors over all breeds. This year she will bring a three-year-old, two-year-old and junior yearling to Northwest Dairy Day.

Crown and banner of Marshall County Dairy Princess will be worn in Region I competition at Mahnomen Saturday, June 28. Prior to that event, however, she will be busy showing dairy cattle for the 10th year at Northwest Dairy Day in Thief River Falls.

For her first grade championship of the show at Dairy Day she received a registered calf at the next year's show. She also won a calf at the Winter Shows. Kelly now owns 10 head of cattle, all registered Holsteins, three of which are of milking age (a four-year-old and two two-year-olds) and are on DHIA test with the Mylo Carlson herd at Angus. Kelly has worked at the Carlson farm since last September, feeding calves and doing the milking once a day on school days and twice a day on weekends.

Plans Veterinary Career

From assisting Dr. Lyle Mattson of Greenbush with his veterinary work at the Fulton farm, Kelly has developed an interest in that field. She graduated from Warren/Alvarado/Oslo high school this spring and will start classes at the University of Minnesota in Crookston this fall with plans to become a veterinarian.

She handles the breeding and health records for the Fulton herd as well as the birth date registry and AI sire selection. Kelly inspects the cows in the herd to determine any weaknesses, then selects a sire that is strong in the area(s) where the cow is weak. The objective is to produce offspring with improved characteristics.

10 Years Of 4-H Experience

For 10 years Kelly has been a member of the McCrea 4-H club, carrying the dairy project every year. Some of her other project areas have included veterinary, rabbit, beef, arts and crafts, dairy management and horse. Last year she won a trip to the National 4-H Dairy Conference through a written test and interview on dairy knowledge at the Minnesota State Fair.

Kelly Loves Horses, Too

A lover of horses as well as dairy cattle, Kelly has competed in horse shows since she was five years old, showing at halter and competing in games. Her 14-year-old quarter horse, Miss Candy Pass, presented Kelly with a black colt on Sunday, May 25. She also owns two other horses.

Training horses is one of Kelly's hobbies. She also likes to teach youngsters to ride, and though the horse club has taught both Western and English Pleasure riding.

Kelly is the daughter of Don and Rose Fulton. Rose is a younger sister of Lowell and William Peterson of Plummer and a former Dairy Day participant.

Horses, along with dairy cattle, are favorite animals of Kelly Fulton of rural Warren. This 14-year-old quarterhorse mare presented Kelly with a black colt Sunday, May 25.

Calf feeding is one of the regular duties of Kelly Fulton of Warren, Marshall County Dairy Princess.

Rachel Klopp of Karlstad is Region 1 Dairy Princess

"Got milk? You Bet!" proclaims the message on the pitcher Region 1 Dairy Princess Rachel Klopp is using to serve this necessary beverage to several of the men in her life. From left are her boyfriend, Ken Forsberg of Wayzata, and her brothers Steven and Philip.

Among the items Rachel Klopp has received during her reign as Region 1 Dairy Princess are the silver butter dish and ice cream scoop, figurines from 1995-96 Princess Kay Kim Mallory and luggage from the Northwest Dairy Improvement Association. Rachel is reading thank-you notes from Karlstad elementary school children after she visited their classes to present an educational dairy program on "Milk: From Cow To You."

by Marvin Luedin
Times Editor

For Rachel Klopp of Karlstad, the past year has been a bit of a whirlwind with her role of Region I Dairy Princess added to a normally busy schedule of college classes, work while at college and helping out at home during the summer months.

Rachel received the Region I title at Northwest Dairy Day in Thief River Falls last June 11, succeeding Natalie Foltz of Becker county. In doing so she created a niche in Dairy Day history by being the first Kittson county entry to win the regional title since the contest began in 1955.

Rachel Has A Twin Sister

The daughter of Dennis and Debbie Klopp of Karlstad, she is a 1995 graduate of Heritage Christian School in Karlstad and has a twin sister, Renae. The twins are just completing their second year at Northwestern College in St. Paul where both are majoring in education.

This year the Region I princess contest will be held June 28 in Mahnomen. Rachel will attend the festivities the previous evening but will be unable to attend the coronation program June 28 because of a long-standing prior commitment. She is preparing a video which can be used at the coronation in her absence.

Plans Dairy Day Appearances

She has cleared her schedule to be present at the 48th annual Northwest Dairy Day in Thief River River Falls Tuesday, June 10, and will greet the public and assist with awards presentations along with Princess Kay of the Milky Way, Kristi Ann Pettis of Winthrop. Rachel was a contestant at the state Princess Kay contest at the 1996 Minnesota State Fair last August where Kristi was crowned.

Like many young women who earn crowns of community or promotional sponsors, Rachel participated in a number of parades as Region I Dairy Princess. There were three parades at the state fairgrounds in St. Paul during the week she spent there.

She also participated in parades at An American Festival in Thief River Falls and celebrations in Greenbush, Karlstad and Lake Bronson.

Assists At County Fairs

She also participated at county fairs in Warren, Hallock, Baudette and Roseau to present awards during dairy and other livestock judging and to assist in serving dairy products at food booths sponsored by county units of the American Dairy Association of Minnesota, sponsor of the Princess Kay program. In a special appearance in Grygla she served dairy products at the bank, restaurant and grocery store.

"Milk: From Cow To You"

One of her favorite projects has been presentation of "Milk: From Cow To You," an educational program for school students. Rachel has presented the program at schools in Grygla, Goodridge and the public schools and Heritage Christian school in Karlstad.

"I like doing the school talks because I think it is so important that young people know about milk and milk products," she said. "We sometimes think that all children in our rural areas are already familiar with dairying, but I found out that many of them are not.

"They are very interested in seeing what a cow eats—I take along samples of hay and mixed rations—learning how much feed and water it takes each day to keep a cow producing milk, and how the milk is handled from the time it comes from the cow until it reaches their homes. The students ask some very good questions, too."

As Region I Princess she made radio commercials for a Bemidji station, videos for the American Dairy Association during the State Fair and radio commercials for KARE 11. She served milk during a radio station anniversary program at the gazebo in Floyd B. Olson park in Thief River Falls and took part in several radio interviews.

On June 7 she is scheduled to make an appearance at a program for the Roseau county dairy princess candidates where she will talk and present a demonstration. She expects June to be a busy month since she will not give up her crown until the month is nearly gone.

State Fair Was Fun

Rachel said that the week spent at the State Fair was a lot of fun. Like all regional princesses, she had her likeness sculpted in butter at the State Fair and agreed that the finished product was recognizeable.

She enjoyed meeting the public at various events during the fair and even serving ice cream in the dairy building.

Twins Active In Sports

At college she and Renae both play soccer and are involved with intramural volleyball, basketball and softball. Rachel works with a day care center on campus and is also employed evenings and weekends at an Olive Garden restaurant near campus.

Both of the twins are involved with aerobics and working out with weights, and they usually run about four miles every other day, both at school and when they are home at the farm. With school classes ending just last week, they will both be working on the farm this summer.

Herd Cut To 50 Cows

Because the Klopp children have either married and left home or are away at school—the twins are the youngest in the family—Dennis and Debbie have cut down the size of their milking herd to about 50 cows. While the girls were still attending school in Karlstad and available to help with the cattle, the herd once numbered about 100 head.

Rachel likes sports and was a member of the Heritage school volleyball team which won six straight state Accelerated Christian Education (ACE) tournaments from her seventh through 12th grade years. She was named most valuable player in volleyball, basketball and soccer and even placed third in the state ACE tennis competition.

She played flute in the school band, sang in solo, duet and trio competition and participated in speech and drama.

Promotes Dairy To Children

"I'm really interested in promoting the dairy industry to younger children," she said. "Sure, dairying is a lot of work, but I can truly say I enjoy it, especially working with the calves. That is a lot of fun. And the dairy industry makes a big economic contribution to the state's agricultural economy."

When Rachel gives up her regional crown to the 1997 Region I Princess, she doesn't intend to give up her ability to promote dairy with it.

"I am and always will be a true ambassador for the dairy industry," she said. "I wish my successor the very best and I will always be proud to be a dairy farmer's daughter."

Twins Rachel (left) and Renee Klopp offer a dairy toast to June Dairy Month with mugs of healthful milk. Rachel was crowned Region 1 Dairy Princess at Northwest Dairy Day in Thief River Falls last year during the city's centennial year.

One thing dairy farmers' daughters sometimes have to do is get in on the manure spreading duties. Rachel Klopp, Region 1 Dairy Princess from Karlstad, knows all about those duties.

Dairy farmers and their families who live and work in our community deserve our thanks. They help our community remain stable and healthy. We congratulate them during June Dairy Month and thank them for their contributions.

Rachel (left) and Renee Klopp, the youngest in the Dennis and Debbie Klopp family of rural Karlstad, have returned home from their second year at Northwestern Bible College in St. Paul to help their parents on the farm this summer. They are both enrolled in the education major at Northwestern and take all the same classes.

Cattle in loose housing on the Klopp dairy farm near Karlstad have feed in front of them at all times. Rachel Klopp, Region 1 Dairy Princess, pushes some of the feed back within reach of the cattle—a practice which takes place several times a day.

Athletic sisters Rachel (right) and Renae Klopp try to run four miles every other day and participate in weight training and aerobics whether in school or at home. The twins have completed their second year at Northwestern Bible College in St. Paul where they play soccer and participate in intramural volleyball, basketball and softball.

These humanized dairy cow figurines were given to Rachel Klopp, reigning Region 1 Dairy Princess, by 1995-96 Princess Key of the Milky Way, Kim Mallery of Shafer. Kim is also a student at Northwestern Bible College.

Minnesota's dairy industry is standing at the crossroads

(Reprinted with permission from "Minnesota Agriculture Today" a publication of the Minnesota Department of Agriculture.)

It's no secret that Minnesota's dairy industry has been losing farmers, farms and cows since the 1960s. But after a prolonged battle, there are finally some positive signs on the horizon. For the first time in years, new dairy barns are being built. Cow numbers seem to be stabilizing and the 1996 output set a new record high at 15,786 pounds per cow. The last legislative session saw the creation of dairy diagnostic teams to help struggling dairy farmers and the funding of a dairy development specialist position in the Minnesota Department of Agriculture (MDA).

Cow numbers level off

After years of decline, the number of cows in Minnesota appeared to stabilize in the last half of 1996. For months the number hovered at 600,000. The industry held its collective breath. Had the numbers finally bottomed out? Were we seeing the long-awaited turnaround? Then in October, cow numbers dropped another 5,000 and the number of farms decreased by more than 100—the biggest drop of the year. Despite this discouraging development, cow numbers again seemed to stabilize at the 595,000 figure.

New Trends in Dairy

Harold Stanislawski, who was recently hired as a dairy development specialist by MDA, sees a bright future for dairying in Minnesota. "We have a lot of exciting possibilities that are still in the development process," says Stanislawski. "I've been working with producers to help them maximize their profits. I've also been working with farmers to set up new dairies—many of them state-of-the-art operations."

Minnesota currently holds a 6% market share of the dairy industry. Stanislawski's goal is to recapture the 7.5% market share we enjoyed in 1980. "In the process," says Stanislawski, "we will be improving the lives of dairy producers and revitalizing Minnesota's economy."

Minnesota needs 59,000 more cows

In order to bring new life to the dairy industry, we need to see a substantial increase in the number of cows.

Results of a dairy survey conducted in January and February of 1996 show that dairy plants throughout the Tri-State Area of Minnesota, South Dakota and North Dakota are operating, on average, at 85% of capacity. These figures are cause for concern in the dairy industry. In Minnesota, we need 59,000 more cows to keep our plants running at full capacity.

Unprofitable plants will go out of business or will be forced to seek a milk supply from outside the immediate area. Resulting transportation costs will reduce the competitive advantage for dairy plants located in our state. Ultimately, our dairy infrastructure is at a risk if milk production continues to decline.

Minnesota Department of Agriculture Commissioner Gene Hugoson is concerned. "Our dairy processing plants are an important source of jobs and income throughout the state," says Hugoson. "We must retain them and, in order to do so, we must concentrate on making dairying a profitable enterprise so young people will want to enter the business and current producers can make a decent living."

Our strategy for increasing cow numbers includes working with existing dairy farmers, bringing new Minnesota people into the business and bringing new people into the state.

Dairy Diagnostic Teams

The last legislative session provided $150,000 to establish dairy diagnostic teams throughout the state. Teams are composed of business management instructors, dairy extension specialists and dairy industry partners. In addition, there will be hundreds of volunteers from across the state including veterinarians, feed consultants, bankers, extension educators and accountants. They will assist selected dairy farmers with herd health, manure management, permits and profitability. The Governor has requested an additional $1million in his supplemental budget to expand this effort.

Minnesota dairy farmers have found a number of ways to be more profitable.

More cows. Some dairy farmers have found that increasing the number of cows but keeping overhead low can be the key to profitability. Well ventilated, comfortable barns that are full of cows will weather many "price storms" if the cows are healthy and milking well.

Limiting investment. Because farmers have so little control over the prices they are paid for milk, it is particularly important for them to control expenses—from the cost of barns and milking parlors to the cost of cattle and feed. Many farmers have found savings by forming alliances to purchase their feed and equipment.

Becoming more efficient. Some farms are purchasing feed rather than growing it, which allows them to focus on their primary goal—milk production. They are also replacing tower silos with bunker silos which tend to be more efficient for both filling and feeding.

Tri-State Initiative

In the summer of 1995, the states of Minnesota, South Dakota and North Dakota developed the Tri-State Dairy Initiative to promote the three states' many assets for dairying: abundant water, plentiful feed and forage and economical land.

Positive Thinking

There is a strong positive feeling that the tide is turning for Minnesota's dairy industry. Production and price differences between various regions of the U.S. are narrowing and Minnesota has many natural amenities that make it particularly well suited to dairy farming. Many Minnesota dairymen predict that we will be living in the top dairy-producing region of the U.S. within the next 5-10 years.

One-third of milk made into cheese

- Today almost one-third of all milk produced each year in the U.S. is used to manufacture cheese.
- More than 200 U.S.-produced cheeses are available in your grocer's dairy section. From mild Baby Swiss to tangy Colby, there's a cheesy flavor for everyone!
- The United States is the world's largest producer of cheese.
- Cheddar is the number one selling cheese. Supermarkets alone sold more than 350 million pounds of cheddar last year.
- Who's the cheesiest? Wisconsin produces 30% of America's cheese.
- Americans love cheese! Per capita, they eat more than 26 pounds of cheese a year.

Is it possible to find a way to save our small dairy farms?

by Dr. George Marx
Dairy Scientist, University of Minnesota—Crookston

In northern Minnesota, as well as the Midwest in general, we are losing our smaller dairy farms at a rapid rate. Many groups are concerned about this disappearance of the small dairy farm as it has an economic affect on our small towns, businesses and even churches.

Dairying has many advantages here in northern Minnesota both for the small and larger dairies. Our climate and soil conditions are ideal for growing forages which form the base of the cow's diet. Generally our feed costs are lower than in other areas of the country as we have many alternative by-product feeds available locally as well as our forages.

We have an excellent infrastructure that has been built up over the years including dairy processing plants, veterinarians, milking equipment service, feed dealers and various other supply and services needed by the dairymen. Our people have a strong work ethic and rich tradition of family farming. Even though we have had a tough winter, our climate is preferred by the dairy animals and they experience much less stress in our area than in warmer climates. Ideally the cow prefers a temperature of 45° F.

Low milk prices are sometimes used as the reason for the loss of these small farms, but when we compare to other areas of the United States, our milk prices in Minnesota are in the top 10-25% nationally. Most of the growing dairy areas in the west, especially California, receive considerably less than we do for milk. Some areas pay more, as in the southeast U.S., including Florida, but their dairy industry is declining.

The main reasons, according to some experts, for our disappearance of the small dairy farm are social factors and changing family lifestyles. Few people nowadays are willing to milk cows twice a day for 365 days without a breather. Dairy[illegible] workers but [illegible] out to work seven days [illegible] the cal[illegible].

In [illegible] labor to [illegible] commitment, [illegible] to expand the business [illegible] labor. Young [illegible] just start[illegible] do not have the cash flow to pay for everything necessary on a small farm so they have to produce the volume of milk necessary to pay the bills. In most current business, not only dairy, volume is the key to survival. Our industry is changing with fewer and larger farms. To hire another person on a dairy farm, it takes at least 60 more cows to pay the extra worker and related costs.

What's the best way to produce more milk per cow

by Dr. George Marx
Dairy Scientist, University of Minnesota—Crookston

The best and most efficient way to produce more milk per cow is to get the cow to eat more or increase her dry matter intake. A dairy cow utilizes the first feed consumed for her own maintenance; then will use additional feed for growth, if she is a young cow, for her calf, if pregnant; and what is left over, for milk production.

A general rule is that for each additional pound of dry matter intake, a cow will produce 2 to 2 1/2 pounds of milk. Here are some tips to try and encourage extra feed intake:

- Use palatable feed that is acceptable to the cow's palate or taste buds;
- Provide adequate clean, fresh water as milk is only 13% dry matter;
- Push feed in front of cow frequently, especially in a stall barn.
- Keep feed in front of cow or allow access to feed at least 20 hours per day.
- Clean mangers and bunks daily to prevent any feed spoilage;
- Provide at least two feet of bunk space per milking cow;
- Have two feeding groups for higher producers and lower producers;
- Dry matter of the feed should be no lower than 50%.

In addition, the ration must be balanced to provide the animals' needs for protein, energy, mineral and vitamin requirements. Quality of feed is also important as the space in the rumen is limited. A rumen filled with poor quality feed will take longer to digest as well as contain less nutrients for milk production.

Corn gluten feed is now available for dairy animals

by Dr. George Marx
Dairy Scientist, University of Minnesota—Crookston

Corn Gluten Feed (CGF) is the major by-product or co-product of the wet milling process for corn, after the extraction of oil and starch. This material is sold both as a wet or dry product and is an excellent feed for the ruminant animal, including lactating dairy cows. Corn gluten meal is similar to corn gluten feed but does not include corn bran. The meal is higher in energy and protein and lower in fiber and minerals.

Protein content of corn gluten feed is variable (20-24%) and the feed should be purchased on protein content if used as a supplement and when it has an economical advantage. CGF is best utilized in total mixed rations as part (25-30% maximum) of the total ingredients or 50% maximum of the concentrate for optimum palatability, intake and milk production.

This feed is low in calcium and must be properly supplemented. Phosphorus and potassium are relatively high in overall composition. When economics are favorable, CGF should be considered as a potential alternative source of energy and protein in the ration of dairy animals.

CGF is also relatively high in digestible fiber which is concentrated in the feed because of the removal of most of the starch and fat (corn oil). The higher fiber may help in the reduction of potential rumen acidosis and chances of cows going "off feed." Milk fat percentage has also been demonstrated to be easier to maintain and sometimes increased with CGF in the diet, especially with rations primarily based on corn and corn silage.

Many research trials have been reported over the years on feeding either wet or dry CGF to lactating dairy cows. Both wet or dry can be utilized equally well as far as dry matter intake, milk solids production and milk volume. The decision to use wet or dry CGF depends on relative price, handling capabilities, storing and feeding system.

In summary, as profit margins in dairy continue to decrease and with higher feed costs, producers must pay more attention to total cost of producing milk, especially feed costs, which is the largest single expense and is a variable cost. Fixed costs such as land, buildings and taxes cannot be readily changed, so a producer must develop an economical feeding program around feedstuffs that can possibly reduce production costs.

Various by-product or co-product feeds (also called commodity feeds) such as corn gluten feed, distillers grains, brewers grains, canola meal, sunflower meal, corn gluten meal and many others may be worthwhile considering to keep feed costs down and controlling profit margins. However, dairymen must be sure that they or their nutritionist can pencil out an economic advantage with these feeds before using them in the dairy feeding program.

Forage feeding is one element in creating profitable operation

by Dr. George Marx
Dairy Scientist, University of Minnesota—Crookston

Profitability in dairying involves many issues. Forage production, handling, harvesting, storage and feeding are factors in resulting milk production. Minimum forage quality standards have been suggested for various classes of dairy animals and levels of milk production. (Relative feed value CRFV) for various classes of dairy animals are as follows: Dry Cow, 100-115; yearling heifer, 100-130; dairy calf, 140-160, mid late lactation, 125-145, and early lactation, 140-160.

Note that the young dairy calf needs high quality forage for good growth that is similar to the high producing cow. As calves mature to yearlings, they can utilize lower quality as can low producing and dry cows.

Another rule of thumb for forage quality for high producing cows is 20-30-40-60-150 (20% protein, 30% acid detergent fiber, 40% neutral detergent fiber, 60% digestible nutrients, and 150 relative feed value.

A continuing trend in forage feeding is the utilization of haylage. Haylage as compared to dry hay has higher nutrient value due to less leaf losses and less potential weather damage. Less labor is also associated with haylage, but higher costs may also be involved in equipment and storage.

Concerns must also be given to length of chop if haylage is used as forage. The recommended length of cut should be 10% longer than 2 inches, 25% over 1 1/4 inches, and 40% over 3/4 inch. If one uses a theoretical cut setting in the chopper of 1/4 to 3/8 inch, the resulting chop should average about 3/4 inch; however the number of chopper knives can make a difference in length of resulting particle size.

If the chop is too fine (more than 60% of the pieces less than 3/4 inch) the rumen motility may be affected adversely and cause metabolic disorders. Some term this a lack of scratch factor or lack of effective fiber which may cause off-feed and low milk fat problems.

Moisture is another factor in forage feeding as well as storage. High producers like forage that is not too wet or too dry and dry matter intake will maximize at about 50% moisture. If higher moisture forage is utilized, it should be mixed with drier feeds so as not to reduce dry matter intake. High milk production is directly related to high dry matter intake.

In summary, to increase dry matter intake, one must feed a high quality palatable forage with the proper length of chop and moisture, balanced with other feed ingredients to meet the requirements of the animal for high production.

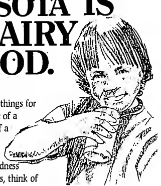
MINNESOTA IS IN A DAIRY MOOOOD.



We Minnesotan's take some things for granted: the refreshing taste of a glass of milk, a tangy bite of a slice of cheese, the creamy coldness of ice cream. Next time you experience the goodness of wholesome dairy products, think of the people who made them possible - Minnesota's dairy farmers. June is Dairy Month, and we're in the "mooood" to celebrate.

Shana Haglund is crowned as Red Lake County Dairy Princess

by Marvin Lundin
Times Editor

Add to the list of many activities for Shana Haglund of rural Red Lake Falls one more role—that of Red Lake County Dairy Princess. The daughter of Dennis and Nancy Haglund was named princess at the county contest May 8 at the Third Base restaurant in Brooks.

A 1997 graduate of Lafayette high school in Red Lake Falls, Shana is the third daughter in the Haglund family to be county dairy princess. Her older sisters Susy and Sam Sunshine previously wore the crown.

Susy is married to Mark Herberg and they and their children live at Dorothy, just a few miles away. Sunshine is completing her third year of college at the University of Minnesota in Crookston where she is majoring in health management. The family also includes a brother, Steve.

The Haglunds are carrying on the dairy operation they acquired from Nancy's father, Irving Beyer, and known as White Gold Farms. The milking herd hits its peak at about 130 cows, with 93 milking at the present time. It is on Owner-Sampler test with the Red Lake - Pennington Dairy Herd Improvement Association.

One of Shana's primary duties on the farm is to work with the calves, which are born primarily from April 15 to October 30. There have been 44 calves born on the farm this spring "...with many yet to come," Shana says.

The calves are bottle fed for three days to a week, then fed milk replacer with a bucket for three to four weeks as well as being started on dry calf starter feed. Calf care includes bedding to be sure the calves are dry and watching for health problems such as scours.

The Haglunds raise their own replacement heifers and use AI as well as a herd bull in the breeding program.

While a dairy farm operation is more than a full-time job, Shana has been active throughout her years at Lafayette high school. A volleyball player since seventh grade, she also plays in the outfield for the girls' fast pitch softball team and was captain of the team this spring.

She played basketball from seventh through ninth grades, then was student manager for the girls basketball team as a sophomore and senior. This year the team won the regional championship and placed third at the state tournament.

Although she played drums in elementary school, Shana has been a trumpet player in the concert band since seventh grade and in the stage band since she was a freshman. She also sang in the school choir.

During the Memorial Day Services at Riverside Park in Red Lake Falls, Shana and a fellow band member played "Taps" on their trumpets. Her musical partner played at the site and Shana played the "echo" from a wooded area nearby.

"It was quite an interesting effect," says her father, who is commander of the Red Lake Falls American Legion post this year. Her mother is a member of the Red Lake county board of commissioners.

First selected to the National Honor Society as a sophomore, Shana has continued as a member and was vice president of the Shona Haglund, Red Lake County Dairy Princess, was active in both volleyball and softball at Lafayette high school, playing on the varsity teams and participating in Junior Olympics competition.

In place of a guest book, visitors to the Dennis and Nancy Haglund home for daughter Shona's graduation were invited to write their messages on an area painted on the garage wall. "It's a little novel," Dennis said, "and if we have enough graduations in the family we'll get the inside of the garage painted."

Computers have come into their own on the farm. Here Shana Haglund, Red Lake County Dairy Princess, locates information on dairy herd management on the Internet. The photo below is a look over Shana's shoulder at what the Internet has to offer.

Lafayette chapter in the 1996-97 school year. A consistent honor roll student, she was a junior honor guard for graduation in 1996 and ranked sixth academically in her 1997 graduating class.

Shana also plays volleyball and softball in the Junior Olympics program, previously traveling as far as Fargo, ND, to participate. Last year she spent much of the summer working with softball and T-ball in the Red Lake Falls summer recreation program.

In her ninth, 10th and 11th grades Shana was a participant in school plays. She is a past 4-H club member and a Sunday School teacher at Bethany Lutheran Church in Red Lake Falls. During the flooding around the area this spring, she spent a number of days helping fill sandbags in Red Lake Falls for transport to flooding communities.

As county dairy princess Shana will visit the nursing home in Red Lake Falls, participate in the Plummer Cooperative Creamery Association annual picnic, assist with the American Dairy Association Ag Day in Red Lake Falls and work in the dairy booth and/or help hand out awards at the Red Lake County Fair in Oklee.

This fall she will join her sister Sunshine at the University of Minnesota in Crookston where she will also study health management.

Along with runner-up Wendy Schmitz, daughter of Richard and Vicki Schmitz of rural Red Lake Falls, Shana will participate June 28 at the Region I Dairy Princess contest in Mahnomen.

Today's youth are skimping on calcium

Perhaps baby boomers did listen to Mom when she said "drink your milk!" because more adults in their 30s and beyond are meeting their calcium needs Yet, the message hasn't had the same impact on today's youth. According to the 1995 USDA Continuing Survey of Food Intakes by Individuals (CSFII), more than 87 percent of teenage girls and 64 percent of teenage boys are not consuming the Recommended Daily Allowance (RDA) for calcium (1,200 mg/day)

"The long-term health implications of poor nutrition habits formed at a young age, including not getting enough calcium, can be devastating during the later years of adulthood," says Cindy Bertheau, RD, LD, Director of Health Professional Programs, Dairy Council of the Upper Midwest. "Bone formation is at its peak during adolescence. Up to 40 percent of adult bone mass is formed during the critical teenage years. While many are aware of calcium's role in bone health, the teen calcium gap continues to grow."

Bertheau emphasizes that calcium is so critical during the teenage years that the RDA for calcium increases from 800 mg/day during childhood to 1,200 mg/day for teenagers and young adults ages 11-24

Regardless of your age, the amount of calcium you eat really makes a difference in the strength of your bones," said Bertheau. "It is absolutely critical that you feed your bones when you feed your body — especially during prime, adolescent, bone-building years."

Dairy products are among the safest of foods

How safe are dairy products? Today, milk and other dairy foods are associated with less than one percent of all foodborne illnesses compared to 25 percent of such illnesses reported 50 years ago. The high volume of sales and relatively low degree of illness associated with milk illustrates the high degree of commitment to product safety by the dairy industry.

Specific and special measures are taken to achieve safety Dairy processing and manufacturing are the most regulated of all the food industries. National safety standards and modern sanitary practices, such as pasteurization help, keep the safety of dairy products at very high levels.

The U.S. Food and Drug Administration (FDA) and Public Health Services' Grade A Pasteurized Milk Ordinance or PMO are the national standards for milk sanitation. State and local authorities have adopted these recommended public health guidelines and in many cases have formulated more stringent policies. The Grade A PMO provides step-by-step procedures for collecting milk on the farm, and pasteurizing, homogenizing and fortifying (with vitamins A and D) milk. Chemical, bacteriological and temperature standards for milk and milk products also are specified.

Ninety-nine percent of the milk Americans drink every day is pasteurized. The others one percent is raw. Most of this is consumed on the farm. Raw or unpasteurized milk accounts for 95 percent of all reported outbreaks of milkborne illness. The U.S. Food and Drug Administration has banned interstate shipments of raw milk because of the health risk posed by possible bacterial contamination, making its availability very limited.

Consumers can keep milk and other dairy foods safe by taking the following steps:

- When shopping, examine containers for leaks or other damages
- Check "sell-by" dates. Products generally can be used for a few days after the sell-by date if they have been properly stored.
- Pick up milk and other perishable dairy foods just before checking out of the store, especially in hot weather, so they remain at recommended temperatures.
- Take products home immediately after purchase and refrigerate them as soon as possible. Recommended temperatures for storing dairy products are: Fresh fluid milk, 39°F; most cheeses, 35° - 40° F, yogurt, buttermilk, sour cream, 39°F; and dry milk, 39°F (24 months).
- Refrigerate milk, cream, cottage cheese and similar products in their original containers. After opening, close containers tightly.
- Refrigerate cheese in its original wrap until opened. After opening, rewrap the cheese tightly in moisture-vapor wrap or place in airtight containers.
- Store dry milk and canned milk in a cool, dry place. Once reconstituted, the milk should be refrigerated. Once canned milk is opened, pour into a clean container and keep refrigerated.
- Use dairy foods in the order purchased.
- Serve milk cold.
- Don't allow milk and other dairy products to remain at room temperature for any longer than necessary. Return them promptly to the refrigerator.

For Kristi Pettis, Princess Kay title fulfills dream of 15 years

Goodwill ambassador for the dairy industry will visit Thief River Falls Tuesday

by Marvin Lundin
Times Editor

For Kristi Ann Pettis, daughter of Kenneth and Barbara Pettis of rural Winthrop, becoming Princess Kay of the Milky Way was the culmination of a 15-year ambition. Since she was five years old, she visited the American Dairy Association of Minnesota booth at the Minnesota State Fair to seek the regional princess from her area and dream of being the state dairy princess.

Kristi will be in Thief River Falls Tuesday, June 10, for the 48th annual Northwest Dairy Day—the original dairy day in Minnesota and home of the first dairy princess contest.

"The difficult thing after I was crowned was to realize I was in the position I had dreamed of for years...it had actually come true," she said.

Considers Contestants Friends

"One of the greatest blessings of the Princess Kay program for me was to meet 10 exceptional girls who I hope to stay in contact with forever. . The talent, ambitions, intelligence and respect for the industry they grew up in is tremendous. I truly enjoyed getting to know each and every one of them. I felt as though I left the state fair contest having gained 10 very close friends."

Kristi, 21, is a 1994 graduate of Sibley East senior high school in Arlington—a school composed of the three Sibley county communities of Gaylord, Arlington and Green Isle. She attends Gustavus Adolphus College in St. Peter where she is majoring in Communication Studies and seeks a career as an agriculture broadcaster.

Experienced Radio Broadcaster

For two and a half years she has worked at KNUJ radio where she got her first announcing job as a high school senior. She has worked every shift at the local station and reported news, sports and weather for that station and two affiliate stations, BRAT 107.3 and KNSG 94.7. She has conducted interviews and remote broadcasts for community events and county fairs, written copy and produced advertising for all three of the stations.

In high school she was president of the student council, vice president of the senior class, competed at the state level in speech, co-edited a literary magazine, was a member of the National Honor Society and attended American Legion Girls State where she was elected as an Associate Supreme Court Justice.

She was selected as a commencement speaker, was a Hugh O'Brian Leadership Seminar Ambassador, Farm Bureau Freedom Seminar participant, won the citizenship award and an award from the 88th USARCOM for volunteering for Red Cross during Operation Desert Storm.

Active At College, Too

At Gustavus Adolphus she is a member of Lambda Pi Eta society for communication majors and Alpha Phi Omega, national service fraternity. She is broadcast manager for the campus broadcast organization, a student senate representative, member of the communication studies club, Students Against Driving Drunk and volunteers time at the St. Peter regional treatment center.

At Bernadotte Lutheran Church, Kristi is a Sunday school and vacation Bible school teacher and a member of the Luther League.

Selected as Miss Gaylord in 1993, she was also part of the homecoming court as a high school senior, second princess in the Sibley county queen contest, one of three Sibley county dairy princesses in 1996 and selected as Region 5 Dairy Princess which advanced her to the state competition. Region 5 includes the counties of Pope, Big Stone, Chippewa, Lac Qui Parle, Meeker, Kandiyohi, Sibley, Renville, Yellow Medicine and Swift.

Frequent Emcee

Having an interest in public speaking as part of her general interest in communications, Kristi has frequently accepted engagements as emcee or announcer for various events in high school and college. She enjoys running, biking, reading and creative writing.

The 12 days at the state fair following her coronation as Princess Kay were considered by Kristi to be 12 of the best days of her life.

"The people, interviews and learning experiences were unbelievable," she said. "I enjoy the people I meet and work with and I love advocating something so dear to my heart. I will continue to be an advocate for the dairy industry long after the sash and crown are put away."

Likes To Instruct Students

Having the opportunity to present information on farming during Farm/City Week to 150 fourth grade students was another exciting part of her Princess Kay experiences.

"The false assumptions young children hold prove the importance of ag education," Kristi said. "Many found it hard to believe that I was a farmer. Perhaps it was the fact that I was young, a female and dressed up as well as wearing a sash and crown. It was important for me to share with them the positive attributes I have attained by growing up on a farm: a close-knit family, the meaning of responsibilities, my love for serving the community and my appreciation for life."

Kristi says she attributes much of her success to farm life, including learning the meaning of dedication, responsibility, determination, diligence and a positive attitude. She has a strong sense of pride in the dairy industry and feels that by becoming a communicator for agriculture she can help give back some of the help that farm life has given her.

Dairy Industry Has Proved Itself

"I believe the dairy industry has proved its endurance and continues to do so as the industry evolves," she said. "The dairy industry has many levels, but as you take a look at the base of the pyramid you find dedicated, determined and diligent individuals and families who work hard to provide natural, wholesome and nutritious products to consumers.

"Although our techniques of dairying have changed over the years, our product has not. We still provide good, wholesome, nutritious milk and other products. Consumers can be confident about the genuine dairy products that farmers and processors provide to them."

Many people fail to realize the full extent of Princess Kay's duties since the only statewide exposure is during the state fair, she noted. The work of Princess Kay continues the entire year with speeches and appearances.

"We want people to realize the economic importance dairying has on our state, that farmers are responsible caretakers of the land and that they take good care of their dairy cattle," Kristi said.

Farm In The Family 26 Years

Kristi's family has been on its present farm since purchasing it in 1970. It is named KAP Dairy—using her father's initials—and since 1984 has had the slogan "KAP Dairy—The Place of Udder Joy."

The farm is 120 acres in size with an additional 160 acres rented. The herd totals approximately 190 head, including a milking herd of 75 grade Holsteins, replacement heifers and dairy steers. For the past 15 years the Pettis farm has elected to purchase and use registered bulls rather than artificial insemination.

The dairy operation is a stanchion-type facility with pipeline milking system. The barn is a three-building system including the original 30x48 barn, a 28x48 addition and a 34x60 round-roofed barn bought at a neighbor's auction and moved to the farm. The original barn is referred to in the family as "Our Barn;" the addition is called "Her Barn," because that is where Mrs. Pettis does the milking; and the round barn is called "His Barn," because that is where Kenneth does the milking.

Kristi has two brothers, Glen, 33 and Brian 24. Glen and his wife Jeanne have a seven-year-old daughter, Amanda. He is a district manager for a feed company. Brian has his own cash grain operation for 160 acres but handles many duties at the dairy farm as well.

Staples of the dairy feeding program are corn silage, haylage and oatlage—some of the latter two stored in plastic tubes. One silo is used for corn silage and the other for haylage. Dry distillers' grain is also used as a protein supplement.

Kristi Does Farm Work

Kristi is most involved with calf feeding and handling whatever medication is needed by the calves. Her father handles medical needs of the milking herd.

"Brian does the swathing, application of fertilizer and herbicide and combining," Kristi said. "Mom does the field preparation for planting, cultivating and most of the fall tillage. Dad plants, chops and takes care of the grain from the combine (hauling and drying). I rake and condition hay as well as pick rocks. Hauling forage wagons and round bales is also part of my job description."

Farm Has Its Difficulties

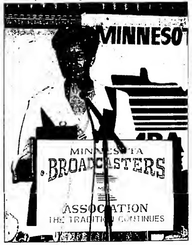
The Pettis' dairy operation has not been without its difficulties. Kenneth lost most of his left hand in a hay baling accident in 1968. A new well drilled to replace a collapsed one in the late 1970s was found to be contaminated, requiring installation of a chlorinator.

In 1988, following moving of the round-roof barn purchased at auction, a stray voltage problem was discovered—resulting from metal stalls in the new barn. Working with the rural electric association and grounding the metal stanchions cured that problem. Most recent difficulty has been alfalfa disease caused by not giving the land enough rest between alfalfa plantings. This has increased costs by requiring hay purchases from out of the area.

As problems have occurred they have been solved or ways found to work around them, Kristi says.

"According to my father," Kristi adds, "thanks to friends, family and God we have been able to maintain a successful way of life."

"Milk: From Cow To You" was the title of a program presented by Princess Kay of the Milky Way, Kristi Ann Pettis, at a Town/City classroom visit to Mankato schools in November. She talked about how milk gets from the farm to the children's homes, answered questions and signed autographs.



Emphasizing the importance of communication and agriculture, Kristi Ann Pettis, Princess Kay of the Milky Way, addressed the Minnesota Broadcasters Association convention in November at Fairmont.

Who invented ice cream, the latest scoop

• More ice cream is produced and eaten in the U.S than any other country. Ice cream consumption is still highest in June and July. Vanilla is America's favorite flavor, followed by chocolate.

• The big dipper. According to the Guinness Book of World Records, the largest ice cream sundae weighed just over 54,914 pounds.

Replacing corn with small grains in rations becoming more common

by Dr. George Marx
Dairy Scientist, University of Minnesota—Crookston

Small grains such as barley and oats are utilized routinely in dairy rations. Wheat, rye and triticale can also be used but are not as common. At higher levels of use, the small grains must be incorporated with more caution as the rate of digestion increases with small grains, especially barley and wheat. This can cause a cow to go "off feed", resulting in reduced milk production.

The high acid production from the fast digestion of starch causes the cow to stop eating temporarily and continual high acid in the rumen can cause rumen acidosis which can eventually result in ruminal ulcers, liver abscesses, milk fat depression, sore feet and laminitis.

Corn grain is the easiest to feed in a ration but small grains have some advantages, especially in higher levels of protein and fiber content. This can save on protein supplement purchases and the problem of getting enough fiber in high producing rations.

There are some general recommendations when feeding small grains in the ration. Restrict the total amount of small grain to 20 pounds per day per cow. The balance of grain needed can be most easily supplied by corn. Another rule of thumb-especially for high producers-is to restrict the small grain to two-thirds of the concentrate (grain) portion of the ration.

Total mixed rations also provide a better method of feeding high amounts of small grain because of the dilution effect with forage as in an all-in-one mixed ration. Also, when replacing or switching from corn to small grain, make a gradual change in order to acclimate the rumen over several days depending on amount fed.

Theoretically, all the corn can be replaced by small grain, but these rations are more difficult to feed and maintain rumen function. In general, if one follows the suggested guidelines, excellent results can be obtained and many times will lower your feed costs.

As part of the St. Paul Winter Carnival parade last January, Kristi Ann Pettis, Princess Kay of the Milky Way, rode on this highly decorated bus which constantly asked, "Got Milk?"

Facts and statistics about dairy cattle

Dairy cattle were first brought to North America in 1625 to the Plymouth Colony, in what is now Massachusetts. Wisconsin and California lead the United States in milk production. Minnesota ranks fifth in number of milk cows (600,000) and milk production.

After her calf is born, a cow begins producing milk. This is called "freshening."

The first milk the cow gives is called colostrum, which contains nutrients and antibodies that the calf needs to stay healthy. The calf is separated immediately after birth and fed the mother's milk for the first week with a large nursing bottle. Milk replacer is used until weaning at three to four months.

Cows are milked by machine, usually twice a day, every 12 hours. If they are milked at 3 p.m., they must also be milked at 3 a.m. Cows are milked for 305 days or about 10 months. Then the cow's body needs to rest and store nutrients before she has her next calf. After the calf is born, the cow will resume giving milk.

The average dairy cow in Minnesota produces 15,300 pounds of milk in 305 days. That's about 1,770 gallons of milk. Milk is stored in refrigerated tanks at the dairy farm until it is picked up by a refrigerated tank truck and taken to a dairy processing plant. There the milk is homogenized and pasteurized and put into containers if used as fresh milk. Different refrigerated trucks deliver the packaged milk to stores.

Most heifers are bred to freshen at two year of age. After they give birth, they join the dairy herd and produce milk. Male calves are most often sold to feedlots, where they are fed until they are taken to market for their meat.

Dairy cattle are ruminant animals with four compartments in their stomachs; their digestive tract is the same as beef cattle. Dairy cows weigh 1,300 to 1,500 pounds and are fed high-quality feed. They eat grains such as ground corn, grain sorghum, barley, oats and soybean meal. Their diet also includes vitamins, minerals and salt.

Dairy cows are also fed forages, such as high-quality alfalfa hay and whole corn plants (silage). On average, a single cow consumes 20 to 30 pounds of grain and 35 to 40 pounds of hay each day. Water is another important nutrient for dairy cows; every day they need to consume about 30 gallons of water or the equivalent of a full bathtub.

Many dairy producers use computers in their feeding operations to balance rations and feed cows. Some computers read the cow's identification tag and gives her a proper mix of grains, vitamins and minerals. This is determined by her age and how much milk she produces.

Ninety-nine percent of all dairy cattle in the United States today are the Holstein bred, which are large-bodied with a black and white coat. In Minnesota, 90 percent of dairy cattle, are Holsteins, which give a large quantity of milk. The other dairy breeds—Guernsey, Jersey, Ayrshire, Shorthorn and Brown Swiss - give a high protein milk and high butter fat milk.

Milk and other dairy products provide 76 percent of the calcium in the United States food supply, plus energy, protein and vitamins. Chocolate milk is made by adding sweetener and chocolate or cocoa to whole milk and is an alternative for people who don't drink white milk. Cheese, butter, ice cream, yogurt and sour cream are also made from milk. It takes about ten pounds of milk to make one pound of cheese. As with beef cattle, many important non-edible by products come from dairy cattle (gelatin, leather, life-saving drugs and much more).

A Holstein's spots are like a fingerprint or snowflake. No two cows have exactly the same pattern of spots.

Annually, some 16 to 20 percent of Minnesota's milk production is processed as Grade A fluid milk for drinking. The remainder of all milk produced goes into the many other products including cheese, butter, cottage cheese and yogurt.

Dairy Data...

- The first commercial yogurt dairy in the U.S. was the Colombo Dairy in Methuen, Massachusetts. In 1929 it produced a product called Madzoon, the Armenian name for yogurt.
- The "REAL®" Seal means you're buying a real dairy product and not an imitation.
- Looking for a home remedy? For a dry cough, a mixture of warm milk and butter can relax and soothe throat muscles, bringing relief.

Diary products being used for complexion

Since the earliest days of civilization, milk has been attributed with properties beyond its primary function of nutrition. Milk has been regarded as a rejuvenator and a moisturizer of human skin. Legend has it that Cleopatra bathed in milk to augment her physical beauty and to help rejuvenate and enhance longevity. Today's consumers are putting the legend to the test as they turn to milk-based personal care solutions to help maintain and enhance their physical appearance.

- Milk, cream, yogurt and sour cream are all high in protein, calcium and vitamins to make soothing cleansers. They also contain lactose, an alpha hydroxy acid that gently removes dead cells, leaving skin soft and smooth.
- Whey, a by-product of cheese-making, has long been a Scandinavian—beauty secret. It is rich in protein and can be used as an emollient in beauty product recipes.
- As consumers turn to products with natural ingredients, they are buying milk-based products in hopes of naturally enhancing their beauty. They are also using homemade milk-based solutions to solve their beauty dilemmas.
- A yogurt mask is perfect for removing surface impurities and restoring the skin. Simply spread plain yogurt over skin and let sit for 15-20 minutes. Rinse off and pat skin dry.
- Sunburns are always a summer bummer. Apply plain yogurt or buttermilk to sun-damaged spots to take some of the stinging away from mild sunburns.

Emcee Roger Strom of WCCO radio interviews Kristi Ann Pettis of Winthrop following her coronation as the 43rd Princess Kay of the Milky Way.

Milk produced in every state of union

- In 1884, the milk bottle was invented. Forty eight years later, in 1932, plastic-coated paper milk cartons began appearing in the dairy case. Today, consumers can choose from a wide variety of milk containers—even six packs for people on the go.
- We're a milk-producing nation! Every state from Alaska to Hawaii, from Maine to Florida produces milk.
- Who's really "got milk?" Des Moines, Iowa, ranks the highest among 50 metropolitan areas in per capita supermarket milk sales.
- Every day the nation's 9.3 million dairy cows produce the equivalent of nearly 50 million gallons of milk.
- Think that milk and cookies before bedtime is just for kids? Not true! Milk is a natural sleeping aid for all ages because it contains an amino acid protein that sends a signal to the brain to relax.

Winterkill seen in some alfalfa fields

by George D. Marx, Dairy Scientist, University of Minnesota, Crookston

This past winter the weather was extremely severe and not conducive to good alfalfa survival, however, the deep snow did insulate the crop from winter injury in many cases. Freezing temperatures this spring also did some damage after the alfalfa broke dormancy during April. Prolonged freezing of the crown and upper roots in frozen soil will cause potential damage, as the plant ceases to be winter-hardy after beginning its spring growth.

Ideally an optimum stand should have five or more alfalfa plants per square foot in a pure stand. Three to five alfalfa plants along with some grass would be acceptable, but less than three plants per square foot will reduce yield considerably and fields should be reestablished. In most cases, this could be accomplished after taking off the first cutting in early June.

A producer has several alternatives in re-establishment of the alfalfa. A small grain crop such as barley (a short season crop) can be utilized as a companion crop and remove at the boot stage for high quality forage. This will give the alfalfa undergrowth more sunlight and moisture to adequately develop the first year. Oats or triticale can also be used as a second choice and should also be harvested early as not to be too competitive with the alfalfa. A third option is to establish with a small grain mixed with field peas. This will usually result in more forage harvested but will be more competitive for the alfalfa. Preferably the forage should be taken off as a silage which helps the new growth of alfalfa. A fourth option is to direct seed a pure stand of alfalfa. This plan usually offers less forage the seeding year and one may need to use a weed herbicide. Also, pure seeding is not suggested on hilly or erodible soils.

Lastly, if a producer is short of forage, it's probably best to wait a year to establish the alfalfa and plant a short season corn hybrid or an emergency forage such as sudan grass, sorghum-sudan cross or forage sorghum. All of these will result in good potential yields and are best utilized as silage.

For nearly sixty years, June has been designated as the time to celebrate America's great bounty of dairy products and to pay tribute to America's dairy farmers. Officially christened June Dairy Month in 1939, the annual tribute has blossomed into a national affair. Here is some dairy trivia.

The Second Section

Minnesota State Patrolmen Cal Micheels, Lt. Dick Wittenberg, and Brad Bordwell visited with Challenger elementary kindergarten students recently.

Moe says legislature will help flooded areas recover

"We will prevail," says Sen. Roger Moe of Erskine. "I want to assure all of the communities that have been affected by the floods that we will do the best we can to help those communities get back on their feet.

"With so much lost to the floods, it is difficult for many of us in the Red River Valley to look ahead to the future. Considering the circumstances, though, we have coped with this disaster extremely well. We have our lives and we will do what it takes to recover.

"I want to commend the efforts of so many people around the state who have supported displaced residents, volunteered their time, donated supplies and helped flood victims through this time of crisis," he added.

Sen. Moe said the cost of flooding this spring will almost certainly exceed $2 billion in Minnesota alone. The Senate has authorized $23 million to match federal relief efforts and the state is in a good position to do more by utilizing surplus funds in the state treasury for low-interest loans and additional grants, the senator said. A bill has been introduced that would provide an additional $70 million in loans and grants for homeowners and businesses.

Legislative actions already taken will help devastated schools and nursing homes rebuild and allow local governments in designated flood disaster counties collect state aids and credit payments earlier than scheduled. A move has been made to impose a mortgage foreclosure moratorium for affected homeowners. Sen. Moe has introduced a bill to raise the gas tax by one cent for one year to pay for flood damaged roads.

"The full assessment of damages will take some time to tabulate," Sen. Moe said. "The governor has announced that he may, if necessary, call a special session in late summer or early fall to deal with the full consequences of the floods."

The emergency response effort will be a long-term process, the senator added. Families will need assistance with clean-up, home repair, unemployment and coping with mental strain and fatigue. Schools and colleges will have to deal with loss of school days and continuing operating costs as well as structural losses.

Businesses have sustained severe damages, and many face shutdowns due to loss of sales. A few segments of the region's economy will surge for months and years to come. Plumbers, electricians, carpenters and others involved in construction trades and related businesses will be very busy for the forseeable future.

Farmers have lost livestock, buildings and equipment and planting times will be delayed or crops may be lost for the year. The full impact on agriculture won't be known for some time, based on weather variables.

"Obviously," Sen. Moe said, "we are due for some good luck from Mother Nature. The only up side is the impact flooding has had on some commodities prices, including futures prices for hard red spring wheat—up more than $1 a bushel in less than two months.

"The impact of flooding on infrastructure will be significant," he added. "Every kind of sewer and water treatment system has been vulnerable to damage caused by the flow of high flood waters. Bridges and roads will need replacement and repair and it's likely that substantial state bonding will be necessary.

"The challenges presented by the flood disaster are numerous. Despite these enormous challenges, I am hopeful about the future because the vast majority of people with losses have remained level-headed under extreme duress, and armies of volunteers have helped tremendously. These qualities will endure. The real force behind the reconstruction of the flood impacted cities and towns has been and will continue to be the strength of our communities."

Sen. Moe provided the following list of telephone numbers which can be called to receive assistance or to volunteer.

- To apply for disaster assistance for individuals, businesses, farmers and families call the Federal Emergency Management Agency (FEMA) toll free at 1-800-462-9029 or (for speech or hearing impaired) TDD 1-800-462-7585. Call between 8 a.m. and 6 p.m. seven days a week.

Strandquist Community News

F. Myrtle Vagle
436-2133

Another day of sunshine in northwest Minnesota with the promise of a few light showers by Wednesday. It only took a warm sunny weekend with the help of plenty wind to bring on and open up the leaves on the trees. Even the hedge that had been badly bent out of shape by all the snow this winter has straightened up and taken on a rich green color again. If it grows much taller it will become what hedge rows or stone fences were used for in earlier times, namely "Spite Fences".

The Bethesda Lutheran Church was decorated with many arrangements of beautiful flowers and a bundle of balloons from the school children for the funeral service of Ellen Stromberg on Thursday morning. Ellen had been working in the school system for many years and will be missed by a great number of friends and relatives.

The Strandquist Seniors will open their weekly meetings on Thursday the 5th of June. Here's to another six months or so of a lot of work and visiting and a lot of fun together. They will be bring those rugs again, making sure I will be able to find some lovely ones to have and also have a nice gift on hand, birthdays have a way of sneaking up for me, and often I don't have time to get a gift in a hurry.

Linda Adlis of Argyle visited her mother Elphia Adlis and other friends over the Memorial holiday.

David and Sharon Lindstrom of Anoka and Morris and Marcelyn Lindstrom had supper at Lloyd and Lois Lindstroms on Friday evening.

Gayhard and Irene visited at Myron Nelsons home this week.

On Saturday, Margaret, Alaura and Sara Donaldson visited Elsie Lefrooth while Jeff Donaldson mowed Elsie's lawn. On Monday they all attended the Memorial Service at Strandquist.

Pearl Thompson, Merle Johnson and Betsy Thompson representing the Assembly of God Church brought supper out to Tien Covenant Church for the flood cleanup crew in that area.

Palmer Severson of Peyton, CO, and son Eddie of Thief River Falls visited Elsie Lefrooth on Monday. Palmer wished to get an address from some folks Elsie had.

Frank Grochowski and Beverly Ranum of Moorhead visited Morris and Marcelyn Lindstrom, on Monday. Glen and Audrey Rasmussen of Walker spent the weekend visiting friends and relatives. Audrey attended a wedding shower in Hallock on Saturday while Glen got a dandy sunburn while watching the Jay Spilde Auction Sale all afternoon. They had coffee at Istsraac and Betsy Thompson and then went over to the Rasmussen home place and got the harnesses that Glen had inherited from his father George R. to take back to Walker. They also visited with Peter and Pearl Thompson. They returned home after dinner with Glen's uncle, Roy Vagle.

Supper guests at Vance Lefrooth's on Sunday were Henry and Vanette Pettis, Krystine, Noelle and Stephine, Lisa, Allison and Elliott Lefrooth, Jeff, Margaret, Alaura and Sara Donaldson, Vance Jr., Kelly, Amanda and Jessica Lefrooth from Cedar and Loyal and Lowell Lefrooth.

My Grandparents Essays

I have three pair of grandparents. I'll start with my grandpa and grandma that live closest to me. My grandma lives in Oklee. She works at the Pioneer Nursing Home. She brings us eggs all the time and they're good! Every holiday she brings us 50 cent coins and candy.

My grandpa lives in Oklee, too. He works in Crookston. He really likes to go fishing!

They are both a lot of fun. Like last summer, they took me fishing. We went to Blackduck and stayed in a cabin for the weekend. We fished in the river, and the lake. My grandma caught the biggest fish.

My other grandparents live in between Oklee and Brooks. My grandma also works at the Pioneer Nursing Home. My grandpa like to go fishing, too. I went fishing and water skiing with him on the Fourth.

My grandma is a good gardner. She gives us cucumbers to make pickles. She even gives us pumkins.

I mow their lawn. That's fun because they have riding lawn mowers.

For Christmas she gave me a picture and some punching bags.

I have another set of grandparents. They live in Plummer. They both are retired. My grandma has been retired for quite a long time, and my grandpa just retired. My grandma likes to do crossword puzzles. My grandpa likes to do things out of the house.

I love all my grandparents very, very much!

son of Annette Vettleson

My Grandparents Essay

My Grandpa is the best guy around. He gives us candy, pop, and almost everything else too.

Grandpa is very loving and caring for other people. He always helps us out when we need it. He puts plastic on our windows in the winter time so the water doesn't get in. He has false teeth, so when he came over he always scared me with his false teeth. He is dead now, so it gets kind of lonely without him.

My grandma is the best grandma around. She makes me jello every time I go over there. When we go there for Easter, she puts candy in the eggs too. She always gets us good presents for Christmas.

My great grandpa died a year or two ago. He was in the nursing home for a while because he had gotten run over by a lawn mower. He got cut up a little bit, but he was ok. He lived by a little pond. We always got to swim in it.

Heidi Schlelert, daughter of Jim and Sherrie Schlelert

My Special Grandma

My grandma is the type of person that likes to help people. When I was born with breathing problems she went with my mom and me to learn how to take care of me if I stopped breathing. CPR - was hard for grandma to do at first, but she kept on, until she was comfortable doing CPR. Grandma was not afraid to take care of me when my mom and dad had some place to go. My grandma also helped with physical therapy. When I was taken from the Hobner's Horse (a special bed) to my feet, I learned how to walk before crawling.

Omer and Sylvia Quilly have returned to Minnesota after spending the winter months in Nevada. They are back to their home in Gonvick which many of us remember as the farmer John Tveton home. Sylvia will soon be having her flowers brightening up the neighborhood.

The Lund Ladies Aid met at the church on Wednesday afternoon. Hostess were Pearl Watne, Pam Dyrdahl, Patty Carlson, June Bergh, Evelyn Myers and Luverne Davids. It was a rather cold, dark and wet day but the hostesses served escalloped potatoes with ham and escalloped corn to warm us up and lots of fruit salad and strawberry shortcake to remind us spring will soon be here. The hostesses are also responsible for the program and had invited Henry [illegible] to sing and play for us. They sang two inspirational songs which we really enjoyed.

I was invited to "Daughters of Trinity Banquet" at Thief River Falls Wednesday evening. Carol Turgerson had as her guests Sanna her daughter and Sanna her mother. The men at Trinity were waiters and served a tasty banquet meal. The tables were decorated with pots of live flowers. The Banquet theme was the "Borning Cry". Their speaker was Janet Letnes Martin. Janet is a noted speaker and does about 100 speaking engagements a year. She is also a noted author. She expresses even serious situations in such a way they seem funny and had us laughing all evening until her closing remarks when she quoted from Exodus which left us with a lesson to ponder on. Janet's father John Letner was born and lived in Thief River Falls. Janet lives at Hastings and is married to Neil Martin of Newfolden. I had been a classmate of her dad at Crookston AC way back when? On one side of the banquet area was an interesting display of pictures and momentos. Some of the baptismal dresses shown were over (90) ninety years old.

David and Patty Carlson drove to Fulda for the weekend to visit at the Tim and Michelle Nordlund home. they especially wanted to help grandson Trever Nordlund celebrate his first birthday. Patty had been busy making a quilt for him for his first birthday. What youngster don't appreciate a cuddly quilt especially when its made by Grandma.

pet hair, pollen, dirt, smoke, dust mites
Dust mites? Pet hair? Dirt? Pollen? Tobacco smoke?
It's possible. If the air ducts in your home have never been cleaned, it's probable.
Pollen, mold, mildew and bacteria can be in the duct work of your home's heating and cooling system. Every time your furnace or air conditioner runs, these pollutants whisk through the vents in your home and spew into the air that your family breathes causing allergies, stale odors, extra dust and even sickness.
The answer? Thorough duct cleaning with Abatement Technologies' patented Hepa Aire® system. Breathe clean, healthy air. Call us today for an estimate.

Heidi Johnson Wins AAUW Writing Contest

Heidi Johnson, daughter of Dr. Peter and Judy Johnson and a 1997 graduate of Lincoln high school, has been named a first place winner in the writing contest sponsored by the local chapter of the American Association of University Women. Topic of the contest was "Women in Government: Working to Make a Difference."

Second place winner was Jenni Eriksen, daughter of Bradley and Janelle Eriksen.

We have chosen to present Heidi's first place entry as our guest editorial for today, not because of its opinion content but as a special recognition of student writing, which we strongly encourage. Jenni's second place entry is being published along with a story about the contest in this issue of The Times.

We commend the AAUW for sponsoring the student writing contest and congratulate Heidi and Jenni on their selection as winners. Following is Heidi's first place entry.

Sandra Day O'Connor
by Heidi Johnson

When President Reagan appointed Sandra Day O'Connor to the Supreme Court in 1981, women had been practicing law in the United States for 112 years. Despite over a century of practice in law, the first woman to be appointed to the Supreme Court was Sandra Day O'Connor. Not only did she grow up and decide to go into the field of law, but she also became a very influential woman as she cast the deciding votes in some of the nation's most important court cases.

Sandra Day O'Cannor grew up on a ranch in Phoenix, Arizona during Sandra's preschool years, her mother spent a great deal of time reading with her. When Sandra was six years old, she moved to El Paso to live with her grandmother and go to school.

O'Connor believed her grandmother most influenced her life and was very supportive during her formative years. O'Connor once said, "She would always tell me that I could do anything I wanted to do. She convinced me of that and it was very encouraging."

After high school, O'Connor attended Stanford University where she received a degree in economics and graduated from law school. she was third in her graduating class when only three percent of the nation's law students were women.

Upon graduating from Stanford Law School, she married lawyer John O'Connor. Sandra Day O'Connor looked for employment in San Francisco and Los Angeles, but none of the law firms had ever hired a woman lawyer and were unwilling to do so. Eventually, O'Connor found a job in a county attorney's office. When her husband finished school, they both worked for the United States army in Germany.

After leaving Germany, they moved back to Phoenix, Arizona, where her husband joined a Phoenix law firm, and O'Connor became a mother working only part-time as a lawyer. At this time she became involved in the local Republican Party. Soon she was appointed to fill a vacancy in the Arizona State Senate.

O'Connor became the first woman to serve as the majority leader of any state senate. (Author Paul J.) Deegan notes that O'Connor was a hard worker who "would overwhelm you with her knowledge."

Although O'Connor did not run for another term in the Arizona Senate in 1974, she continued to encourage women to influence others. According to (Judith) Bently in her book Justice Sandra Day O'Connor, O'Connor's message was, "If women want real power and change, they must run for public office and use the vote more intelligently."

When Ronald Reagan made a campaign promise to appoint a woman to the Supreme Court, O'Connor was serving on the Arizona Court of Appeals. In 1981 Reagan nominated O'Connor, and soon she was appointed as the first woman to serve on the United States Supreme Court.

On the day that O'Connor was sworn in, she stated at a dinner party, "Thomas Jefferson and James Madison would be turning over in their graves right now, but let's hope Abigail Adams would be pleased." Yes, Abigail Adams would be pleased because O'Cannor took on her position with integrity and poise. She soon became a respected member of the United States Supreme Court.

Although President Reagan appointed her as a conservative, O'Connor has proved to be more of a moderate in her voting record. Her vote has proven to be pivotal in many cases. According to Time, O'Connor "has become the swing vote on issues such as affirmative action, racial redistricting and the separation of church and state."

One of O'Connor's most controversial and influential votes was four years ago in "Planned Parenthood v. Casey." O'Connor's vote was pivotal in upholding "Roe v. Wade," one of the most volatile issues in our country."

Not only has O'Connor been very influential on the Supreme Court, but she also has been a very positive role model for women. (Carl) Cannon states in Working Women that "women now make up half the population of every major law school in the country." Cannon goes on to say, "O'Connor is very proud to be a role model to women. She likes to talk about the thousands of letters she has received from women and young girls saying that they were inspired by her appointment."

O'Connor truly is a pioneer. She was able to successfully pursue a career while raising a family. She was able to rise through the ranks of the legal profession and pave the way for other women to pursue their dreams.

Salvation Army needs volunteers

Although the flood waters have receded and many residents are returning to their homes. The Salvation Army's Operation We Care flood recovery efforts continue in the Red River Valley as it will be many months before the flood-affected communities are back to normal.

"Even though we're no longer in the relief phase, the need for volunteers to support our long-term efforts is extremely important in terms of helping these flood-affected communities recover," stated Major David Dalberg, The Salvation Army's national emergency disaster director. "Our number one priority is to help those residents rebuild their lives and we are calling on the community to assist us in our recovery efforts."

At The Salvation Army's Distribution Center in Brooklyn Center, volunteers are urgently needed to sort supplies in the warehouse and to staff the Operation We Care phone bank. In addition, volunteers are also needed to do data entry and general office work.

In Grand Forks, ND, and East Grand Forks, volunteers are needed at The Salvation Army's Distribution Centers to operate forklifts, unload supplies and stock incoming supplies which are distributed to residents. Cooks and cook assistants are also needed to prepare food for mobile feeding units and for Operation We Care volunteers and staff.

Those interested in volunteering, contributing in-kind goods, and/or MasterCard/Visa financial support should call 1-800-SAL-ARMY. Checks marked "Flood Relief" may be directed to: 2300 Freeway Boulevard, Brooklyn Center, MN 55320 or any local Salvation Army office. In Thief River Falls, checks may be sent to the Pennington County Law Enforcement Center.

County Options Election Set Monday

"With issues between prohibitionists apparently somewhat confused, Pennington county citizens today are confronted by a barrage of arguments from both sides as they prepare to go to the polls Monday, June 9, in the county option election to vote yes or no on the question, 'Shall the Sale of Liquor be Prohibited?'"

"Shall prohibition be continued in Pennington county? That is the question to be decided in Monday's election.

"Those who oppose the repeal of prohibition in Pennington county state as one of their objections the possibility that we may have privately operated saloons in Thief River Falls. That is about as much of a possibility as oats growing on potato vines.

"There probably are a few individuals who would like to see privately operated liquor stores in Thief River Falls providing they owned the franchise. However there is no more sentiment in Thief River Falls in favor of this type of operation than there is for the sale of the municipal light plant, and that is a possibility no reasonable citizen concerns himself about because it just isn't going to happen.

"Another objection that deserves more serious consideration is the statement that all of the financial benefits of a municipal liquor store operation will accrue to the city and that the rural community will receive no financial benefits.

"Other communities have secured special legislation for special projects. We need more hospital facilities. We need better court house facilities. There are many things we need as a community that will benefit all of the community, rural as well as urban.

"Civic organizations and representative citizens of Thief River Falls are pledging their support to a program of this kind. What are these promises worth? Well, they are worth this much: that if they are not kept, then the people of this county can restore prohibition.

"The question to be decided in Monday's election is not whether Pennington county is going to be wet or dry. We are wet already and this is admitted by both the wets and drys. All agree that the present condition as far as liquor and drinking are concerned is bad. Some believe the repeal of prohibition will make conditions worse. Others believe the repeal of prohibition will make conditions better.

"We believe the repeal of prohibition will make conditions better. We believe that prohibition has failed because it has not had general public support. Good law enforcement is impossible largely because juries will not convict. We believe that legalized sale and control will have greater public support and will result in better law enforcement. And that is why we urge the voters of Pennington county to vote 'NO' to the question, 'Shall the Sale of Liquor be Prohibited?'"

Council Rejects Bids For Seeding Airport Runways

"The city council at a special meeting Tuesday rejected the bid of Oscar Schenkey in the amount of $2,077 for seeding the runways on the local airport, a total of 67 acres. The Schenkey bid was the only one received."

Window Smashed In Oen's Store; Reward Offered

"Roy J. Oen, manager of the Oen Mercantile company, today offered a $25 reward for information leading to the arrest and conviction of the person who deliberately smashed a plate glass display window in the grocery department late last Thursday night."

KTRF To Air Interview With H. Finstad June 7

"H. I. Finstad of Rocksbury, president of the Pennington county Farm Bureau and vice president of the Red Lake Electric Cooperative will be interviewed on the weekly Farm Bureau hour over Radio Station KTRF Saturday morning, June 7, at 11 o'clock. Conducting the interview will be Melvin L. Weell of Crookston, affiliated with the organization service of the Minnesota Farm Bureau Federation."

Local Stores To Stay Open Friday Evenings Commencing July 11

"Starting Friday, July 11, Thief River Falls stores will remain open Friday evenings until 9 o'clock during the months of July, August and September, it was decided Wednesday morning at a meeting of the merchants committee of the Civic and Commerce association. The arrangement, it is explained, is designed to benefit residents of the rural areas, who during the busy summer season may not always find it convenient to come to the city earlier in the day."

Heidi Johnson Wins AAUW Writing Contest

Heidi Johnson, daughter of Dr. Peter and Judy Johnson and a 1997 graduate of Lincoln high school, has been named a first place winner in the writing contest sponsored by the local chapter of the American Association of University Women. Topic of the contest was "Women in Government: Working to Make a Difference."

Second place winner was Jenni Eriksen, daughter of Bradley and Janelle Eriksen.

We have chosen to present Heidi's first place entry as our guest editorial for today, not because of its opinion content but as a special recognition of student writing, which we strongly encourage. Jenni's second place entry is being published along with a story about the contest in this issue of The Times.

We commend the AAUW for sponsoring the student writing contest and congratulate Heidi and Jenni on their selection as winners. Following is Heidi's first place entry:

Sandra Day O'Connor
by Heidi Johnson

When President Reagan appointed Sandra Day O'Connor to the Supreme Court in 1981, women had been practicing law in the United States for 112 years. Despite over a century of practice in law, the first woman to be appointed to the Supreme Court was Sandra Day O'Connor. Not only did she grow up and decide to go into the field of law, but she also became a very influential woman as she cast the deciding votes in some of the nation's most important court cases.

Sandra Day O'Connor grew up on a ranch in Phoenix, Arizona. during Sandra's preschool years, her mother spent a great deal of time reading with her. When Sandra was six years old, she moved to El Paso to live with her grandmother and go to school.

O'Connor believed her grandmother most influenced her life and was very supportive during her formative years. O'Connor once said, "She would always tell me that I could do anything I wanted to do. She convinced me of that and it was very encouraging.

After high school, O'Connor attended Stanford University where she received a degree in economics and graduated from law school. she was third in her graduating class when only three percent of the nation's law students were women.

Upon graduating from Stanford Law School, she married lawyer John O'Connor. Sandra Day O'Connor looked for employment in San Francisco and Los Angeles, but none of the law firms had ever hired a woman lawyer and were unwilling to do so. Eventually, O'Connor found a job in a county attorney's office. When her husband finished school, they both worked for the United States army in Germany.

After leaving Germany, they moved back to Phoenix, Arizona, where her husband joined a Phoenix law firm, and O'Connor became a mother working only part-time as a lawyer. At this time she became involved in the local Republican Party. Soon the was appointed to fill a vacancy in the Arizona State Senate.

O'Connor became the first woman to serve as the majority leader of any state senate. (Author Paul J.) Deegan notes that O'Connor was a hard worker who "would overwhelm you with her knowledge."

Although O'Connor did not run for another term in the Arizona Senate in 1974, she continued to encourage women to influence others. According to (Judith) Bently in her book Justice Sandra Day O'Connor, O'Connor's message was, "If women want real power and change, they must run for public office and use the vote more intelligently."

When Ronald Reagan made a campaign promise to appoint a woman to the Supreme Court, O'Connor was serving on the Arizona Court of Appeals. In 1981 Reagan nominated O'Connor, and soon she was appointed as the first woman to serve on the United States Supreme Court.

On the day that O'Connor was sworn in, she stated at a dinner party, "Thomas Jefferson and James Madison would be turning over in their graves right now, but let's hope Abigail Adams would be pleased." Yes, Abigail Adams would be pleased because O'Connor took on her position with integrity and poise. She soon became a respected member of the United States Supreme Court.

Although President Reagan appointed her as a conservative, O'Connor has proved to be more of a moderate in her voting record. Her vote has proven to be pivotal in many cases. According to Time, O'Connor "has become the swing vote on issues such as affirmative action, racial redistricting and the separation of church and state."

One of O'Connor's most controversial and influential votes was four years ago in "Planned Parenthood v. Casey." O'Connor's vote was pivotal in upholding "Roe v. Wade," one of the most volatile issues in our country."

Not only has O'Connor been very influential on the Supreme Court, but she also has been a very positive role model for women. (Carl) Cannon states in Working Women that "women now make up half the population of every major law school in the country." Cannon goes on to say, "O'Connor is very proud to be a role model to women. She likes to talk about the thousands of letters she has received from women and young girls saying that they were inspired by her appointment."

O'Connor truly is a pioneer. She was able to successfully pursue a career while raising a family. She was able to rise through the ranks of the legal profession and pave the way for other women to pursue their dreams.

Salvation Army needs volunteers

Although the flood waters have receded and many residents are returning to their homes, The Salvation Army's Operation We Care flood recovery efforts continue in the Red River Valley as it will be many months before the flood-affected communities are back to normal.

"Even though we are no longer in the relief phase, the need for volunteers to support our long-term efforts is extremely important in terms of helping these flood-affected communities recover," stated Major David Dalberg, The Salvation Army's national emergency disaster director. "Our number one priority is to help those residents rebuild their lives, and we are calling on the community to assist us in our recovery efforts."

At The Salvation Army's Distribution Center in Brooklyn Center, volunteers are urgently needed to sort supplies in the warehouse and to staff the Operation We Care phone bank. In addition, volunteers are also needed to do data entry and general office work.

In Grand Forks, ND, and East Grand Forks, volunteers are needed at The Salvation Army's Distribution Centers to operate forklifts, unload supplies and stack incoming supplies which are distributed to residents. Cooks and cook assistants are also needed to prepare food for mobile feeding units and for Operation We Care volunteers and staff.

Those interested in volunteering, contributing in-kind goods, and/or MasterCard/Visa financial support should call 1-800-SAL-ARMY. County Options Election Set Monday

"With issues between prohibitionists apparently somewhat confused, Pennington county citizens today are confronted by a barrage of arguments from both sides as they prepare to go to the polls Monday, June 9, in the county option election to vote yes or no on the question, 'Shall the Sale of Liquor be Prohibited?'"

"Shall prohibition be continued in Pennington county? That is the question to be decided in Monday's election.

"Those who oppose the repeal of prohibition in Pennington county state as one of their objections the possibility that we may have privately operated saloons in Thief River Falls. That is about as much of a possibility as oats growing on potato vines.

"There probably are a few individuals who would like to see privately operated liquor stores in Thief River Falls providing they owned the franchise. However there is no more sentiment in Thief River Falls in favor of this type of operation than there is for the sale of the municipal light plant, and that is a possibility no reasonable citizen concerns himself about because it just isn't going to happen.

"Another objection that deserves more serious consideration is the statement that all of the financial benefits of a municipal liquor store operation will accrue to the city and that the rural community will receive no financial benefits.

"Other communities have secured special legislation for special projects. We need more hospital facilities. We need better court house facilities. There are many things we need as a community that will benefit all of the community, rural as well as urban.

"Civic organizations and representative citizens of Thief River Falls are pledging their support to a program of this kind. What are these promises worth? Well, they are worth this much: that if they are not kept, then the people of this county can restore prohibition.

"The question to be decided in Monday's election is not whether Pennington county is going to be wet or dry. We are wet already and this is admitted by both the wets and drys. All agree that the present condition as far as liquor and drinking are concerned is bad. Some believe the repeal of prohibition will make conditions worse. Others believe the repeal of prohibition will make conditions better.

"We believe the repeal of prohibition will make conditions better. We believe that prohibition has failed because it has not had general public support. Good law enforcement is impossible largely because juries will not convict. We believe that legalized sale and control will have greater public support and will result in better law enforcement. And that is why we urge the voters of Pennington county to vote 'NO' to the question, 'Shall the Sale of Liquor be Prohibited?'"

Local Stores To Stay Open Friday Evenings Commencing July 11

"Starting Friday, July 11, Thief River Falls stores will remain open Friday evenings until 9 o'clock during the months of July, August and September, it was decided Wednesday morning at a meeting of the merchants committee of the Civic and Commerce association. The arrangement, it is explained, is designed to benefit residents of the rural areas, who during the busy summer season may not always find it convenient to come to the city earlier in the day."

Heidi Johnson Wins AAUW Writing Contest

Heidi Johnson, daughter of Dr. Peter and Judy Johnson and a 1997 graduate of Lincoln high school, has been named a first place winner in the writing contest sponsored by the local chapter of the American Association of University Women. Topic of the contest was "Women in Government: Working to Make a Difference."

Second place winner was Jenni Eriksen, daughter of Bradley and Janelle Eriksen.

We have chosen to present Heidi's first place entry as our guest editorial for today, not because of its opinion content but as a special recognition of student writing, which we strongly encourage. Jenni's second place entry is being published along with a story about the contest in this issue of The Times.

We commend the AAUW for sponsoring the student writing contest and congratulate Heidi and Jenni on their selection as winners. Following is Heidi's first place entry:

Sandra Day O'Connor
by Heidi Johnson

When President Reagan appointed Sandra Day O'Connor to the Supreme Court in 1981, women had been practicing law in the United States for 112 years. Despite over a century of practice in law, the first woman to be appointed to the Supreme Court was Sandra Day O'Connor. Not only did she grow up and decide to go into the field of law, but she also became a very influential woman as she cast the deciding votes in some of the nation's most important court cases.

Sandra Day O'Connor grew up on a ranch in Phoenix, Arizona. During Sandra's preschool years, her mother spent a great deal of time reading with her. When Sandra was six years old, she moved to El Paso to live with her grandmother and go to school.

O'Connor believed her grandmother most influenced her life and was very supportive during her formative years. O'Connor once said, "She would always tell me that I could do anything I wanted to do. She convinced me of that and it was very encouraging."

After high school, O'Connor attended Stanford University where she received a degree in economics and graduated from law school. She was third in her graduating class when only three percent of the nation's law students were women.

Upon graduating from Stanford Law School, she married lawyer John O'Connor. Sandra Day O'Connor looked for employment in San Francisco and Los Angeles, but none of the law firms had ever hired a woman lawyer and were unwilling to do so. Eventually, O'Connor found a job in a county attorney's office. When her husband finished school, they both worked for the United States army in Germany.

After leaving Germany, they moved back to Phoenix, Arizona, where her husband joined a Phoenix law firm, and O'Connor became a mother working only part-time as a lawyer. At this time she became involved in the local Republican Party. Soon she was appointed to fill a vacancy in the Arizona State Senate.

O'Connor became the first woman to serve as the majority leader of any state senate. (Author Paul J.) Deegan notes that O'Connor was a hard worker who "would overwhelm you with her knowledge."

Although O'Connor did not run for another term in the Arizona Senate in 1974, she continued to encourage women to influence others. According to (Judith) Bently in her book Justice Sandra Day O'Connor, O'Connor's message was, "If women want real power and change, they must run for public office and use the vote more intelligently."

When Ronald Reagan made a campaign promise to appoint a woman to the Supreme Court, O'Connor was serving on the Arizona Court of Appeals. In 1981 Reagan nominated O'Connor, and soon she was appointed as the first woman to serve on the United States Supreme Court.

On the day that O'Connor was sworn in, she stated at a dinner party, "Thomas Jefferson and James Madison would be turning over in their graves right now, but let's hope Abigail Adams would be pleased." Yes, Abigail Adams would be pleased because O'Connor took on her position with integrity and poise. She soon became a respected member of the United States Supreme Court.

Although President Reagan appointed her as a conservative, O'Connor has proved to be more of a moderate in her voting record. Her vote has proven to be pivotal in many cases. According to Time, O'Connor "has become the swing vote on issues such as affirmative action, racial redistricting and the separation of church and state."

One of O'Connor's most controversial and influential votes was four years ago in "Planned Parenthood v. Casey." O'Connor's vote was pivotal in upholding "Roe v. Wade," one of the most volatile issues in our country."

Not only has O'Connor been very influential on the Supreme Court, but she also has been a very positive role model for women. (Carl) Cannon states in Working Women that "women now make up half the population of every major law school in the country." Cannon goes on to say, "O'Connor is very proud to be a role model to women. She likes to talk about the thousands of letters she has received from women and young girls saying that they were inspired by her appointment."

O'Connor truly is a pioneer. She was able to successfully pursue a career while raising a family. She was able to rise through the ranks of the legal profession and pave the way for other women to pursue their dreams.

Salvation Army needs volunteers

Although the flood waters have receded and many residents are returning to their homes, The Salvation Army's Operation We Care flood recovery efforts continue in the Red River Valley as it will be many months before the flood-affected communities are back to normal.

"Even though we are no longer in the relief phase, the need for volunteers to support our long-term efforts is extremely important in terms of helping these flood-affected communities recover," stated Major David Dalberg, The Salvation Army's national emergency disaster director. "Our number one priority is to help those residents rebuild their lives and we are calling on the community to assist us in our recovery efforts."

At The Salvation Army's Distribution Center in Brooklyn Center, volunteers are urgently needed to sort supplies in the warehouse and to staff the Operation We Care phone bank. In addition, volunteers are also needed to do data entry and general office work.

In Grand Forks, ND, and East Grand Forks, volunteers are needed at The Salvation Army's Distribution Centers to operate fork-lifts, unload supplies and stock incoming supplies which are distributed to residents. Cooks and cook assistants are also needed to prepare food for mobile feeding units and for Operation We Care volunteers and staff.

Those interested in volunteering, contributing in-kind goods, and/or MasterCard/Visa financial support should call 1-800-SAL-ARMY. Checks marked "Flood Relief" may be directed to: 2300 Freeway Boulevard, Brooklyn Center, MN 55320 or any local Salvation Army office. In Thief River Falls, checks may be sent to the Pennington County Law Enforcement Center.

ECHOES FROM THE PAST
HISTORICAL REVIEW OF THE TIMES AND ST. HILAIRE SPECTATOR

FROM THE PAGES OF THE TIMES
50 YEARS AGO — JUNE 5, 1947
by Jerome and Donna Myhrer

County Options Election Set Monday

"With issues between prohibitionists apparently somewhat confused, Pennington county citizens today are confronted by a barrage of arguments from both sides as they prepare to go to the polls Monday, June 9, in the county option election to vote yes or no on the question, 'Shall the Sale of Liquor be Prohibited?'"

"Shall prohibition be continued in Pennington county? That is the question to be decided in Monday's election.

"Those who oppose the repeal of prohibition in Pennington county state as one of their objections the possibility that we may have privately operated saloons in Thief River Falls. That is about as much of a possibility as oats growing on potato vines.

"There probably are a few individuals who would like to see privately operated liquor stores in Thief River Falls providing they owned the franchise. However there is no more sentiment in Thief River Falls in favor of this type of operation than there is for the sale of the municipal light plant, and that is a possibility no reasonable citizen concerns himself about because it just isn't going to happen.

"Another objection that deserves more serious consideration is the statement that all of the financial benefits of a municipal liquor store operation will accrue to the city and that the rural community will receive no financial benefits.

"Other communities have secured special legislation for special projects. We need more hospital facilities. We need better court house facilities. There are many things we need as a community that will benefit all of the community, rural as well as urban.

"Civic organizations and representative citizens of Thief River Falls are pledging their support to a program of this kind. What are these promises worth? Well, they are worth this much: that if they are not kept, then the people of this county can restore prohibition.

"The question to be decided in Monday's election is not whether Pennington county is going to be wet or dry. We are wet already and this is admitted by both the wets and drys. All agree that the present condition as far as liquor and drinking are concerned is bad. Some believe the repeal of prohibition will make conditions worse. Others believe the repeal of prohibition will make conditions better.

"We believe the repeal of prohibition will make conditions better. We believe that prohibition has failed because it has not had general public support. Good law enforcement is impossible largely because juries will not convict. We believe that legalized sale and control will have greater public support and will result in better law enforcement. And that is why we urge the voters of Pennington county to vote 'NO' to the question, 'Shall the Sale of Liquor be Prohibited?'"

Council Rejects Bids For Seeding Airport Runways

"The city council at a special meeting Tuesday rejected the bid of Oscar Schenkey in the amount of $2,077 for seeding the runways on the local airport, a total of 67 acres. The Schenkey bid was the only one received."

Window Smashed In Oen's Store; Reward Offered

"Roy J. Oen, manager of the Oen Mercantile company, today offered a $25 reward for information leading to the arrest and conviction of the person who deliberately smashed a plate glass display window in the grocery department late last Thursday night."

KTRF To Air Interview With H. Finstad June 7

"H. I. Finstad of Rocksbury, president of the Pennington county Farm Bureau and vice president of the Red Lake Electric Cooperative will be interviewed on the weekly Farm Bureau hour over Radio Station KTRF Saturday morning, June 7, at 11 o'clock. Conducting the interview will be Melvin L. Weell of Crookston, affiliated with the organization service of the Minnesota Farm Bureau Federation."

Local Stores To Stay Open Friday Evenings Commencing July 11

"Starting Friday, July 11, Thief River Falls stores will remain open Friday evenings until 9 o'clock during the months of July, August and September, it was decided Wednesday morning at a meeting of the merchants committee of the Civic and Commerce association. The arrangement, it is explained, is designed to benefit residents of the rural areas, who during the busy summer season may not always find it convenient to come to the city earlier in the day."

Redinger is School District 564 Teacher of the Year

Walter Redinger, teacher of the year for School District 564, listens intently and makes notes as a student presents a final report on a country researched for his middle school geography class. Redinger is retiring at the end of this year after 38 years in education, including 28 years in the Thief River Falls school system, nearly all at the middle school level.

by Marvin Lundin
Times Editor

"It would only seem right that a teacher with the 'gift of teaching,' who has dedicated his life with so much enthusiasm, love and joy for the profession, be honored as teacher of the year. What a wonderful way to recognize him for his past years of service as he comes to the close of his teaching years. We can never say 'Thank you' enough to our teachers.

"I know there are many other nominees, all of whom must be wonderful teachers in their own right to have received the nomination. I only hope that you can imagine what it means to have had at least 100 teachers (in school alone) and to be able to put 'Mr. Red' at the top of an elite list of seven or eight teachers, of whom I feel had the greatest impact on me during my lifetime."

These final paragraphs are from an unsolicited letter written by Kathryn Renwick of Grand Forks, ND, who was a sixth grade mathematics student of Wally Redinger in 1975. Following evacuation from her home due to Red River flooding this spring, she returned to Thief River Falls and enrolled her daughter in Franklin middle school. She says that 'Mr. Red' was the first of her former teachers to recognize her and ask how she was doing.

Redinger, who is retiring this year after 38 years in education—28 of them in Thief River Falls—was selected as School District 564 Teacher of the Year for 1997 by the Thief River Falls Education Association. He will be one of a number of nominees in the state for Minnesota Teacher of the Year.

He is married to the former Marilyn Joyce Hill of Chicago, IL, who was born and raised in the Alvarado area. They have two sons, Don and Dale Redinger and one daughter, Karen Redinger Hill.

A graduate of Wabeno high school in Wisconsin, Marinette Teachers College in that state and holder of a Bachelor of Elementary Education Degree from Wisconsin State University in Whitewater, he has completed over 75 hours of graduate work toward an administration major at Northern Illinois University at DeKalb, toward a special education major at Moorhead State University and toward middle school certification at Bemidji State University and St. Cloud State University.

Holder of elementary and middle school licenses, he is certified to teach grades K-8 and middle school subjects of math, science, English, social studies and special education.

His first 10 years of teaching were in Elmhurst, IL. In his first three years in Thief River Falls he taught in the special education department at Franklin junior high school, then at Mark Twain elementary school. For the past 24 years he has been at Franklin as a teacher of science, math, Title I, American history, English and world geography and serving stints as assistant to the principal and student council advisor as well as School District 564 Title I director.

For three years during the summer months he taught English overseas—in Latvia in 1993, Slovakia in 1994 and Poland in 1996.

He has served as secretary, vice president and president of the Thief

County fair to offer six days of carnival rides

In an effort to compensate county fair goers for a sparse midway at the 1996 Pennington County Fair, there will be six days during which youngsters can use their mega passes at the 1997 fair. The carnival will be in operation July 15-20.

Rogers Brothers Shows has been contracted for the fair this year and will be in operation Tuesday, July 15, at 5 p.m. Passes for that session only will be available for $5. Mega ride passes for all six days the carnival will be in operation will be available for $25 each. Other options are $15 passes for one-day, all-day participation for a single day, or $10 for a noon to 6 p.m. or 6 p.m. to closing session.

"We were disappointed last year when our carnival failed to meet its contract obligations and the midway was less than what the Pennington County Fair wants to provide to those who attend," said Floyd Erickson, who was president of the county fair board last year.

"I announced publicly after last year's fair that we would make every effort to make it up to the public in 1997. We have contracted a different carnival which promises to make the Pennington County Fair 'a fair to relive.'"

Erickson provided The Times with a letter from Michael Stevens, president of Rodgers Bros. Funland, which was intended for the county fair board and the community. The letter follows.

"I would like to take this opportunity to thank all the fair board members for their choice of Funland Rogers Bros. Shows as their new carnival company. Thief River Falls and the surrounding communities that support their county fair will be very pleased with our operations and professional staff.

"We have a very family oriented carnival in which our staff and management all take part in presenting the most congenial, professional carnival in the Midwest. Funland has been servicing Minnesota since 1924. Our reputation stands behind us.

"We have a drug program that enables Funland to keep a drug free work place. Our staff is required to have a professional appearance, which means all uniformed staff, identification pictures, no long hair, no beards, etc. Most importantly, Funland maintains a safe environment both for its staff and guests. Rides go through inspections every day one hour before opening and some even periodically throughout the day.

"During your fair last year, I did stop in to visit. It was a sad thing that happened. We take a special pride in all the fairs we service, and no matter how big or small they may be, our goal is the same—'To Make Memories Worth Living Again.' The 1997 Pennington County Fair will be a fair to relive."

Stevens listed the carnival's rides as of May 21, 1997, noting that sometimes equipment is purchased, traded or damaged during the season, causing minor changes by fair time.

He listed the "spectacular" rides as the Gondola Ferris Wheel, Orbiter, Gravitron, Hurricane and Zipper with the Streak Himalaya as

Danielle Goulet in TRF pageant

Danielle Goulet, 17, will be one of seven candidates for the Miss Thief River Falls title Saturday, June 28, at the Lincoln high school auditorium.

(This is the third in a series of articles in The Times and Northern Watch about candidates for the Miss Thief River Falls title at the official Miss America Preliminary Pageant to be held Saturday, June 28, in the Lincoln high school auditorium.)

Music has played a major role in Danielle Goulet's life in the schools of School District 564 and in the Thief River Falls community. Her talent number at the Miss Thief River Falls scholarship pageant will be a vocal solo entitled "Someone Else's Story."

The daughter of Mrs. Linda Goulet, an accounting teacher at Lincoln high school, and the late John (Jack) Goulet, 17-year-old Danielle is a 1997 graduate of Lincoln high school. She plans to attend Horst Education Center/Aveda Institute this fall to earn a two-year degree in hair design and theatrical make-up. Included in the program is a one-year internship in Europe.

A voice student for seven years, she has been a member of the Lincoln choir and Swingsations jazz choir, participating in the trip to New York City to sing in Carnegie hall, St. Patrick's Cathedral and other locations.

She has earned awards for her solo and group presentations at state area competition, participated in musicals, soloed at school activities including the senior banquet, and been active in musical presentations at church and community events. She has also been a member of the school orchestra.

The youngest of three sisters, she has frequently joined with Niccole, 23 and Angelique, 21 in a family vocal trio.

In addition to her participation in musical activities, Danielle has served as president of the student senate at Lincoln and vice president of the school's chapter of the National Honor Society and been a member of the National Athletic Honor Society.

Belmont resigns from school board Monday

Meeting closed to discuss personnel matter

by David Hill
Associate Editor

Larry Belmont, school district board member, tendered his resignation to the school board Monday night. Belmont, who has served on the board since 1988, has moved out of the school district.

Monday night Belmont said "it was a good ride. A lot of good things happened."

Belmont has a funeral home in Henning.

Board Chairman Carl Clark thanked Belmont for his years of service and dedication to the students and residents of School District 564. He then presented him with a plaque in recognition of his service.

At the conclusion of the meeting Monday night, the board closed the meeting to consider personnel issues. There was no discussion regarding the nature of the discussion or who was the subject of the discussion. Board Chairman Clark said it was done in accordance with the Data Privacy Act.

The recommendation presented to the board stated: "Recommend closing the regular board meeting at this time, pursuant to the Open Meeting Law, for initial discussion regarding the investigation of concerns regarding an employee."

According to the open meeting law, one of the reasons a public meeting may be closed is for "preliminary consideration of charges" against an employee. In the case of a teacher, hearings on teacher and student discipline may be closed. It is not legal to close a meeting of a public body simply to discuss "personnel matters".

Flag Day services set for Saturday, June 14

Elks Lodge No. 1308 of Thief River Falls will observe Flag Day with a special service Saturday, June 14, at 10 a.m. at Elks Park near the Third Street Bridge on the Red Lake River.

The program is open to the general public. In past years the program has been well received by members of the general public in attendance. If it is raining Saturday morning, the service will be moved indoors to the Elks lodge rooms at the scheduled time.

Flag Day observance is one of the mandatory programs of the Benevolent and Protective Order of Elks. More than 2,500 lodges throughout the United States will be presenting a program in honor of the flag of the United States of America.

Lisa Swanson competes in Miss Minnesota pageant

For Lisa Swanson, Miss Thief River Falls 1996-97, it must seem like the past year has been one of almost constant running. She ran on the Prowler track team last spring, ran for Miss Thief River Falls last summer, ran during indoor and outdoor track seasons at Jamestown College and this week is running for the title of Miss Minnesota.

"It has been a bit of a hectic year, but it has been fun and I'm looking forward to the state competition," Lisa said in an interview Thursday, following the farewell party held in her honor at the Elks club rooms.

There are just 10 contestants for the Miss Minnesota title gathered in Austin this week, eliminating the need for preliminary competition. All will participate in the final pageant Saturday, June 14, at 7:30 p.m. at Richard L. Knowlton auditorium in Austin high school.

Activity began Sunday noon, June 8, and continues throughout this week with special events and competition in personal interview, talent, evening gown and swimsuit. Included in the festivities will be a parade through downtown Austin June 13 and two evening talent shows, one featuring past Miss Minnesota titleholders on June 13 and the other showcasing the talents of this year's pageant contestants on June 12.

The new Miss Minnesota will share in more than $15,000 in scholarship awards and prizes and represent the state in the Miss America Pageant in September. Co-hosts for the finals competition will be Dorothy Benham McGowan, Miss Minnesota 1976 and Miss America 1977, and Lynne Schacher Eldred, former Miss Thief River Falls and Miss Minnesota 1989. Ending her reign as Miss Minnesota will be Sherry Johnson, Owatonna, a former Thief River Falls resident who has close relatives here.

Lisa is the northern-most contestant in the state pageant. Miss Marshall County is Pamela Osterfeld of Perham. Other contestants are from Frazee, New Brighton, Morris, Perham, Wayzata, Roseville, Janesville and Winona.

"I met all of the contestants at the Girl Talk session in Winona early in

An aria from the Italian opera "La Sonnambula" by Vincenzo Bellini is Lisa Swanson's talent presentation at the Miss Minnesota Scholarship Pageant in Austin this week. She will perform with the other nine contestants in a talent program Thursday evening and at the pageant finals Saturday. She is pictured during a farewell party last Thursday in the Elks club rooms.

Praise Quartet from Pensacola Christian College in Pensacola, FL, will present a program of music, message, skits and multimedia presentation about the college Tuesday, June 17, at 7 p.m. at Precious Seed Baptist Church, 1007 East County Road 67, Thief River Falls. The quartet and its accompanist is one of eight traveling groups representing the college in more than 700 churches and schools throughout the United States and Canada during the summer months. Team members from left include, front, Chad Aylestock and Curt Pennington; back, Kevin Dear, Brian Yohe and Matthew Wright. The public is invited to attend. A free will offering will be taken for the group and refreshments will follow the service in the church fellowship hall.

Cole end Submarine course

Navy Seaman Allen J. Cole, a 1996 graduate of Lincoln High School, recently graduated from the Basic Enlisted Submarine Course at the naval Submarine School in Groton, CT.

During the five-week course, Cole learned the basic theory, construction and operation of nuclear-powered submarines, shipboard organization, damage control, submarine safety and escape procedures.

Cole participated in training with reality simulators and practiced fire-fighting and flood control on board a submarine. He also learned about a submarine's basic hydraulic, water and air systems and practiced escaping from a simulated sunken submarine.

With nearly 50 percent of the navy's ships and submarines deployed at any given time, Cole will spend roughly a quarter of his first enlistment at sea. He joined the navy in January of 1997.

Home cooking and fellowship attract seniors to nutrition program

by Kathi Carlson
Times Reporter

Mouthwatering smells of good old fashioned home cooking permeate the air Monday through Friday at the Heritage Community Center in Thief River Falls. Making this possible are the Senior Nutrition Program and, of course, a couple good cooks.

In its tenth year, the program is a joint partnership between Lutheran Social Services and the Thief River Falls community. The program provides nutritious meals and much needed social contact for individuals 60 or older with a focus on keeping seniors healthy, active and living independent lives.

A nutritionally balanced, hot meal including milk, salad and dessert is served five days a week starting at 11:45 a.m. Every month, there are also two evening and two Sunday meals. While reservations are requested for all meals, walk-ins are welcome.

The menus are planned by a dietician and provide one-third of the recommended daily requirements. Special foods are available for those on diabetic, low-salt or low-fat diets. Frozen meals are also offered upon request for shut-ins or persons recovering from surgery and unable to get out enabling them to stay in their home longer. Frozen meals can also be used in case of storms or on holidays and days when the center is not open.

For those who sign up, meals are served at three satellite sites, Riverside Terrace, Gunderson Apartments and Skylite Apartments. Not to be confused with Meals on Wheels, the meals are bulk delivered and served in a congregate setting by volunteers arranged by the site.

If one spouse is 60 or older, the other is eligible regardless of age. A confidential donation is requested for the meal. The suggested amount is $2.50. No one is turned away because of inability to donate. Others wishing to use the program are welcome to do so at a set fee of $4.50 per meal.

Subsidized by the federal and state governments, the bulk of revenue comes from the seniors themselves and their fund-raising efforts. Help also comes from the city, local churches and the United Way.

Prior to 1995, all senior nutrition funding went into a regional pot and if there was a regional deficit, all sites were asked to hold fund-raisers and contribute to the regional pot. Sites that were careful about food costs and use of supplies ended up subsidizing those with higher expenses.

In 1995, community based budget partnerships were formed. Each year, Lutheran Social Services sets a budget for each site based on the number of meals served the previous year. Each site is analyzed individually and receives a monthly statement of revenue and expense for that site only.

A local Nutrition Council and senior meal participants make financial decisions that will affect their site. Each site has a local sponsor, and expenses exceeding income are the responsibility of the local sponsoring organization. All fund-raising dollars stay with the local program.

The Nutrition Council is made up of eight volunteer members elected to serve two year terms. Local members are Frank Womack, president; Gerry Peterson, vice president; Thelma Peterson, secretary; Olive Lunke, treasurer; Roy Jorgenson, community representative; Gladys Anderson, Adeline Pederson and Alder Pederson. Their responsibilities include advising staff of the needs and concerns of site customers and reviewing menus.

Fund-raising is one of the Nutrition Council's largest responsibilities and is carried out in a number of annual fund-raising projects.

A successful pancake breakfast and bake sale were held recently. Funds raised were matched by Lutheran Brotherhood. Other projects planned include a soup and sandwich supper and lefse sale.

Money raised by the Nutrition Council is used to replace small appliances, furnish coffee for the center and purchase door prizes for special events. Recently, they were able to purchase a freezer with fund raising dollars and a grant from Operation Roundup. The Nutrition Council also receives funding from the United Way.

It is important to note that the Senior Nutrition Program and the Heritage Community Center are two separate entities with the center providing the building and the Nutrition Program providing the food.

The Senior Nutrition Program has only three paid employees. Site Manager Shannon Olson's salary is paid equally by Lutheran Social Services and the center. The head cook, Carolyn Jablinske, has been with the program for three years, and Bea Israelson, the second cook, has five years experience. In order to make things run smoothly, teamwork is essential. Holding a dietary supervisor's certificate, Jablinske orders food from Food Services of Fargo and keeps a close watch on local specials. Everything is made from scratch using no prepared foods. Keeping food costs low is a priority as the cooks strive to keep the cost per meal at $1.22 or less. In April, Jablinske was credited with keeping the average cost per meal at 93 cents. While meal reservations are requested, Jablinske usually knows how much food to prepare from the menu offered on any given day.

Volunteers set up the tables, collect the donations, serve the meal, wash the dishes and clean up. Volunteers are coordinated by the site manager with assistance from the Nutrition Council.

The program is always looking for donations from local organizations and private individuals. While most donations are monetary, the program has accepted and welcomed such gifts as a half a beef.

Numbers tell the story with regard to the success and importance of this program. In 1996, the number of meals per month averaged 943. Through April of this year, that average was 1,400 per month.

Most importantly, participants praise the program. They comment about the "really good food", the cleanliness and the fact that rain or shine, it gives them a reason to get out of their homes. Social interaction seems a high priority. As one lady stated, "Who wants to eat alone?"

Head cook, Carolyn Jablinske, and second cook, Bea Israelson rely on teamwork to keep things running smoothly in the kitchen at the Heritage Center where meals for the Senior Nutrition Program are cooked five days a week.

Volunteers serve the meals, set up the tables, collect the donations, wash the dishes and clean up every weekday when Senior Nutrition Meals are served at the Heritage Center.

Pfc. Johnson graduates from Army chaplain assistant course

Army Pfc. Melissa K. Johnson has graduated from the chaplain assistant course at Fort Jackson, Columbia, SC.

The course stressed religious support, development of interpersonal skills, unit ministry support to soldiers and family members, provided for services in a battlefield environment and battle fatigue casualty care.

Religious support classes not only taught students to prepare altars for Protestant, Catholic, Jewish and Orthodox services, but stressed the importance of knowing about these and other faith groups represented in the Army.

Johnson, daughter of Delmar and Carolyn Johnson of Middle River, was an honor graduate of the course. A 1993 graduate of Middle River-Greenbush High School, Johnson received an associate degree from the University of Minnesota, Crookston in 1995.

ON THE OTHER HAND

Michelle Mathson
Lincoln High School

As you read this, I will have gone through one of the biggest events of my life...my high school graduation. Right now, I am just tired and reality hasn't hit me yet. I won't be at Lincoln next year, but I can't even imagine myself at college. Why is that? Why is it so hard to imagine ourselves anywhere other that where we are right at this very moment. For me, I think I'm in denial.

Right now, I want to deny the fact that I'm not a kid anymore. Personally, I don't think childhood was all that bad. Sure, I had to be in bed by eight and I couldn't drive, but what kind of worries does a three year-old have? They have the world in the palm of their hand; everyone thinks they are adorable angels, so life is handed to them on a silver platter. Do three year-olds pay bills? Do they have to do projects for English? Do they have to make car payments? My point exactly.

I want to deny the fact that I won't be as close to be my sister's guide. All my life I have been the trailblazer for my sister, since I am the oldest. When she came to Lincoln, she had the advantage of someone who knew the ropes. She doesn't have to do any guesswork when it comes to choosing classes for next year because she asks me for the scoop and ends up having the same schedule I did. There is never a time when she has absolutely no idea what she's getting into, and I am sometimes jealous. Sure, life is more of an adventure when no one is guiding you, but it would be nice to have someone to turn to and ask, "What did you do when...?"

I am in denial that my high school career is over. When I was younger, seniors were the ones who were untouchable. They had it all together. I now realize the only thing they had together was their outer masks. We seniors have gotten pretty good at masking the chaos going on in our minds. I mean, really...who wants to hang out with a basket case senior? We have to keep the tradition of the "Carefree Graduate" alive. It's a tough job, but someone's got to do it.

I am in denial that I have to move away, and I am not alone. Many of my fellow classmates have expressed this concern, although they would never admit it in public. They have to keep up the facade of wanting to blow this dinky town and explore their freedom. True, we do want to try new things, but it's going to be very hard for many of us to cut the strings and be flung into a new place by ourselves. Many are underestimating the shock it will have on their system. I can only hope our families are prepared for the blast.

I am in denial that I have to go back to being a freshman. Just when I thought I had the senior thing figured out, I get thrown back into the fishbowl to start the process all over again. The three years being an underclassman was full of anticipation, and before I knew it, my one year to reign was over. It's just not fair.

I am in denial about the fact I won't be in Thief River Falls next year. Personally, I believe TRF to be a wonderful place to grow up. True, we may not have the excitement of the big city, but the closeness of the people is something that's irreplaceable. I can go through the Lincoln year book and name almost everyone in the school. I doubt if students in places such as Elgin can do that! The people of Thief River Falls have a lot of pride in this city, and rightfully so. It is truly a place where everybody knows your name.

As I head to Concordia next fall, I will be writing another chapter in "Michelle's Wacky Life Adventures," and all of my fellow classmates will be doing the same. I hope they have recovered from this past weekend's hoopla. It's rough, but we can handle it! I know they will all succeed in the future because they are all members of the best class to come out of Lincoln...the class of '97.

Paint!

Take advantage of sunny, hot days to encourage a little touch up "painting" outdoors. Fill several buckets with water. Take the buckets, along with several wide household paintbrushes outside. Invite your little ones to use the buckets and brushes to give the sidewalk, house, swings and other items in sight a coat of this invisible, quick-drying paint! Your outside will be spruced up in no time at all!

PARENTING TIPS

Rainy Day Activities

Rainy days can provide parents with some of their greatest challenges. This is especially true if children are accustomed to vigorous outdoor play. Parents must provide their children with interesting, exciting activities if household peace and sanity are to be maintained. Here are some ideas.

- Cut pictures from catalogs or magazines. Cover these pictures with clear contact paper after mounting on colored paper. These can be used as gifts or to hang on the wall.
- Make a "raft" or "boat" from popsicle sticks. Glue together and after it is dry, paint it.
- Use these days for some of those specialty books, like Dot-To-Dot, Paint With Water, or Fun With Scissors.
- Make a tent of playhouse with a blanket or tablecloth over a card table or chairs.
- Read books, listen to music, look at photo albums or old catalogs.
- Go to the library.
- Cook or bake something. Let the children help as much as possible.
- Clean closets. It's amazing what you will find to entertain you and the kids for the rest of the day.
- Let the kids wash and dry all their waterproof toys.
- If you are really adventurous (and there is no lightning outside), go for a walk in the rain. Talk about how everything looks in the rain, compared to sunshine.

SOMETHING TO TALK ABOUT

Talk about what you see out your window. What is different on a rainy day, compared to a day when the sun is shining?

SPEAKING OF

Sherry LaCoursiere

. . . Perfect People

If I were the boss of a business, I would hire the most friendly, most pleasant-voiced person I could find to greet my customers. Have you ever noticed there are some businesses you just hate to call or visit and some you enjoy so much that it makes the rest of your day better? That person behind the reception desk is the reason.

I think some people are just made to greet customers. The perfect person always has a smile on her (or his) face. They even smile when they answer the telephone, something which can be heard even when it cannot be seen. This person is always courteous (even to the most impolite customer who would cause many of us to spit tacks). This person always tries to help us, no matter how long it takes or how much they have to go out of their way to do it.

This perfect person never gets impatient, never gets crabby, never looks at us like we are crazy, never frowns, and never says a nasty word. She or he smiles, deciphers our sign language and mumbled words, and finally interprets what we are trying to ask or say and ends up explaining the whole thing to us, all with grace and style and never hurting our feelings or making us feel dumb.

We all know how difficult it is to be kind and pleasant when the end of the work day is near and our feet hurt, our heads ache, our cheeks ache from smiling, our brains have taken a vacation, we have used up all of our patience, and all we want to do is get home and relax. I can't imagine where these perfect people get the ability and inner resources to continue to be friendly and helpful when a person comes for help at five minutes to closing time.

Yet I know many of these people right here in town. In fact, sometimes I am the person who comes in at closing time - sometimes I am crabby and tired from my work and I am sure I am not the nicest person to deal with. But I've experienced being helped by these people and I have always left in a better mood than when I came. Aren't they wonderful? They are treasures! We need more of them!

If you are a boss and have someone working for you who is like the perfect person I have described, you should definitely appreciate her (or him) - send flowers, raise their salary, or at least give them a pat on the back and a kind word. If you are a customer and have been served by one of these perfect people, acknowledge them, thank them, smile at them, and quit your crabbing. How lucky you are today to have met the perfect person, because you will feel better for it all through the day. Maybe some of their good humor and kindness will even rub off on you.

ACTIVITIES
Paint!

Take advantage of sunny, hot days to encourage a little touch-up "painting" outdoors. Fill several buckets with water. Take the buckets, along with several wide household paintbrushes outside. Invite your little ones to use the buckets and brushes to give the sidewalk, house, swings and other items in sight a coat of this invisible, quick-drying paint! Your outside will be spruced up in no time at all!

PARENTING TIPS
Rainy Day Activities

Rainy days can provide parents with some of their greatest challenges. This is especially true if children are accustomed to vigorous outdoor play. Parents must provide their children with interesting, exciting activities if household peace and sanity are to be maintained. Here are some ideas:

•Cut pictures from catalogs or magazines. Cover these pictures with clear contact paper after mounting on colored paper. These can be used as gifts or to hang on the wall.

•Make a "raft" or "boat" from popsicle sticks. Glue together and after it is dry, paint it.

•Use these days for some of those specialty books, like Dot-To-Dot, Paint With Water, or Fun With Scissors.

•Make a tent of playhouse with a blanket or tablecloth over a card table or chairs.

•Go to the library.

•Cook or bake something. Let the children help as much as possible.

•Clean closets. It's amazing what you will find to entertain you and the kids for the rest of the day.

•Let the kids wash and dry all their waterproof toys.

•If you are really adventurous (and there is no lightning outside), go for a walk in the rain. Talk about how everything looks in the rain, compared to sunshine.

SOMETHING TO TALK ABOUT

Talk about what you see out your window. What is different on a rainy day, compared to a day when the sun is shining?

SPEAKING OF
Sherry LaCoursiere

. . . Perfect People

If I were the boss of a business, I would hire the most friendly, most pleasant-voiced person I could find to greet my customers. Have you ever noticed there are some businesses you just hate to call or visit and some you enjoy so much that it makes the rest of your day better? That person behind the reception desk is the reason.

I think some people are just made to greet customers. The perfect person always has a smile on her (or his) face. They even smile when they answer the telephone, something which can be heard even when it cannot be seen. This person is always courteous (even to the most impolite customer who would cause many of us to spit tacks). This person always tries to help us, no matter how long it takes or how much they have to go out of their way to do it.

This perfect person never gets impatient, never gets crabby, never looks at us like we are crazy, never frowns, and never says a nasty word. She or he smiles, deciphers our sign language and mumbled words, and finally interprets what we are trying to ask or say and ends up explaining the whole thing to us, all with grace and style and never hurting our feelings or making us feel dumb.

We all know how difficult it is to be kind and pleasant when the end of the work day is near and our feet hurt, our heads ache, our cheeks ache from smiling, our brains have taken a vacation, we have used up all of our patience, and all we want to do is get home and relax. I can't imagine where these perfect people get the ability and inner resources to continue to be friendly and helpful when a person comes for help at five minutes to closing time.

Yet I know many of these people right here in town. In fact, sometimes I am the person who comes in at closing time - sometimes I am crabby and tired from my work and I am sure I am not the nicest person to deal with. But I've experienced being helped by these people and I have always left in a better mood than when I came. Aren't they wonderful? They are treasures! We need more of them!

If you are a boss and have someone working for you who is like the perfect person I have described, you should definitely appreciate her (or him) - send flowers, raise their salary, or at least give them a pat on the back and a kind word. If you are a customer and have been served by one of these perfect people, acknowledge them, thank them, smile at them, and quit your crabbing. How lucky you are today to have met the perfect person, because you will feel better for it all through the day. Maybe some of their good humor and kindness will even rub off on you.

Belmont resigns from school board

Currently, Bill Hahne, principal at Franklin Middle School, is on paid "administrative leave". School officials have been tight lipped about the subject, saying only that they are investigating and have not reached any conclusions. They did not say whether Hahne was the subject of their discussion Monday night.

According to Minnesota Statute 13.03, information on public employees specifically open includes: "existence and status of any complaints or charges against the employee, whether or not the complaint or charge resulted in a disciplinary action, the final disposition of any disciplinary action, the specific reasons for the disciplinary action, data documenting the basis of the action, and the terms of any agreement settling any dispute arising out of the employment relationship."

Darla Twomey, school board member, reported on a meeting of the joint powers board for the Multi-Events Cultural Center. Twomey said $800,000 of the $3 million in state funding for the project had already been used on licensing fees, architects and other items reducing the total project to a $2.3 million project. As a result, the board and architects are now forced to look at reductions to scale back the project. One of the major concerns now is whether those reductions would affect the scope of the project and jeopardize the state funding for the project.

The board accepted the superintendent's recommendation to approve goals for the district for the 1997-98 school year as presented. The goals are: To create a Thief River Falls partnership for learning; To expand the technology network to include community access and utilization, instructional use, information resources, communication link, management tool; To develop a quality learning system; To develop a quality human resource program for Independent School District 564; and To develop an efficient process for fiscal resource allocation. Each goal lists rational, strategies, action steps, responsibilities and/or accountability, and the evaluation of outcomes.

The school board recognized the following: Becki Olson of Thief River Falls and Jesse Bushelle of Gully for completing graduation requirements through the Area Learning Center; Tony Dorn and TRFAHA for their support of the Franklin Middle School strength training facility; the following businesses and organizations which made donations to the Little Brother/Little Sister program — Green's Funeral Home, Golden Kiwanis, Challenger Kindergarten Penny Collection, Kny Wedul Steiger, Lutheran Brotherhood NW Minnesota Branch 8129, Northwest Medical Center, Redeemer Lutheran Church, First National Bank, and Eagles Club.

The following resignations were accepted: Charles Wilcox as regular route bus driver; Kurt Philipp as regular route bus driver; Terrence Blacklance as regular route bus driver; Guy Drevlow as regular route bus driver; Judy Dimich as Lincoln Volunteer Coordinator; Sally Wiltse as head girls volleyball coach; Brent Pollum as 9th grade volleyball coach; Peggy Lawrence as high school hockey cheerleader advisor; Peggy Lawrence as 10th grade volleyball coach; Charlie Cornell as head baseball coach; Judy Charlebois as Middle school softball coach; Myron Peterson as assistant boys basketball coach; Jon Anderson as 9th grade boys basketball coach.

The board accepted the following personnel changes: a medical leave of absence for Bev Dekkers; a leave of absence without pay for Heidi Nelson; the transfer of Diane Marshall from 6th grade communications teacher to 8th grade social teacher at Franklin; the employment of Ila Flesche as .4 FTE Medical Careers Teacher at Lincoln; the employment of Terrence Blacklance as minority education coordinator; the employment of Thomas Miller as summer special ed bus driver; the employment of Thomas Miller as summer transportation assistant.

The board approved the following educational assistant assignments for the 1997-98 school year — JoAnne Kohler, 20 hour per week ECFE educational assistant; Holly Steinhauer, five hour per day Title educational assistant at Challenger; Helen Beito, six to seven hour per day grade one pupil program support assistant; Karen Basher, six to seven hour per day kindergarten pupil program support assistant; Susan Hanson, Kathy Davis and Rachel Tveiten, six to seven hour per day EBD pupil program support assistants at Challenger; Gabriel Hanson, six to seven hour per day EBD pupil program support assistant at Franklin.

The board approved the following food service assignments for the 1997-98 school year: Barbara Anderson, kitchen helper at Challenger; July Greene, cook manager at Franklin; Janet Hauge, kitchen helper at Franklin; Lois Hoaas, kitchen helper at Lincoln; Mavis Newton, cook manager at Challenger; Carrie Nicholson, kitchen helper at Challenger; Sandra Radloff, food preparation worker at Franklin; Janice Schmitke, kitchen helper at Franklin; Pat Scramstad, kitchen helper at Challenger; Jeanette Stoltman, cook manager at Lincoln; Susan Strutz, kitchen helper at Challenger; and Beverly Swanson, food preparation worker at Lincoln.

The board adjusted the mileage rate paid for district travel as of July 1, 1997, to the IRS rate of 31.5 cents per mile.

The board renewed the district's group term life insurance with MII Life through the Northwest Service Co-op for the period from July 1, 1997, through June 30, 1998.

The board rejected the low bid of Minnesota Body for one 1997 or 1998 school bus body due to problems with past performance. The board then accepted the bid of North Central Blue Bird in the amount of $17,989 for one 1997 or 1998 72-passenger school bus body. The board accepted the low qualifying bid of W.W. Wallwork in the amount of $36,705 for one 1997 or 1988 72-passenger school bus chassis. The board also accepted the low bid of Hoglund Bus Company in the amount of $69,553 for one 1997 or 1998 transit bus.

Food Service prices for the 1997-98 school year have been approved. Prices for grades kindergarten through grade 5 are $.80 for breakfast, and $1.35 for lunch. Prices for grades 6-12 are $.80 for breakfast, and $1.50 for lunch. Prices for adults are $1.25 for breakfast, and $2.35 for lunch. Reduced meal prices are $.30 for breakfast and $.40 for lunch. Redinger is TRF Teacher of the Year

River Falls Education Association, and a member and co-chairperson of the association's negotiation committee, as well as a member of numerous teams, committees and task forces.

"My brother-in-law nagged me until I decided to go (to college) just to get him off my back," Wally said. "Two months after attending Marinette Teachers College I had the opportunity to work with about seven seventh grade boys. Before the end of the first semester, I realized that I was being called to be a teacher.

"....Looking back upon my years from high school to today, it is very obvious to me that the Lord called me to be a teacher. During my teaching career I have had many other opportunities for employment in other professions. I seriously tried the special education and administration areas, both of which helped me in my teaching profession, but both assured me that I had been called to be a teacher."

Dealing with students during the exceptionally difficult years in middle school has made Redinger especially sensitive to student needs. At school, at home and in the community he makes a concerted effort to be a friendly, stimulating and encouraging teacher and guide in helping young people to discover, deal with and solve problems and needs in their lives.

In teaching students according to their varying needs, he created some assignments, tests and projects for "grade level" work. Under the system, a certain amount of work must be completed to get a C, B or A grade. Final project of the year in his geography classes is one of doing a complete report on a country, making a map and presenting a report to the class using pictures, posters, videos, slides, costumes, cultural and other items.

Redinger says he believes it is his responsibility to challenge his students to do their best in all things, at all times and in all ways. He also believes he should help students to attain certain fundamental understanding of the entire world.

His five themes in geography relate to the location of a place, its character, how the people interact with the natural environment, how people, goods and ideas move between places and how one place is similar to and different from other places.

He enlists the services of 10 to 15 students in the Global Studies program at Red Lake Falls to spend a day each at his classes, discussing their countries, answering questions and comparing problems and solutions.

"I believe that I must help and guide students to develop a philosophy of life," he said, "a set of values that will help each learn not only the differences between right and wrong but to make the desirable choices, discover which things are of greater or lesser importance and to face their problems carefully within the limits of their experiences and abilities."

Redinger also believes in recognition and awards. He is a strong supporter of the Student of the Month program at Franklin and even awards ribbons and certificates to the A students in his classes.

His influence on students and others is reflected in some of the letters of support he has received for his teacher of the year nomination.

"He was very patient and always had a listening ear to lend," a former student writes. "...When I started high school, I found myself popping into his class room just long enough to inform him on what was new in my life and what I was planning... When the hard decisions of college started to creep up my Junior and Senior years, he always had time to sit and not only listen but give advice on what would benefit me most. Now that I have been to college and have decided on a career, I realize how important these conversations were... He has forever affected the outcome of my life and I can not thank him enough for the job he has done and continues to do."

A former Thief River Falls student, now holder of a doctorate in education, writes:

I have observed Walter as a teacher, youth director in his church, father and family friend. His character has been consistent in all these roles. As a teacher he created an environment which blended discipline, fun and discovery. Walter is uniquely gifted with incredible energy which provides the catalyst necessary in the creation of such an environment. I owe Walter a great deal for the compassion and patience he extended to me as a young boy. He is a great part of why I have personally pursued a career in the field of education."

A current Lincoln high school student wrote:

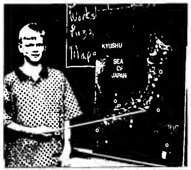
Four years ago, when I was in eighth grade, I really didn't care for school. But when I entered his class, I discovered how learning could actually be fun... Using visual aids, detailed topography maps, foods, actual artifacts and pictures, we learned about many countries and their cultures without relying on text books to bore us to death with their instruction..."

A fellow educator and parent of one of Mr. Redinger's students notes that "From my daughter's perspective, he is the only teacher she has ever had who gets his [illegible] out just from the enthusiasm [illegible] he hands out papers... Of most importance to me, it is a comfort to know that our child has exposure to such a good role model in the school, in the church and in the community."

A former school board member writes that:

"Walt Redinger is 'Teacher of the Years' in my mind. Our district, our middle school and our students have benefited greatly from his enthusiasm, commitment, dedication and love for his profession and children over his many years of teaching. He deserves many thanks and recognition for all his efforts. Thank you, Walt!"

Assisted by art instructor Don Engleberg, geography teacher Walter Redinger works with two of his students in creating maps of the countries they are studying in his geography classes. Redinger is the School District 564 teacher of the year for 1997.



Students of Wally Redinger in his geography classes at Franklin middle school select a country, prepare a map and present a full report to the class. Some students dress in costumes of the country and use materials such as flags, money or items manufactured there to further illustrate the nation. Two of the students are pictured above.

Taryn Praam presents her geography report in one of Walter Redinger's classes at Franklin middle school. Students create a map after researching a country, then are encouraged to use multi-media equipment, hand-outs, costumes, items from the country and other items to inform other class members about what they have learned.

One-on-one assistance is provided to students who take part in Wally Redinger's geography classes at Franklin middle school. Here he assists a student with finding information for a report.

Currently, Bill Hahne, principal at Franklin Middle School, is on paid "administrative leave". School officials have been tight lipped about the subject, saying only that they are investigating and have not reached any conclusions. They did not say whether Hahne was the subject of their discussion Monday night.

According to Minnesota Statute 13.03, information on public employees specifically open includes: "existence and status of any complaints or charges against the employee, whether or not the complaint or charge resulted in a disciplinary action, the final disposition of any disciplinary action, the specific reasons for the disciplinary action, data documenting the basis of the action, and the terms of any agreement settling any dispute arising out of the employment relationship."

Darla Twomey, school board member, reported on a meeting of the joint powers board for the Multi-Events Cultural Center. Twomey said $800,000 of the $3 million in state funding for the project had already been used on licensing fees, architects and other items reducing the total project to a $2.3 million project. As a result, the board and architects are now forced to look at reductions to scale back the project. One of the major concerns now is whether those reductions would affect the scope of the project and jeopardize the state funding for the project.

The board accepted the superintendent's recommendation to approve goals for the district for the 1997-98 school year as presented. The goals are: To create a Thief River Falls partnership for learning; To expand the technology network to include community access an dutilization, instructional use, information resources, communication link, management tool; To develop a quality learning system; To develop a quality human resource program for Independent School District 564; and To develop an efficient process for fiscal resource allocation. Each goal lists rational, strategies, action steps, responsibilities and/or accountability, and the evaluation of outcomes.

The school board recognized the following: Becki Olson of Thief River Falls and Jesse Bushelle of Gully for completing graduation requirements through the Area Learning Center; Tony Dorn and TRFAHA for their support of the Franklin Middle School strength training facility; the following businesses and organizations which made donations to the Little Brother/Little Sister program — Green's Funeral Home, Golden Kiwanis, Challenger Kindergarten Penny Collection, Kay Wedul Steiger, Lutheran Brotherhood NW Minnesota Branch 8129, Northwest Medical Center, Redeemer Lutheran Church, First National Bank, and Eagles Club.

The following resignations were accepted: Charles Wilcox as regular route bus driver; Kurt Philipp as regular route bus driver; Terrence Blackjanee as regular route bus driver; Guy Drevlow as regular route bus driver; Judy Dimich as Lincoln Volunteer Coordinator; Sally Wiltse as head girls volleyball coach; Brent Pollum as 9th grade volleyball coach; Peggy Lawrence as high school hockey cheerleader advisor; Peggy Lawrence as 10th grade volleyball coach; Charlie Cornell as head baseball coach; Judy Charlebois as Middle school softball coach; Myron Peterson as assistant boys basketball coach; Jon Anderson as 9th grade boys basketball coach.

The board accepted the following personnel changes: a medical leave of absence for Bev Dekkers; a leave of absence without pay for Heidi Nelson; the transfer of Diane Marshall from 6th grade communications teacher to 8th grade social teacher at Franklin; the employment of Ila Flesche as .4 FTE Medical Careers Teacher at Lincoln; the employment of Terrence Blacklance as minority education coordinator; the employment of Thomas Miller as summer special ed bus driver; the employment of Thomas Miller as summer transportation assistant.

The board approved the following educational assistant assignments for the 1997-98 school year — JoAnne Kohler, 20 hour per week ECFE educational assistant; Holly Steinhauer, five hours per day Title educational assistant at Challenger; Helen Bello, six to seven hour per day grade one pupil program support assistant; Karen Basher, six to seven hour per day kindergarten pupil program support assistant; Susan Hanson, Kathy Davis and Rachel Tvelten, six to seven hour per day EBD pupil program support assistants at Challenger; Gabriel Hanson, six to seven hour per day EBD pupil program support assistant at Franklin.

The board approved the following food service assignments for the 1997-98 school year: Barbara Anderson, kitchen helper at Challenger; Judy Greene, cook manager at Franklin; Janet Huage, kitchen helper at Franklin; Lois Hoaas, kitchen helper at Lincoln; Movis Newton, cook manager at Challenger; Carrie Nicholson, kitchen helper at Challenger; Sandra Radlaff, food preparation worker at Franklin; Janice Schmitke, kitchen helper at Franklin; Pat Scramstad, kitchen helper at Challenger; Jeannette Stoltman, cook manager at Lincoln; Susan Strutz, kitchen helper at Challenger; and Beverly Swanson, food preparation worker at Lincoln.

The board adjusted the mileage rate paid for district travel as of July 1, 1997, to the IRS rate of 31.5 cents per mile.

The board renewed the district's group term life insurance with Mil-Life through the Northwest Service Co-op for the period from July 1, 1997, through June 30, 1998.

The board rejected the low bid of Minnesota Body for one 1997 or 1998 school bus body due to problems with past performance. The board then accepted the bid of North Central Blue Bird in the amount of $17,989 for one 1997 or 1998 72-passenger school bus body. The board accepted the low qualifying bid of W.W. Wallwork in the amount of $36,705 for one 1997 or 1988 72-passenger school bus chassis. The board also accepted the low bid of Hoglund Bus Company in the amount of $69,553 for one 1997 or 1998 transit bus.

Food Service prices for the 1997-98 school year have been approved. Prices for grades kindergarten through grade 5 are $.80 for breakfast, and $1.35 for lunch. Redinger is TRF Teacher of the Year

River Falls Education Association, and a member and co-chairperson of the association's negotiation committee, as well as a member of numerous teams, committees and task forces.

"My brother-in-law nagged me until I decided to go (to college) just to get him off my back," Wally said. Two months after attending Marinette Teachers College I had the opportunity to work with about seven seventh grade boys. Before the end of the first semester, I realized that I was being called to be a teacher.

"...Looking back upon my years from high school to today, it is very obvious to me that the Lord called me to be a teacher. During my teaching career I have had many other opportunities for employment in other professions. I seriously tried the special education and administration areas, both of which helped me in my teaching profession, but both assured me that I had been called to be a teacher."

Dealing with students during the exceptionally difficult years in middle school has made Redinger especially sensitive to student needs. At school, at home and in the community he makes a concerted effort to be a friendly, stimulating and encouraging teacher and guide in helping young people to discover, deal with and solve problems and needs in their lives.

In teaching students according to their varying needs, he created some assignments, tests and projects for "grade level" work. Under the system, a certain amount of work must be completed to get a C, B or A grade. Final project of the year in his geography classes is one of doing a complete report on a country, making a map and presenting a report to the class using pictures, posters, videos, slides, costumes, cultural and other items.

Redinger says he believes it is his responsibility to challenge his students to do their best in all things, at all times and in all ways. He also believes he should help students to attain certain fundamental understanding of the entire world.

His five themes in geography relate to the location of a place, its character, how the people interact with the natural environment, how people, goods and ideas move between places and how one place is similar to and different from other places.

He enlists the services of 10 to 15 students in the Global Studies program at Red Lake Falls to spend a day each at his classes, discussing their countries, answering questions and comparing problems and solutions.

"I believe that I must help and guide students to develop a philosophy of life," he said, "a set of values that will help each learn not only the differences between right and wrong but to make the desirable choices, discover which things are of greater or lesser importance and to face their problems carefully within the limits of their experiences and abilities."

Redinger also believes in recognition and awards. He is a strong supporter of the Student of the Month program at Franklin and even awards ribbons and certificates to the A students in his classes.

His influence on students and others is reflected in some of the letters of support he has received for his teacher of the year nomination.

"He was very patient and always had a listening ear to lend," a former student writes. "...When I started high school, I found myself popping into his class room just long enough to inform him on what was new in my life and what I was planning....When the hard decisions of college started to creep up my Junior and Senior years, he always had time to sit and not only listen but give advice on what would benefit me most. Now that I have been to college and have decided on a career, I realize how important these conversations were....He has forever affected the outcome of my life and I can not thank him enough for the job he has done and continues to do."

A former Thief River Falls student, now holder of a doctorate in education, writes:

I have observed Walter as a teacher, youth director in his church, father and family friend. His character has been consistent in all those roles. As a teacher he [illegible] created an environment which blended discipline, fun and discovery. Walter is uniquely gifted with incredible energy which provides the catalyst necessary in the creation of such an environment. I owe Walter a great deal for the compassion and patience he extended to me as a young boy. He is a great part of why I have personally pursued a career in the field of education."

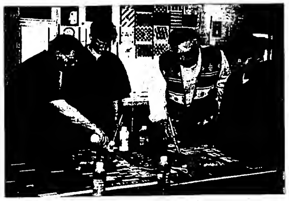
A current Lincoln high school student wrote:

Four years ago, when I was in eighth grade, I really didn't care for school. But when I entered his class, I discovered how learning could actually be fun...Using visual aids, detailed topography maps, foods, actual artifacts and pictures, we learned about many countries and their cultures without relying on text books to bore us to death with their instruction...."

A fellow educator and parent of one of Mr. Redinger's students notes that "From my daughter's perspective, he is the only teacher she has ever had who gets his aerobic workout just from the enthusiastic way he hands out papers....Of most importance to me, it is a comfort to know that our child has exposure to such a good role model in the school, in the church and in the community."

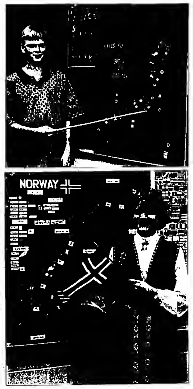
A former school board member writes that:

"Walt Redinger is 'Teacher of the Years' in my mind. Our district, our middle school and our students have benefited greatly from his enthusiasm, commitment, dedication and love for his profession and children over his many years of teaching. He deserves many thanks and recognition for all his efforts. Thank you, Walt!"



Assisted by art instructor Don Fugleberg, geography teacher Walter Redinger works with two of his students in creating maps of the countries they are studying in his geography classes. Redinger is the School District 564 teacher of the year for 1997.

Taryn Preem presents her geography report in one of Walter Redinger's classes at Franklin middle school. Students create a map after researching a country, then are encouraged to use multi-media equipment, hand-outs, costumes, items from the country and other items to inform other class members about what they have learned.



Students of Wally Redinger in his geography classes at Franklin middle school select a country, prepare a map and present a full report to the class. Some students dress in costumes of the country and use materials such as flags, money or items manufactured there to further illustrate the nation. Two of the students are pictured above.

One-on-one assistance is provided to students who take part in Wally Redinger's geography classes at Franklin middle school. Here he assists a student with finding information for a report.

Five juveniles face charges

Five juveniles face charges of vandalism following an investigation into several incidents of vandalism in Red Lake Falls.

Red Lake County Sheriff's department said they started receiving reports of vandalism last Tuesday, June 3. Reports included the theft of a purse from a vehicle, spray paint on an LP tank near St. Joseph's church, a broken window at Hughes Elementary school; theft of a pickup which was taken from a garage, driven in a field and then returned, a vehicle which had been scratched, a residence on the south side of town spray painted with black spray paint, damage to several mailboxes, black spray paint on a Red Lake County squad car, black spray paint on a house on the north side of town, window on a vehicle broken; and black spray paint on a residence on the southwest side of town.

The ages of the youth range from 13 to 16.

Skjerven found not guilty

Kevin Scott Skjerven, 39, Newfolden, was found not guilty of two counts of criminal sexual conduct in the first degree. A Hubbard County jury of eight men and five women found Skjerven not guilty of the charges after deliberating several hours.

Skjerven was charged in November of 1996 of criminal sexual conduct involving a Marshall County woman. On April 3 a change of venue was granted because of publicity surrounding his alleged connection with the October 27, 1996, disappearance of Veronica Safranski and widespread knowledge of Skjerven's criminal history. The impact of the publicity was the subject of a survey conducted by the University of North Dakota. The trial was then held in Park Rapids.

Skjerven, who was held on a $500,000 bond, has been released.

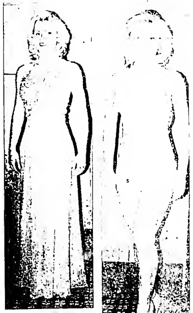
During a mock interview at her farewell party Thursday at the Elks club rooms, Lisa Swanson, Miss Thief River Falls, answered questions from a panel of judges. She is competing this week at the Miss Minnesota Scholarship Pageant in Austin with the final performance to be Saturday evening.



Lisa Swanson, Miss Thief River Falls, modeled the evening gown and swimsuit she is using this week in the Miss Minnesota pageant during her farewell party Thursday.

Lisa Swanson in Austin this week for Miss Minnesota

April," Lisa said. "Sherry Johnson entered last year's state pageant as Miss Winona. We had a workshop session and took part in the Treetops High Ropes/Group Challenges Course at the Forest Resource Environmental Learning Center near Lanesboro. The course is set up in such a way that individuals cannot conquer it without help and encouragement from teammates. We all got to know each other really well."

Although she has been preparing for the state event to some degree ever since she received the Miss Thief River Falls title last summer, Lisa has put a lot of emphasis into preparation since her classes ended at Jamestown College May 9 and her last concert of the year was May 12.

During her freshman year at Jamestown Lisa participated in choir and both indoor and outdoor track. Her 4x800 relay team qualified for the NAIA indoor national meet in Lincoln, NE, missing a sixth place finish by a hundredth of a second. Lisa also ran the 800 meter race in a number of meets.

With the concert choir she participated in an eight-day tour to Washington, DC, where the choir presented a concert at the Basilica. She also sang in the Christmas concert and the spring concert, having a number of solo parts in the choir. She continued private voice lessons as well. In 1998 the choir will make a midwest tour and a trip to Europe.

In her sophomore year at Jamestown next fall, she will pursue a major in communications. She is a member of the Fellowship of Christian Athletes chapter at Jamestown and has been on the dean's list.

Although attending school away from the community during much of her reign, Lisa was able to be home for a number of major activities. She participated in several Centennial events last year, appeared at area parades and pageants, took part in the Pennington County Fair and attended the annual meeting of the Chamber of Commerce. She attended a one-day pageant workshop at The Academie in Fargo, ND.

In preparation for the state event, in addition to selecting her wardrobe and practicing her talent presentation, she has done a lot of reading, research and mock interviews. Her talent presentation will be an aria from the Italian opera La Sonnambula by Vincenzo Bellini entitled Ah! non credea mirarti... Ah, non giunge. It is a song Lisa sang in her junior year in high school, but had to be cut from four minutes to two minutes and 30 seconds for the state pageant.

"It's fun to sing opera," Lisa said, "but it's not the only thing I enjoy singing. I like to sing classical and popular music and even a little country. I don't think my voice is appropriate for only opera, but I think the ability to sing opera is what the judges will be looking for at the pageant."

At the farewell gathering last Thursday evening, Lisa modeled her evening gown and swimsuit and participated in a mock interview as well as performing her talent number.

Lisa had a final tune-up for the pageant performance Saturday. She sang at the wedding of Amy Johnson, a high school classmate, and Bret Haugen before she left for Minneapolis to stay overnight prior to going on to Austin Sunday morning.

"I sincerely want to thank everyone who worked on my farewell party and all those who attended," she said. "It was great to have that show of support going into the state pageant."

Support will continue in Austin as Lisa's immediate family and a number of other relatives, as well as friends from high school and college, will be in the audience on Saturday night. Several will also be on hand throughout the week.

Department of Natural Resources personnel Bob Ekstrom of Baudette (center) and Tony Arhert of Thief River Falls received a hand from 11-year-old Jordan Bjerka as they stocked 150 pounds of bluegills into the river at the Eighth Street boat landing in Thief River Falls June 4. The fish, estimated to be 3-to-7-years-old and ranging from 5-to-10-inches in length, were taken from Union Lake. The "thinning out" practice is common in lakes with a high bluegill population. Plans call for 600 pounds of bluegills to be stocked locally.

Offense is NCTC strong suit

Traditionally, offense is the strongest part of the package put together each spring by the Northland Community and Technical College softball team. The recently-completed 1997 season was no different. The Pioneers hit .401 as a team in finishing 17-15.

"Our teams have typically been good-hitting teams," pointed out Northland coach Rick Nikunen. "I really don't know why, but we always seem to hit the ball."

Jackie Magner, a freshman from Newfolden, led this year's attack with an eye-opening .583 batting average. She ranked No. 1 on the Minnesota Community College Conference hitting charts going into the MCCC state tournament. The speedy second baseman legged out a team-high eight doubles and finished with 20 stolen bases – 13 more than the second-best figure on the squad.

A trio of Roseau freshmen were also high on the hit parade, with Paula Hovda posting a .457 batting average, Sarah Falk .452 and Angie Vagle .440. Hovda drove in a team-leading 48 runs. Devin Grugal, a freshman from Warroad who hit .371, had 40 RBI.

Magner and Hovda were named co-recipients of the team most valuable player award, it was announced by Nikunen, while Stacy Stanwick, a sophomore from Nevis, was presented with the Pioneer Award for her leadership and inspirational qualities.

Northland was 16-13 during the regular season when the Pioneers were the Northern Division runner-up. They opened the double-elimination MCCC state tournament in Austin with a 2-0 win over Ridgewater, but then fell to Bethany 11-2 and North Hennepin 6-5.

"We had a great season," said Nikunen. "We had so many young kids who stepped up and came through for us. Looking back, I can't really remember any of the bad things that happened during the year. I can only recall the positive things."

Nikunen expected the Pioneers to be strong offensively, and they were. Rest of the game fell into place as the year progressed. "The biggest area of improvement was our defense," he pointed out, "and our pitchers (Vagle and Crookston freshman Carisa Meyer) did a great job for us. They came in green, but they gained some experience and really pitched well."

With Stanwick as the Pioneers' only sophomore this spring, Nikunen looks forward to putting a strong, experienced ball club on the field in 1998.

Two Wensloff homers power Roseau to win

It was too much Todd Wensloff when the Thief River Falls American Legion baseball team lost its third game of the season Monday in Roseau. Final score was 5-4 as the local team improved its play after two lopsided losses in Glyndon to open the season.

The Roseau game was a power contest as eight of the nine runs were scored on round trippers.

Wensloff homered with a man on in the first inning to stake Roseau to a 2-0 lead. Toby Looker cut the lead in half with a home run for Thief River Falls in the top of the second.

Roseau increased its edge to two runs with a single counter in the fourth, but Jason Kempert smashed a three-run shot in the top of the eighth to put Thief River Falls in front 4-3.

Wensloff finished the game the way he started it with another two-run homer in the bottom of the eighth inning giving Roseau the 5-4 win.

Aaron Chaput pitched the first six innings for Thief River Falls with Mitch Bernstein hurling the last two and being tagged with the loss. Jason Jensen worked the first six innings for Roseau and Josh Stromlund the last two. Stromlund was credited with the win, giving up the lead on the Kempert homer but being bailed out by Wensloff's second four-base blast.

Thief River Falls will host Crookston on Friday at 7:30 p.m. and Warroad on Sunday at 4 p.m. as the team looks for its first win of the season.

Kopari and Mooney place in state meet

Two Lincoln High School members of the girl's track team placed in competition at the State AA track meet held at the National Sports Center in Blaine June 6-7.

Nicole Kopari placed fifth in discus with a throw of 117-feet four inches. She also placed fourth in shot put with a throw of 39-feet one inch.

Becky Mooney placed 12th overall in the 1600 meter race and in doing so set a new school record with a time of 5:19.25.

Coach Tim Olson said he was very pleased their performance.

DNR NEWS

Boat Safety Tips

Every year, more than 2 million anglers take to Minnesota's lakes, rivers and streams. For quite a few it will be their first time as a watercraft owner, and for many others their first trip onto the water for the year. To reduce the chances of an accident and increase the potential for an enjoyable outing, there are a few items for anglers to consider before the opening weekend, according to the Minnesota Department of Natural Resources.

• Remember the life jackets. Since May 1 of last year, the law requires a wearable life jacket for each boat occupant, regardless of boat size or type. The device must be readily accessible or worn. If your boat is 16 feet or more in length (except for canoes and kayaks) you must also have at least one boat cushion or ring buoy per boat. "Life jackets do save lives," according to Kim Elverum, DNR Boat and Water Safety coordinator. "Last year we had a number of documented cases where anglers, boaters and canoeists were saved by having a life jacket on when they entered the water." The Coast Guard estimates that 80 percent of all boating deaths each year could have been prevented if the victim had worn a life jacket. Elverum also noted that for the first time this year, anglers will have the option of purchasing Coast Guard approved fully-inflatable life jackets. The devices on the market this spring are generally compact and take the form of suspenders, a vest, or a belt pack.

• Booze is bad news. Alcohol consumption is another potential hazard on the water. "Contrary to popular belief, a drink or two of an alcoholic beverage does not warm you up," Elverum noted. Over the last 10 years approximately half of Minnesota's boating fatalities involved alcohol. Another reason to avoid alcohol is that Minnesota law prohibits people from operating a motorboat while intoxicated. Last year more than 200 boat operators were arrested in Minnesota for boating while intoxicated. Considering penalties of up to $700 in fines, possible jail time, loss of operating privileges and, in some cases, forfeiture of the boat, intoxication could make an opening day's outing fairly expensive, if not downright deadly. Elverum noted some other items that are important to check before heading to the lake or river:

• Boat license. Remember to check the boat registration and ensure that it is current. Bring the registration card along and make sure the boat has the correct numbers and validation decals. For fast service, boat owners can visit any deputy motor vehicle registrar to register or renew licenses and receive decals immediately.

• Lights. All boats are required to display the correct navigation lights from sunset to sunrise. Motorboats (even small ones) must have the red-and-green bow light and the white all-around stern light when underway. When anchored, an all-around white light must be displayed at all times. Non-motorized craft need only display a white light in time to avoid a collision.

• Fire extinguishers. Boats with enclosed engine or fuel compartments are required to carry the correct number of fire extinguishers. For boats less than 26 feet, one Coast Guard approved extinguisher is required.

• Capacity plate. Minnesota law prohibits boaters from equipping their craft with either outboard motors or weight (persons and gear) that exceeds the capacity plate limits.

For more information about boating safety and boating laws, request a copy of the 1997 Minnesota Boating Guide by calling the DNR's Information Center at 1-800-766-6000 (greater Minnesota) or (612) 296-6157 (Twin Cities metro area).

Lincoln boys, girls are named as 1997 golf letter winners

Athletic letter winners for the 1997 Lincoln High School golf season were announced recently by head coaches Dick Tyler (boys) and Pat Cullen (girls).

Both coaches had just one senior on their roster – Chad Nordhagen with the boys and Erika Altepeter with the girls.

The girls had an even younger team. Joining Altepeter as letter winners were junior Beth Goddard; sophomores Lindsay Drury and Lesley Ihle; plus freshmen Jenni Gonsorowski, Katie Jorde, and Kristin Naplin.

What a joy and pleasure to get acquainted with distant relatives of the Sjustadt, Schustad, Schustadt and Sustad families in this case second or third cousins Lawrence (Larry) Anderson of San Diego, CA and his sister Ardis Phillips of Houston, WI, whose parents were Arthur and Sadie (Schusted) Anderson of Clear Lake, WI. Larry is somewhat retired but very active in various organizations in San Diego, CA and still does much traveling for a machine company involved in high speed processing of eggs in packing houses.

Through correspondence with relatives in this area plans were made that the and his sister Ardis would have the privilege to meet cousins here they were Friday evening dinner guests at LeRoy and Ruth Susteds home also cousin Vernette Stokke, Glen and Ella Susted of Stephen and Alvin and Bernyce Grandstrand. Lots of reminiscing and picture taking. Later on Larry, Ardis, LeRoy and Ruth called on Dan and Donna Susted. Ardis was an overnight guest of Ruth and LeRoy. Visitors at the Roger and Jennifer Kvaale home this weekend were Jennifer's parents Robert and Joyce Grossheim of Plymouth, WI, Jennifer's two sisters and families, June and Dennis Walosz of Sheboygan Falls, WI, Sue and Mike DeGraff, Rebecca, Amber and James DeGraff of Cascade, WI. Visitors at the Hilda Kvaale home were her daughters and family Eunice and Don Sanke, Cindy Sanke and friend Erick Dahl all of St. Cloud. They were here to attend the Open House celebration at the Community Center in Gully on May 25th honoring Ed Kvaale's upcoming graduation from Gonvick/Clearbrook high school on June first.

Lyn Turenne and Marian Handy visited Elfie Handy on Monday and attended the Memorial Day Services at Trail. Mrs. Myles Olsen of Thief River Falls visited with Elfie Monday evening.

Merlene and Dellas Rasmussen from Belgrade have been here working on their house next to us. The inside of the house is getting a new floor plan and a new look. They have been scraping the outside paint off and now they went to get their sand blaster to make it a better job, then they'll wait for the weather to give them good painting weather. The tool shed which has been a weather beaten grey for a long time is now painted pure white and we call it the little White House, but I haven't seen any legislatures around yet. Their sons, Doug and Cory have been here helping.

Tim and Michelle Nordlund, Tanner and Trever from Fulda were here this weekend and visited with their folks, David and Patty Carlson and the Nordlunds at Clearbrook and also at the Trent and Pam Dyrdahl home. They also attended the Memorial Day Services.

The Gully American Legion and the Auxiliary Memorial Day Service was held at 10:30 on Monday at the Community Center in Gully. Lonny Carlson, Legion Commander, was in charge of the service with Nancy Lee, President of the Auxiliary. With Nancy Lee at the piano and Carol Tharaldson leading the singing the Audience sang "America the Beautiful" and "My Country Tis of Thee". Rev. Bob Kelly was the main speaker. He has much personal information filling for the day since his father is a military man. Much of his message was brought to us by the reading of poems written during and about the different wars. Poems have a way of portraying much feeling when well read. Sofie Carlson played two piano solos and Sarah Brovold sang "This Land is Your Land" and give a reading "I'm Your Flag." Both girls are junior members of the Auxiliary. Three girls read essay they had written and had been judged the best on "Living in a Small Community" by Angela Dotalie, Jamie Rindahl, and Robyn Tharaldson. They received prizes from the community Club. The Legion gave scholarships to Nolan Meyers, Robyn Tharaldson, Ed Kvaale, Jamie Rindahl and Angela Dotalie. After the indoor service the Legionnaires marched out with the colors and we all followed. Lonny Carlson as commander announced the names of the departed servicemen in our area and he dedicated the gazebo which the Gully American Legion Post 603 gun salute was given and Thomas Erlandson played taps. Long tables were set up and the Legionaires provided a tasty dinner for the large crowd attending.

Visitors on Sunday at the Elfie Handy home were Mr. and Mrs. Mike Emerson, Loren and Elliot from Minneapolis, Elaine Ness and Andrea and Erick Koplien.

Public library offers murder mystery as summer program

Thief River Falls public library invites students in fourth grade and older to join in a new program this summer called "Murder Mystery at the Library." The program is done independently and can involve either individuals or groups of people.

Packets for the program can be picked up at the library any time from June 9 through August 21, completed packets must be returned no later than 7 p.m. on August 21 to qualify for prizes.

The program starts with the statement "Diane Hoh Murdered." The introductory article goes on to say the body of noted author Diane Hoh was discovered early Monday morning outside the entrance to the Thief River Falls Public Library. Police were called to the scene at 6:10 a.m. by the library staff. Medical evidence shows that Ms. Hoh was killed inside the library and her body was moved outside sometime during the night. Location and weapon have not been revealed pending further investigation. Police are questioning a list of suspects and a quick arrest is expected, but the program participant's help is needed.

To earn clues with which to solve the mystery, students can do a variety of things such as report on books, recommend books for purchase, complete library trivia pages, unscramble lists of authors and titles, design bookmarks, compose a short story poem or illustration, volunteer in the library and/or attend the "Youth Input" session which will be held July 7.

Those correctly solving the mystery will win a prize and be placed in a drawing for gift certificates valued from $5 to $25 and provided by Danny's Pizza, Falls Book Company, Kezar Music, McDonald's, Pennington Main, Pizza Hut, The Queen, Sears and TRF Racquetball Club. In addition, a drawing will be held for a Walkman radio from Kmart.

For more information contact the Thief River Falls public library at 101 East First Street or call 681-4325.

EXECUTIVE BRIEFING
RE: WALL-TO-WALL SELLOUT, URGENT NEED TO CLEAR BUILDING
MONDAY JUNE 9, 1997

EMERGENCY SITUATION RELIEVED: We are very grateful to all Kordel associates who have worked so hard during this weekend. Thanks to your hard work, the emergency situation has been greatly relieved this weekend.

HOW IT HAPPENED: As you know, for several weeks we have been attempting to sell out our entire inventory of famous brand furniture. We frankly admit that selling $500,000 worth of merchandise in the short time available has proven to be the most difficult task in our 66-year history. Nearly $250,000 worth of premium, first-line merchandise remains.

THIS BUILDING MUST BE CLEARED ON TIME. We cannot stress the urgency of completing this wall-to-wall sellout as fast as possible. We are taking the largest mark-downs in our history. Let our friends and customers know they are getting historic values. Let's do what ever it takes to complete this sellout.

Again, our personal thanks to each of you for your hard work and devotion to Kordel Home Furnishings.

Marty Audette

P.S.: If we can sell about 500 more pieces of targeted merchandise Tuesday, we will be back on track. Let's do it!

Agassiz Lost Bay habitat drive opens to public

The Lost Bay habitat (Auto) drive at Agassiz National Wildlife Refuge is now open and will remain open through October. The Habitat Drive entrance is at Refuge Headquarters where the Headquarters sign is located along Marshall County Road 7. The four-mile long drive is located 11 miles east of Holt and is open during daylight hours, seven days a week.

A sign along Minnesota Highway 1, three miles east of Thief River Falls also guides visitors to the refuge. New habitat interpretive signs were installed in August 1996 along the Drive. A mowed one-fourth mile long hiking (foot) trail along the drive is also available to get a closer look at nature.

Two kiosks with information signs and brochures are located on Marshall County road 7. One kiosk is located across from the Parker Observation Deck on the west side and the other kiosk is located near the east boundary.

The 100-foot observation tower along Marshall County Road 7 is available for viewing the refuge by picking up the key at Refuge Headquarters during office hours or making advance arrangements with refuge personnel. A breath-taking view awaits those willing to climb the tower. The Lansing Parker Pool observation deck along Marshall County Road 7 is also open during daylight hours.

Refuge staff will also be available during office hours of 7:30 a.m. to 4 p.m., Monday through Friday, excluding holidays. Bring binoculars and spotting scopes to get a closer view of wildlife, identification books to identify wildlife or plant species, and a camera to capture some lasting memories.

Goodridge Class of 1997 held graduation ceremonies May 24 at the Goodridge High School. Sixteen students graduated. Danelle Hyland was valedictorian. Carl Dahlen was salutatorian.

Volunteers for NWRDC needed

Council members serve a three-year term. The Council meets six times a year and advises the Commission on arts policy. Recommendations on granting funds for arts activities are made by the Council to the NWRDC. Arts programming such as residencies in the schools and project grants for community arts activities. Grants to individual artists both students and adults are also provided by the Council.

Moe outlines Environment, Agriculture bill changes

Sen. Roger Moe recently released information about the Environment and Agriculture Budget Bill adopted this year by the legislature and signed into law by Governor Carlson.

The Environment and Agriculture Budget Bill passed this year by the legislature and signed by Governor Carlson addresses a wide variety of topics, including snowmobiling, ethanol, fishing and feed lots.

Snowmobiling. For an increasing number of families, snowmobiling has become the main winter recreational activity. Modern sleds are traveling hundreds of miles over a weekend and the number of registered snowmobiles has significantly increased every year since 1991. The Legislature this year recognized the need to improve and expand the state's trail system and assure the safety of riders.

Funding for local trails, enforcement and trail maintenance has increased by $3.8 million a year. In order to generate funds to improve state trails and grant-in-aid trails, the three-year registration fee was increased from $30 to $45. Out-of-state trail users must now buy a $15 seasonal permit for snowmobiling. This provision was based on similar laws in neighboring states. Also, one-time deficiency payments of $600,000 to local clubs will be used to cover the high costs of trail maintenance due to the heavy winter this year.

In a separate bill, the snowmobile set aside rate from the gas tax has been increased from three-quarters of one percent to a full one percent for the next two years, generating an additional $1 million each year for snowmobile trails. A study determining the percentage of gas used by snowmobiles in Minnesota will be conducted to determine where the snowmobile set aside rate should be set in the future.

The Legislature rejected a proposal to require snowmobile insurance, but it did opt for mandatory training of young people who operate a snowmobile. A system requiring snowmobilers born after 1979 to possess a valid snowmobile safety certificate goes into effect for the 1998-99 winter season.

Finally, due to the severe damage caused by snowmobiles with studded traction, the bill now prohibits metal traction devices on paved state trails.

Fish and Fisheries. Fishing license fees will go up slightly with the increased aimed at improving the resource throughout the state. Individual licenses will increase from $13 to $15, and combined licenses go up from $17.50 to $20.50. The trout and salmon stamp goes from $5 to $8.50. The bill requires that at least 75 percent of the license fee increase must be spent directly on fisheries.

Ethanol. Total payments to ethanol producers are capped at $50.5 million over the next two years. The emphasis will be on creating new production capacity. Additional funding is set at $200,000 for ethanol promotion and public education emphasizing ethanol as a renewable resource that reduces reliance on oil.

Feedlots. Counties proposing to adopt or modify feedlot ordinances must notify the Pollution Control Agency and Department of Agriculture at the beginning of the process. The Pollution Control Agency

In a final act of jubilation, one of the "more mature classes" at Goodridge High school, the Class of 1997, sprays "Silly String" across the stage at one another after receiving their diplomas. Graduation was held May 24 at the school.

Producing dairy cow sell-off in an attempt to reduce milk supply and stabilize falling milk prices was conducted Sunday, June 1, in Thief River Falls when two semi-trailer loads of cattle were shipped to slaughter through the NFO/FU collection point. Pictured are some of the cattle collected for shipment.

Producing dairy cow sell-off held at TRF

Two semi-trailer loads of producing dairy cows were sold through the National Farmers Organization and Farmers Union collection point in Thief River Falls Sunday, June 1, as area dairy producers took a stand against falling milk prices.

Basic milk price on the farm has dropped from $15.37 per hundredweight in September to $11.44 in May, a decline of $3.93 per hundredweight, according to officials at the collection point. A drop of another dollar is rumored, which would be a 32 percent cut in dairy income since last fall.

Price reductions are blamed on high inventories of milk, and the sell-off was conducted to reduce that supply.

"Farmers are wondering how many cows must go to slaughter in order for them to receive a price that meets cost of production plus a profit," said Terry Nelson, area dairy director for the National Farmers Organization. "In May, dairy farmers are receiving only 42 percent of parity for their milk."

The Thief River Falls shipment was the second in what is expected to be many such events around the country. Farmers with dairy herds ranging from 20 to 200 cows shipped producing cows in the sale.

One young producer said all his cows were milking well and he could really use all the production he could get, but if it would help stop the falling prices he would ship one of his cows. On the day of the sale, he sent two cows to slaughter.

Minnesota and many other states have fewer dairy operations each month as dairymen continue to go out of business at a rapid rate.

"Milk processors are saying inventories are too high and prices to farmers must go down," Nelson said. "They are not saying that prices should also go down to the consumer."

Dairy farmers who are interested in the NFO program to secure the prices needed to stay in business may call 218-253-4354 or 1-800-584-7057 to have their questions answered.

Feedlot related appropriations include $500,000 for research on odor control, and $400,000 for a feedlot initiative that will provide information on more effective and environmentally responsible manure management.

In addition, large farms applying to construct or expand a feedlot containing 500 animal units or more are required to provide notice within 10 days after the application is submitted to neighbors living up to 5,000 feet away from the proposed feedlot.

There's good gnews and bad gnews on those gnasty gnats

Mostly it's mosquitoes that are the scourge of Minnesota springtime, but this year the pestiness of those little suckers is being outdone by the pestiness of other little suckers—gnats.

"Talk to anyone about gnats and you'll get the same story," comments Howard Person, Pennington county extension educator. "They are everywhere this year and they are absolutely voracious in their lust for blood!"

So maybe it's not the sort of blood lust that inspires Hollywood movie makers, but the presence of the little flies is a nuisance at best and a genuine threat to health and comfort.

According to Person, the "good news" is that the prevalence of the pests should be past by the Fourth of July.

"Yes, I'm not kidding, that's the good news," he said.

Of the four main species of gnats in our area, the one which is most disposed to feed on humans reproduces only once per year and its life cycle lasts about six weeks. Since the hatch started in late May, that life cycle should be ending in early July.

The "bad news," Person says, is that there isn't much anyone can do to get rid of them. A type of black fly, gnats breed in areas of running water. The flooding and late spring in the area this year provided ideal conditions for the gnats to reproduce in very large numbers.

While they hatch in running water, they are strong flyers and easily move on wind currents. In certain cases, they can travel up to 250 miles from their breeding locations. This ability to disperse makes any type of chemical control of the populations nearly impossible.

Both male and female flies can feed on nectar for energy and only the females are blood feeders. Gnats are most active during the daylight hours and, although they are strong flyers, they tend to be less of a nuisance on windy days and in open areas than on calm days or in sheltered areas, Person said.

Gnats or black flies swarm around a person's head because they are attracted to carbon dioxide being exhaled. They are also attracted to dark colors and tend to bite mostly along the hairline, feet, ankles and arms—the most readily available areas of uncovered skin. The bites can produce a variety of reactions ranging from little or no irritation to a great deal of irritation, redness and swelling. Sensitivity to the bites will vary greatly from person to person.

Person makes several suggestions to reduce contact with the flies.

- Try to avoid areas which may be expected to have high populations of gnats, such as lowlands or areas with dense vegetation.
- Wear white or brightly colored clothing that covers arms, legs and neck area.
- Limit outdoor activity when and where gnats are the most active—at dawn, dusk and in shady and sheltered areas.

Unfortunately, use of insect repellents—even those with high DEET content—are limited in their effectiveness.

We have grandma over for the Holidays. After we eat supper we hurry up and do dishes, so we can play Up and Down the River (card game).

Grandma never forgets birthdays. She and grandpa come to Grandparent's Day at school. She comes to most of my activities. My grandma and I play games and put puzzles together.

My grandma and grandpa have been married for 48 years. They have five kids and lived on a farm. Now they live in town. They had chickens, pigs, and dairy cows. The whole family worked hard. My grandma is a good cook because my dad ate at least a dozen eggs a day. She always talks about how much food she cooked and the boys ate.

My grandma and grandpa have traveled to Hawaii, France, Germany, Spain, Scotland, England, and all over the United States. Each time they return, they have stories to tell us, souvenirs to give us, and pictures to share with us.

My grandma is very special to me, because she is so caring and always has time for me. I love my grandma!

daughter of Carol and Duane Boucher

My Grandparents

When my teacher told us about this essay I was proud to write about my grandparents.

My grandparents are very special people to me. When I was younger I would stay at both grandparent's homes. (I still do but not as much.)

My Dad's parents live on a farm in Plummer. They have a 4-wheeler on the farm. I would start it up and go out on the trails in the woods. Well, my grandpa passed away about a year and a half ago. I miss him very much. He was very special. I still ride the 4-wheeler. I make homemade doughnuts with my grandma. It takes about two-four hours to make dozens (including taking breaks to eat them!) But it is a lot of fun. She loves to play cards, so we do that a lot. She even taught me some different games. We mostly play UNO.

Whenever I go and stay out there she asks me what I want for dinner or supper. I say your homemade chicken noodle soup with dumplings.

My Mom's parents live in Thief River Falls. It is fun there also. I paint towels with my grandma. I sometimes help her dust. My grandpa always makes me laugh when he laughs because he has a funny laugh. He is always making his famous pancakes for breakfast when I am there. They are always worrying about me and telling me to lock the doors when I'm home alone.

I am lucky to have grandparents that live close to me, and I can see them often. I guess I would say my grandparents are so very special to me. I am so lucky to have them and to have known them. They are always there for me and I know one day they won't be. I'm so thankful for the years I have had with them. Not everyone has that chance.

What To Do About Northwest Dairy Day?

For nearly five decades the institution known as Northwest Dairy Day has provided a special day for young exhibitors of dairy cattle in the northwestern counties of Minnesota. It was conceived in the minds of Stuart McLeod, Lew Conlon, Bill LaFave, Paul Stelmaschuk and others as an event to showcase the area's young people, promote dairying as a farm business, strengthen the dairy industry by improving cattle quality and provide a rallying point where farm and city people could meet and mix with a common interest.

These pioneers carried their ideas to the many cooperative creameries operating in the area at that time, and to the banks, virtually all of which had dairymen as their customers. They were successful in obtaining the support of Thief River Falls business and professional people and they put together enough financial support to make the event an annual attraction that provided every participant with a keepsake from the event.

In fact, one of the points the founders of Northwest Dairy Day insisted upon was that every youngster who participated received a prize for doing so. Whatever awards might be earned in the competition within and among dairy breeds were additional.

Shortly after Northwest Dairy Day was originated, the idea spread rapidly to other areas. This was due in large part to the enthusiasm and promotional ability of Lew Conlon, director of the Minnesota Dairy Industry Committee— forerunner to ADA of Minnesota. Soon the local and state Dairy Princess contests were added.

This writer's involvement with Northwest Dairy Day began in 1961 with arrival in Thief River Falls as a reporter for The Times. One could not help but be influenced by the enthusiasm of those early founders and promoters. In 1958 there were 252 dairy animal entries registered (240 were actually shown) and 30 girls competing in the princess contest.

The 1958 Northwest Dairy Princess, Diane Schroeder of Norman county, became the first of four state Princess Kay winners from Region 1. Others were Kathleen Hjelle of Marshall county in 1962, Gayle Krogstad of Norman county in 1970 and Stephanie Dickey of Clearwater county in 1985. Krogstad went on to become American Dairy Princess.

Times have changed, however, and the bloom is gone from the early Dairy Day rose. A number of social and economic circumstances have befallen the dairy industry and the number of dairy farms continues to dwindle. There are fewer and fewer dairy farm families with young people to show cattle or compete in the princess contest. With the decline in numbers has come a reduction in interest and perhaps a waning of enthusiasm. It is only natural to ask the dreaded question, "Is it really worth the effort any more?"

"Yes!" we want to reply. "Yes, it is worth the effort! There is tradition to uphold and there are young people to encourage and there are still dairy farmers to commend and support. Dairy is still an important farming enterprise, both economically and in the healthful product that results. Yes, Northwest Dairy Day is worth the effort to save and perpetuate!"

In general format Dairy Day has changed little over the nearly half century it has been part of farm life in northwestern Minnesota and since it spawned other similar events across the state and nation. The day-end parade went by the wayside a number of years ago because exhibitors said they needed to get home for evening milking and the young showmen and their animals were tired after a long day of competition.

The location has been moved from Second Street by the city auditorium to the Floyd B. Olson parking lot to the Pennington County Fairgrounds. The many rural creameries have dwindled to a few that operate mostly in name only, selling other products to maintain an existence. Not as many city folks come to watch the Dairy Day proceedings as they did years ago, but the more remote fairgrounds location contributes to that. And with expansion of the region to include more southern counties, the regional princess contest is held here and at a more southern location on alternate years.

But financial support for the event has continued to be outstanding. Every young exhibitor still gets an award for participating. There are still purebred dairy calves and trips to a national dairy show awarded each year. There is still the early morning wash time and the same pride in showing the top animals and the same growth in confidence that annual experience in the Dairy Day show ring provides. County fairs are fine, but Northwest Dairy Day is still the dairy competition event of the year for the area. This is where Dairy Day was born; it should not be the place for it to die.

What to do, then, when there appears to be a point of diminishing returns on the effort and funds expended and the benefit derived?

Few who have been associated with the program for any length of time—and that includes most of the board members—want to toss in the towel. They are observant enough to see the decline in dairy numbers, but also realistic enough to recognize that Dairy Day still has a lot to offer for a significant number of young people and an industry worthy of support and promotion.

It may indeed, however, be time for a change. Perhaps activities need to be added to build interest and participation in the event. It may be necessary to involve more people in the day and add variety to the program.

During 36 years of personally covering Northwest Dairy Day as a news event, we have seen the positive experiences young people have had at this exposition. As the Northwest Dairy Day originators envisioned, quality of dairy cattle in the area has increased dramatically, and the quality of Dairy Day entries has paralleled if not led that improvement.

As this is being written, the 48th annual Northwest Dairy Day is just a day away. We know it will be a good one, because it always has been a good one. And we look forward to having many more good Dairy Days in the years to come.

To The Editor:

I'm writing this letter because I feel I have an obligation to tell people and hopefully make them understand and realize that the war on drugs, like prohibition, is a complete failure.

Do you know that by far alcohol and tobacco are the two most damaging drugs in this country? Where do they fit into our war on drugs? I'll tell you something else. The most serious drug threat in this country is not any chemical at all—it's the anti-drug laws themselves!

Prohibition was an experiment conducted by our government to ban alcohol. However, banning alcohol gave us problems much worse than consuming it ever did. By throwing the production and distribution of alcohol into the eager hands of the criminal underworld, our government guaranteed a virtual plethora of problems, including but not limited to:

- High prices;
- Inconsistent quality (including batches of homemade gin that would occasionally blind or kill their consumers);
- Scorn and disrespect for the law (as obviously stupid!);
- An increase in other forms of crime as addicts tried to pay for their expensive and illegal habit;
- A leaky border; bribery and other forms of corruption;
- Overcrowding of the courts and prisons with "non-violent" drinkers;
- Massive growth in the drug enforcement bureaucracy (which, of course, formed an extremely outspoken constituency for ever stricter measures);
- An incredible increase in public spending;
- Continued erosion of the majority's civil liberties in the name of the Great Experiment's attempts to foil the drug-abusing minority;
- Abandonment of attempts to educate or rehabilitate those with alcohol problems.

As I've previously stated, our government conducted an experiment in a war on drugs back in the 1920s. The purpose of an experiment should be to see how things work. We should have learned that the "cure" was worse than the "disease." But, as George Santayana once said, "Those who do not remember history are condemned to repeat it."

The murder rate in 1933, the last year of prohibition, was the highest one on record until the year 1992. Don't you think this should be telling us something? What I would really like to find is a politician with the intestinal fortitude to point out that the war on drugs is a bankrupt social policy. The war on drugs is ruining a once great nation!

Here are just a few facts about what the federal government has been doing with the prison system in our country.

- Number of federal prisoners in 1987 ... 41,000;
- Number of federal prisoners in 1997.....106,600;
- Number of federal appeals in 1988.....225;
- Number of federal appeals in 1995.....8,731;
- Federal prisons built between 1900 and 1980.....41;
- Federal prisons built between 1980 and 1995.....38;
- Percentage of federal prisoners in 1994 who were sentenced to prison for a non-violent crime .....92 percent;
- Federal law enforcement expenditures for 1987......$7.5 billion;
- Federal law enforcement expenditures for 1992......$17.4 billion.

Finally, I'd like to conclude this letter with an excerpt from the May edition of the November Coalition News. It is entitled, "Justice in America."

"The State of Oklahoma recently sentenced a 57-year-old arthritic man to 93 years in prison for the 'crime' of growing marijuana in his basement. He was growing marijuana for self-medication, to combat the pain and muscle spasms of acute arthritis.

"The same State of Oklahoma recently imposed a four-year jail sentence upon another man whose crime was the murder of his own son!"

Is America really the greatest country in the world? I choose to keep my mouth shut when asked that question.

Sincerely,
John A. Motson

Prohibition Voted Out Of Pennington County By A 2,784-2,145 Margin

"After having been in effect a third of a century in Thief River Falls and Pennington county, prohibition will shortly come to an end technically as a result of the county option election Monday, in which the anti-prohibition forces carried the county by a margin of 2,784 to 2,145, with a majority of 639 votes.

"As compared to the last county option election held here in October of 1935, the prohibition vote increased from 1,770 then to 2,145 now, while the anti-prohibition vote rose from 1,005 then to 2,784 now. Bad road conditions, aided possibly in part by less acute interest in the issue, contributed to holding down the rural vote to a total of 1,785, while 203 votes were cast in the two villages, St. Hilaire favoring the dry cause and Goodridge voting wet by a margin of 32 to 27."

Household Sugar Rationing Ended

"The nation's housewives reached the end of a five-year coupon ordeal Wednesday night when the government ended rationing of sugar for householders, hotels and restaurants, effective at midnight. Last of a multitude of things that once could not be bought with money alone, sugar was freed from ration controls because larger quantities are available."

No Service At Postoffice On Saturday Afternoons

"Postmaster Andrew Anderson stated this week that he had been instructed by postoffice department authorities to close all service windows in the local office at 12 o'clock noon on Saturdays, starting June 14. Heretofore the parcels post and stamp window had been open Saturday afternoons."

Girl Scout Troop 12 To Stage Paper Collection Here

"A waste paper collection will be made in the business and residential districts of Thief River Falls, Saturday June 14, starting at 1 o'clock in the afternoon. Conducting the pickup will be members of Girl Scout Troop 12 under the leadership of Mrs. L. B. Hartz. Householders are asked to tie their accumulations of paper securely in bundles and place them along the curb."

Sportsmen's Club To Improve Fish Rearing Ponda

"Arrangements were made at the June session of the Pennington County Sportsmen's club to cooperate with the state conservation department in improving the pike fry rearing pond on the Thief River Golf club grounds north of this city, Kern M. Olson, president, announced.

"The inlet and outlet of the pond will be renovated following which the state department will plant 50,000 walleye fry. They will be placed in the river here after having reached the fingerling stage. In addition, Mr. Olson stated, a new pond will be dredged in July on the golf course on the west side of the river, and when completed, bass, crappie and sunfish will be set out in it."

Burning Permits Mny Be Issued Following Rains

"Dick Willems of Warroad, area forest supervisor, announced this week that due to recent rains, fire wardens in this area have been advised that they may again issue five-day burning permits for all-day burning under the usual restrictions."

"With her new hotels, lumber mill and all else on top of the dirt, the St. Hilairites are hardly yet contented and have started down after an assortment of artesian wells.

"Fire was put under the boilers of the new mill for the first time Sunday. It has been burning very slowly ever since in order to dry and season the brick work around the four mammoth boilers.

"It was with considerable difficulty that Dr. Francis extracted the fishhook that got tangled up in the worst possible manner in the hand of the eldest son of Mr. Arno Mereen last Friday.

"Half a dozen men working on the hotel building had to lay off Monday afternoon on account of the heat. Likewise a few down at the planing mill who only two days before claimed they were near the North Pole right here in St. Hilaire.

The water, like the rest of the wells put down last summer, is pure and free from alkali or mineral taste. The company will have the well piped and run through the mill, making it very convenient for the 250 or 300 men that will be working in the mill. The well drilling apparatus was moved to the planing mill yesterday where a larger well will be drilled. Anyone thinking of putting down a well of this kind should call and make arrangements with Mr. Wilmas while he has the machinery in this vicinity.

"The bakery and confectionery store of M. McAndress was opened to the public last week and if you want a nice fresh loaf of bread this is the only place in town where you can get it. If you want a nice dish of ice cream, drop into the ice cream parlors and you will be accommodated."

MINNESOTA POLLUTION CONTROL AGENCY (MPCA) PUBLIC NOTICE OF INTENT TO ISSUE A NATIONAL POLLUTANT DISCHARGE ELIMINATION SYSTEM (NPDES) AND STATE DISPOSAL SYSTEM (SDS) PERMIT

Public Notice Issued: June 11, 1997
Last Day to Submit Comments: July 11, 1997

Applicant: Red Lake Band of Chippewa Indians, PO Box 550, Red Lake, Minnesota 56671

Receiving Water: Dry ditch (Class 2B water) to a ditch along County Road #55

Description of Permitted Facility:

The Red Lake Band of Chippewa Indians has applied for a NPDES/SDS permit to construct and operate a new treatment facility for wastewater from the River Road Casino. The proposed wastewater treatment facility will be located at the northwest 1/4 of the southwest 1/4 of Section 3, Township 152 North, Range 42 West, Wyandotte Township, Pennington County.

The construction of the new wastewater treatment facility is part of a plan to expand the present operation including the addition of a hotel complex. Currently, the River Road Casino uses two separate septic systems for sewage disposal. Both septic systems are failing because of low-permeable soils and seasonably high ground water.

The proposed wastewater treatment facility will consist of a duplex lift station, 2,200 feet of forcemain, and a two-cell stabilization pond system designed to treat an average wet weather flow of 13,500 gallons per day. When construction is complete and the new facility is operational, the existing septic tank systems will be properly abandoned.

The MPCA has tentatively decided to issue the NPDES/SDS permit identified above for a term of approximately five years. A draft permit is available for review at the address listed below and at the MPCA Regional Office located at Lake Avenue Plaza, 714 Lake Avenue, Suite 220, Detroit Lakes, Minnesota 56501, telephone (218) 874-1519.

For more information on the draft permit or public process, contact:

The existing boat dock located at Highlanding will need repair. The County Board decided to have the current dock modified and installed.

Pennington County purchased Ernest Moe's property in 1992. The final deed is being taken care of by the County Auditor, Kenneth Olson, and the County Attorney, Dave Olin. The Road Committee was interested in the gravel deposits within the farmyard area, but will determine what to do with the building site.

The Road, Bridge and Culvert Committee will meet on May 29, 1997 starting at 7:00 a.m.

The County Board and the County Engineer discussed the status of the road construction.

Tom Thackery from Expense Recovery Systems met with the County Board to discuss his proposal to switch Long Distance Service to the Centrex System. This would require a change in phone numbers on all lines. The County held this decision until a later time.

Howard Person and representatives from SWIS PENNCO met with the County Board to discuss the June 12, 1997 deadline soon approaching. Others in attendance were Connie Merhkens, Dale Koop, Suzanne Browning, Ken Schmelz and Andrea Liston. SWISS PENNCO is operating the plant and will need to make some changes in the operation or close its doors. The County Board, Howard Person, and SWIS discussed three options that would be available.

The first alternative for Pennington County would be to re-work contractual agreements with SWIS, negotiate changes and oversight issues with MPCA on the facility, and continue operation with SWIS in charge except for changes to assure a clean site. This option would assume a fuel pellet market was found.

The second alternative would be that Pennington County buys or leases operations from SWIS and gets back into the garbage business and runs the operation itself.

The third alternative is for the County to abandon its current relationship with SWIS and Office of Waste Management. The County would create a transfer station and haul everything to Grand Forks.

For all three alternatives pros and cons were explained and discussed.

A County Board meeting has been set for May 19, 1997 at 2:00 p.m. in Room #105 at the Best Western of Thief River Falls with Pennington County, City of Thief River Falls, Minnesota Pollution Control Agency (MPCA), Office of Environmental Assistance (OEA), and SWIS PENNCO.

Bob Kruse was asked by the County Board what happened to lead up to where we are at this point and time. Bob Kruse responded that once the building was ready for business the pellet market dropped. With no pellet market they were still receiving garbage from Red Lake Nation, Hubbard County, Itasca County and Pennington County. SWIS PENNCO was getting behind because they were shut down for sometime installing equipment and electrical work, the fire destroyed a storage building, and they were understaffed. The incoming garbage is being transferred until issues get settled.

The audience expressed their concerns that they had toward SWIS PENNCO and the County Board. SWIS and the County Board addressed each concern. The first step is to get rid of the fluff pile sitting outside. Then to clean the yards and fields of the outlying residents. Bob Kruse will put a notice in the paper and on the radio stating a number to call if you are in need of clean-up services. Hand protection will be given to people who are cleaning. Suzanna Browning also had a concern about eye protection in the wooded areas.

The County Board returned to the discussion on the Expense Recovery Service proposal. Commissioner Swanson moved, seconded by Commissioner Comstock to have the County Auditor, Kenneth Olson head up a phone committee made up of department heads from the Courthouse, the Law Enforcement, and Welfare and Human Services. This committee will gather the needs of all the departments to be able to make a knowledgeable decision about changing phone companies. Motion unanimously carried.

The County Board reviewed a petition from a resident to divert all water from County Ditch #1 RN south of C.S.A.H. #8 west along county road #8 to connect with the Challenger Ditch, RLWD project #122. Commissioner Swanson moved, seconded by Commissioner Naplin to refer the petition to Ron Lindberg and Highway #59 Drainage Committee and also send a copy to the Red Lake Watershed. Motion unanimously carried.

Commissioner Naplin moved, seconded by Commissioner Comstock to approve the April 22, 1997 minutes. Motion unanimously carried.

Commissioner Swanson moved, seconded by Commissioner Naplin to authorize $150.00 for pamphlets for the Right-To-Know Training. These pamphlets are for the employees of the County who were not able to attend the training session instructed by Northland Community and Technical College. Motion unanimously carried.

Commissioner Naplin moved, seconded by Commissioner Comstock to approve the May 13, 1997 Commissioner warrants as presented. Motion unanimously carried.

Grand champion grade animal at the 48th annual Northwest Dairy Day in Thief River Falls Tuesday, June 10, was this four-year-old Holstein shown by Kelly Schlauderaff, 17, of Detroit Lakes. It was Kelly's ninth year of showing at Dairy Day and his first championship. The son of Gary and Barb Schlauderaff, he will receive a purebred heifer calf of the breed of his choice at Northwest Dairy Day next year. Kelly also had the reserve champion grade over all breeds in the 1997 show with a two-year-old. Other Dairy Day photos are in the second section of today's issue of The Times.

Entries dwindle at 48th Northwest Dairy Day

Number of entries in the dairy cattle show continue to decline as only 50 animals were entered in the 48th annual Northwest Dairy Day Tuesday, June 10, at the Pennington county fairgrounds in Thief River Falls.

There was no Region I Dairy Princess contest in connection with Dairy Day in Thief River Falls this year. The contest is held in Thief River Falls and alternate sites in the region every other year. This year the contest will be conducted Saturday, June 28, at Mahnomen.

Region I Dairy Princess Rachel Klopp of Karlstad was on hand throughout the day, however, assisting with serving the pancake breakfast at 7:30 a.m., distributing dairy product samples in the curling club building and handing out awards at the dairy cattle show. Also assisting in the morning was Laura Hess, a former Marshall County Dairy Princess.

Chris Swanson, son of Lyle and Joni Swanson of Thief River Falls, showed the grand champion over all breeds at the show with a two year-old registered Holstein. It was a repeat win for Chris who also had the grand champion cow with a different animal last year.

Swanson's cow was judged the best uddered cow of the show, was named the Holstein breed champion and the show's purebred champion. Chris also had the reserve champion purebred with an aged cow and his two top animals anchored the Pennington county five-animal entry which won the county herd award and his own three-animal entry which won the individual herd award.

Grand champion grade animal of the show was an aged cow shown by Kelly Schlauderaff, 17, son of Gary and Barb Schlauderaff of Detroit Lakes. Kelly also had the reserve champion grade with a two-year-old.

Junior champion exhibitor was Cole Rupprecht, son of Dale and Sherry Rupprecht of Thief River Falls.

Association of Free Lutheran Congregations (AFLC) held its 35th annual conference at Northland Community and Technical College in Thief River Falls late last week. Rev. Robert L. Lee (left), president of the association with headquarters in Plymouth, and Rev. Bruce Dalagar, pastor of Trinity Lutheran Church in Grand Forks, ND, and reelected secretary of the association, listen to good-natured comments from Rev. Mel Meyer, pastor of Amery Free Lutheran Church in Amery, WI. The conference attracted delegates from throughout the nation and also observed the 100th anniversary of the founding of the Lutheran Free Church.

AFLC annual conference shares with flood victims

Checks for over $18,000 each were presented to member churches in Grand Forks, ND and East Grand Forks when the 35th annual conference of the Association of Free Lutheran Congregations was conducted June 10-15 at Northland Community and Technical College in Thief River Falls.

The money had been given by other congregations in the AFLC to assist the Grand Forks and East Grand Forks churches with their recovery following this spring's disastrous flood. A team of six young people has also been trained and sent to the area to provide assistance for the summer months.

Registered as voting delegates at the conference were 529 people from across the United States and Canada, with nearly 700 people attend the evening services.

Rev. Elden Nelson of Willmar and Rev. Bruce Dalagar of Grand Forks, ND, respectively, were reelected vice president and secretary of the church body. They were reelected on the first ballot and received more than 75 percent of the ballots cast.

Rev. Robert Lee, president of the association with headquarters in the Minneapolis suburb of Plymouth, described the conference as "unusually quiet, harmonious and unified." He said he was impressed by the nationwide participation with delegates attending from Alabama, Pennsylvania, California and the Pacific Northwest as well as the Upper Midwest and contrasted it with the first conference in Thief River Falls 35 years ago when representation was mainly from the Upper Midwest.

In other action at the conference, encouragement was given to the Board of Trustees of the AFLC's seminary and Bible school to pursue plans to build a new gymnasium and student center on the campus of the schools located in Plymouth. The goal is to break ground for the new building in the spring of 1998.

The department of World Missions was also encouraged to pray for direction from God regarding opportunities to be involved in the African nations of Mozambique, Angola and Zaire.

Presently the AFLC consists of 240 congregations across the United States with approximately 35,000 members. In the past 15 years it has doubled in size and is now the fourth largest Lutheran denomination in America.

Concurrent with its 35th anniversary conference in Thief River Falls, the AFLC observed the centennial of the founding of the Lutheran Free Church on June 12, 1897.

Lowell Dyrud of Thief River Falls, a member of Our Saviour's Lutheran Church in Thief River Falls, wrote a column in The Lutheran Ambassador, AFLC publication, entitled "Building the Base." In the column he reviewed the background of the formation of the Association of Free Lutheran Congregations.

Dyrud credits the idea for a "free church" to Georg Sverdrup and his close friend and colleague Sven Oftedal who were convinced that a congregationalist approach was the "right form of the Kingdom of God on earth."

Dyrud writes:

"First, their roots were in inne-

Katie Lendobeja in Miss TRF pageant

Katie Lendobeja, 18, will be one of six candidates for the Miss Thief River Falls title Saturday, June 28, in the Lincoln high school auditorium.

(This is the fifth in a series of articles about candidates for the Miss Thief River Falls title. The official Miss America Preliminary Scholarship Pageant will be conducted Saturday, June 28, at 7:30 p.m. in the Lincoln high school auditorium.)

Figure skating, cheerleading and vocal music have been major activities for Katie Lendobeja, 18, a 1997 graduate of Lincoln high school who plans to attend St. Cloud State University this fall.

The daughter of Marty and Julie Lendobeja, Katie has one younger brother, Aaron, age 15. Her father is employed by Northwest Power Company and her mother owns Laundryland Company.

Katie has been involved in the local figure skating program since she was three years old, taking part in many competitions, skating on the precision line and performing in the recreational skating program's annual ice shows.

She has been a hockey cheerleader for four years and a football cheerleader for two years. A member of school choirs for seven years, she was a member of the Lincoln concert choir which sang at Carnegie Hall and St. Patrick's Cathedral in New York City. In previous years she has competed in two teen pageants. At the Miss Thief River Falls pageant her talent presentation will be a vocal solo.

Katie has been an honor roll student at Lincoln, represented the school at a regional meeting of the Minnesota State High School League, served as a role model for the Dare program and was profiled as a student athlete by KTRF radio.

At St. Cloud State University she will be enrolled in the x-ray technician program with a goal of becoming a CAT scan or ultrasound technician.

The Miss America organization encourages the young women who participate in the program to become involved in their communities. If selected as winner of the Miss Thief River Falls pageant, she would focus on teen drug and alcohol abuse during her year of service.

teenth century Norway where a revival led by Hans Nielson Hauge had awakened the laity to a personal faith in Christ Jesus. This revival was followed by a second awakening led by Professor Gisle Johnson at the University of Oslo that had far reaching effects on the theological students and pastors. Both Sverdrup and Oftedal studied under him.

"Second, before they emigrated, both had lived under the state church of Norway, an extremely hierarchical, synodical-type system where clergy were often aloof from the common man and more interested in their churchly duties than the spiritual condition of their congregations. (Some were so enamored of their status that they felt obligated to wear their vestments even when they left the parsonage to chop wood.)

Finally, Sverdrup felt there was little scriptural basis for a synodical structure. Rather, he says: "In the New Testament there is no talk about any bishopric, nor about any papal kingdom, nor about any department of churchly affairs, nor any church council or synod. There is a congregation in each place where there are Christians, and this congregation has its elders or bishops, but there is no church leadership of any sort."

It was on June 12, 1897, that Sverdrup, Oftedal and a "Free Church Committee" drew up the "Fundamental Principles" and "Rules for Work" and together with 12 congregations expelled from the United Norwegian Lutheran Church for their support of Augsburg Seminary, declared themselves the Lutheran Free Church, thereby becoming the forerunner of the AFLC.

In 1963 the Lutheran Free Church voted to abandon its "free church" status and merge with the American Lutheran Church. A number of individual congregations objecting to this merger met in Thief River Falls in the fall of 1962 to organize what became known as the Association of Free Lutheran Congregations. A court injunction forbid the retention of the Lutheran Free Church name after the merger.

"A free church is a paradox," Dyrud wrote in his column. "In a synod, congregations are kept in line by the authority of the hierarchy. But if the congregations hold the authority and are held together in a loosely organized association, what prevents chaos and anarchy?

Human logic calls for strong leaders that direct us, constitutions that bind us, and rules that restrain us. But in our association, we have leaders that can only influence, conferences that can only recommend and 'Fundamental Principles' that can—only if understood—prevent us from doing what we please.

So what preserves us as a free church? The Holy Spirit and the Word. Without the Spirit and the Word, the AFLC is powerless, and that is precisely why Sverdrup empowered the congregations as he did. A synod's structure will perpetuate itself by continuing the social function of marrying and burying even though [illegible] But if the Holy Spirit [illegible] Association [illegible] structure [illegible] together [illegible] by a spiritual rather than [illegible] bond."

with Kelly Schlanderall as reserve champion senior showman. Kelly is the daughter of Don and Rovie Fulton and opened the dairy show with a showmanship demonstration as last year's winner.

Champion junior showman was Andrew Cloose of Salway, son of Rod and Sue Cloose. Reserve champion junior showman was Chris Swanson who had won the event last year.

Karla Hamlin, 18, daughter of Art and Cheryl Hamlin of Walker, was named recipient of the Stuart McLeod award for exceptional performance and upholding the ideals of Northwest Dairy Day.

Despite the decline in cattle numbers, four dairy breeds were represented at the show. In addition to Swanson's Holstein breed champion, other breed champions included Sara Kompelien, Roseau, Ayrshire; Kristi Kompelien, Roseau, Guernsey; and Chase Rupprecht, Thief River Falls, Brown Swiss.

Paula Kjos receives hearing dog named Casper

One of Casper's duties is to hear and warn Paula of traffic from behind. After a year on a waiting list, Paula, who is hearing impaired, recieved Caspar from International Hearing Dog, Inc.

by Kathi Carlson
Times Reporter

Elated was the word to describe Paula Kjos' reaction Thursday, June 12 when Casper arrived in Thief River Falls. Paula, who is hearing impaired, received new "ears" when Casper, a poodle mix, was brought to her door by Master Trainer Bob Cooley of International Hearing Dog, Inc.

Paula, 22, was born hard of hearing due to a genetic disposition. Her late father was hearing impaired as is most of his family and two of Paula's siblings. Paula's hearing problems became worse when she was in the seventh grade.

She attended public school in Thief River Falls through the tenth grade with the help of an interpreter, Rita Soine. For her junior and senior years, Paula attended the Minnesota Academy for the Deaf in Faribault. Recently, she completed her education at the North Dakota State School of Science in Wahpeton and is seeking employment as a computer graphic artist.

She is currently staying with her mother, Lucille, at the rural home where she was raised. Her mother is an LPN at Oakland Park Nursing Home. Paula is the youngest of four children, and her father died when she was five. Lucille gives much credit to Paula's three older siblings who helped care for her.

Paula has a quick smile and bright eyes and is very easy to communicate with. With hearing aids, she hears about 25 percent with some voices and some sounds easier to hear than others. She reads lips, speaks very well and uses sign language. As with many deaf people, her greatest communication problems are in group situations where she is unable to keep up with the conversations going on around her.

Always an animal lover, Paula was excited to find out about International Hearing Dog, Inc. On a waiting list for about a year, Paula was to have received him in March. Because of the harsh winter, the wait was longer. Appropriately named, Casper is a fluffy, white bundle of energy, and, like the ghost he is named for, very friendly. Paula is looking for Casper to make her life easier by helping her to hear the door bell, telephone, alarm clock, smoke alarm and when walking, traffic from behind.

Those are exactly the things Casper has been trained to do at International Hearing Dog, Inc., a non-profit organization based in Henderson, Colorado.

Founded in 1979, the organization has trained and placed over 700 hearing dogs to assist persons throughout the United States and Canada who are deaf or hard of hearing. There is at least one hearing dog in every state. Over the years about 100 dogs have been delivered to Minnesota. Because recipients have relocated, approximately 15 to 20 dogs are still here.

The only application requirements are that the applicant has 60 decibels or greater hearing loss and is physically and mentally able to care for a dog. The majority of recipients are 18 to 35 years of age. The director matches the dogs to applicants from information on the application. As in Paula's case, the average wait is just over a year.

The dogs are provided free of charge to qualified applicants with the $3,000 needed to train and place each dog funded through donations from individuals and service clubs, foundation grants and fund-raising.

The program was founded in Minnesota with help from Minnesota Lions Clubs who continue to be the largest single supporter. Many private donations are received because all of the dogs selected for the training come from shelters in the Denver area giving these once, unwanted animals a chance to be part of someone's life.

Because they come from shelters, 95 percent of the dogs are of mixed breeding. Animals that meet the age, health, intelligence and temperament criteria are selected for the four to six month training program. Ideally, the dogs are six months to one year of age. At this age, they are the most receptive to training. Placed in quarantine for two weeks, the dogs are given their shots and neutered, and their general health is determined. Curious and friendly are the two traits most important in judging intelligence and temperment.

Trained to hear a sound and touch his master, the desired weight is 20 to 25 pounds. A larger dog might knock his owner down as the "touch" is often a frisky pounce up against the person. Sounds the dogs are trained to respond to are a knock or doorbell, telephone, alarm clock and smoke alarm. They can also be taught to respond to a baby's cry, oven timer, severe weather siren, or severe weather without an alarm. Hearing dogs can also be taught to pick up items dropped by owners with mobility problems and retrieve items using a sign language command. Over time, the hearing dogs adapt to the needs of their masters. Because sounds occur around the clock, the hearing dog is on duty 24 hours a day.

The training is done by professionals. A number of trainers work with each dog so that no bond is formed between trainer and dog. This allows the dog to more easily bond with his hearing-impaired owner. International Hearing Dog's facility can house up to 30 dogs at one time.

The dogs are trained not to bark because their owners often live in apartments or highrises. Three years ago, however, a barking hearing dog saved the life of his master who had suffered a heart attack. Because the dog normally didn't bark, the man's neighbors knew that something must be causing him to do so and investigated.

Hearing dogs are allowed into public buildings and on public transportation. In a restaurant or on a plane, they will normally settle at the feet of their master. Landlords, by law, must rent to owners of hearing dogs and cannot charge more or restrict areas. Ninety-nine percent of business and landlords are receptive to hearing dogs.

Casper traveled to Thief River Falls via plane into Fargo and then by rented car to Thief River Falls along with Trainer Bob Cooley and Frisco, a demo dog.

Cooley has been with International Hearing Dog, Inc. for five years, three years as a volunteer and two years as a trainer. Training and delivering dogs all over the country, he finds his work fun and very rewarding.

A demonstration by Frisco, a retriever cross, showed a dog who truly loved his work. Responding to a tape of sounds, he jumped onto his trainer's chest at the sound of an alarm clock. When the phone rang, he would run toward the sound and back to Cooley gently jumping up and touching him to make him aware of the sound. He also picked up dropped keys and retrieved a magazine and wallet with a sign language command.

Cooley and Frisco remained in Thief River Falls through Monday working with Paula and Casper to ensure a long lasting working relationship. For the next 90 days, Paula is to work with Casper on each of the sounds at least once a day. At the end of that period, Casper will participate in a certification test and then be issued an orange collar and leash. The collar, leash and optional orange vest are internationally recognized symbols of a hearing dog.

By Sunday, one could see a bond already forming between Paula and Casper. Her eyes lit up when she looked at him, and he didn't go far from her side until the phone rang. Casper sprang into action, doing what he had spent many months learning to do.

With International Hearing Dog, Inc. able to boast a 98 percent success rate in both the training and placement of the dogs, Paula and Casper have good odds on their side.

It's something wonderful when man's best friend-or in Paula's case, woman's best friend-can provide her with companionship and love while helping her live more independently and maintain a quality of life free from the dangers and isolation of a silent world.

If you would like to know more about International Hearing Dog, Inc., the address is 5901 East 89th Ave., Henderson, CO 80640 or (303) 287-3277.

This was Frisco's response to an alarm clock–hopping unto the chest of his trainer, Bob Cooley. Bob and Frisco are from International Hearing Dog, Inc. and were in town to deliver Casper, a hearing dog, to Paula Kjos.

ON MY MIND

Kim Chadwick-Quade

Welcome to the family!

I have a new family member. Hopefully, at this moment he's off running happily through the rain forest jungle in Belize Central America.

Last week I officially adopted a green iguana and minutes later released him into the wild.

It's part of the iguana conservation project being conducted at the San Ignacio Hotel, located in the Cayo District of Belize. I was in the country on assignment with Magnum Belize, a Detroit Lakes-based company that's arranged vacations to Belize for 11 years.

The project at the hotel touts the phrase, "I guana go to Cayo," a play on words using some Creole language (one of a number of dialects spoken in the country).

Mariam Roberson, general manager and one of four sister owners of the hotel, started the project about 1 1/2 years ago. The iguana, a four-legged reptile that enjoys basking in the sun, is oftentimes hunted for food and is becoming a threatened species. Mariam wants to help restore the iguana population and at the same time educate people about preservation.

In March of 1996, staff caught female iguanas that were about to lay eggs and kept the iguanas in an enclosure resembling their natural habitat. After the females laid the eggs, about 30 to 40 apiece, the eggs were placed in a temperature-controlled incubator. Mariam says more than 700 eggs were collected. About 90 to 100 days later, baby iguanas emerged. These were transferred to the enclosure and nurtured.

Now those little green creatures are nearly one year old and large enough to fend for themselves in the wild. It's time to let them go. Mariam, whose father founded the hotel 20 years ago, encourages interested hotel guests and local school classrooms in the town of San Ignacio to participate in the release.

I was able to do that. After walking on a jungle trail running parallel to the Macal River, we reached a clearing which houses the incubation station and the live enclosure.

First, we watched as two new iguanas hatched from their eggs. When they've depleted the food supply from their umbilical cord they're transferred to the enclosure until they're large enough to fend for themselves, like the ones we're about to release.

Then we visited the enclosure where the iguanas have called home for the last year. We stepped inside carefully so we wouldn't injure any. They clustered together enjoying the warm day.

Mariam selected two iguanas, one for me and one for my companion. We then posed for photographs with our newly-adopted iguanas. I named mine "Zachary" in honor of my son. Their bodies were approximately the size of our hands, with the tail adding to their length. We walked to the perimeter of the dense jungle and let them go. Mine, with energy similar to that of my busy 6-year-old son, ran quickly into the brush to explore his new world. We received a T-shirt sporting the image of a hatching iguana with the phrase "I guana go to Cayo." Soon we'll receive our official adoption papers.

For Mariam, this is the result that she was working toward: raising the iguanas and releasing them into the wild. She was the first to attempt the project and they've been learning and documenting their results.

By the way she talked to the iguanas that day and the excitement in her voice, you know this project means a lot. Those iguanas are her pride and joy. "Last year I was like a pregnant woman for three months while we waited for them to hatch. I was a nervous wreck," she says.

She's exerted time and energy into this special project and is starting the process all over again with another batch of eggs. Next year, she'll have another group of green iguanas ready to release into the wild. Maybe I'll get to add another member to my family.

Summer library program kicks off with concert

Activities at the Thief River Falls Public Library are kicked off on June 19 with a special concert by [illegible] Fyder and Everhart. Children's musicians Fyder and Everhart will perform a 45 minute concert on June 19 at noon at the library.

"Please note the time as it is different than most programs we hold," says library manager Heidi Hoks, "but Fyder and Everhart just happened to be in the Midwestern Minnesota area with a concert both the evening of this program and sandwiched us in."

This concert is made possible in large part through a generous donation from Friends of the Library. This is the first time Fyder and Everhart have been in this part of the state and it is an opportunity for the library to share the musical group with the public. There is no charge for the program.

Fyder and Everhart have produced a delightful audio cassette called "I've Got the He Be Je Bes." It is available at the Thief River Falls Public Library for check out. Both Ted Fyder and Glen Everhart have college degrees in elementary education and Glen worked for five years as a public school music teacher. They present a lively interactive program with children that has children laughing, clapping and, of course, singing along to old favorites as well as some new original music.

They have performed more than 400 shows at fairs, corporate events, colleges, schools and clubs in 10 states. They have been winners of both of Minnesota's biggest country music competitions and were twice featured entertainers at the Minnesota Governor's Fishing Opener festivities.

Their music his heard frequently on Minnesota Public Radio's Morning program and they have been guest performers on WCCO Radio, KARE 11 News, KSTP-TV and Public TV's "Backroads" program. They wrote the theme for the "Venture North" program and have had regional hits with the songs "Up North" and "The Opener." They are a delightful duo who make children feel wonderful about themselves and about singing.

Registration for the summer reading program also begins on June 19. Children can register beginning at 11:30 a.m. and may register anytime after that time with library staff. For the reading program, children set their own reading pace by choosing their own reading goal and working towards that goal from June 19-July 21. Children record books they have read on their reading record form in the reading program box by July 21. Everyone competing their summer reading goal receives a certificate of completion and a small prize. Those signing up for the summer reading program also have the opportunity to participate in a variety of raffles with gifts donated by Arctic Cat, Pamida, Hall's Floral and the Thief River Falls Friends of the Library. Those completing their goal can also participate in the August raffle for a certificate to the Falls book Company. More details on the summer reading program can be picked up at the circulation desk at the Thief River Falls Public Library.

ON MY MIND

Kim Chadwick-Quade

Welcome to the family!

I have a new family member. Hopefully, at this moment he's off running happily through the rain forest jungle in Belize, Central America.

Last week I officially adopted a green iguana and minutes later released him into the wild.

It's part of the iguana conservation project being conducted at the San Ignacio Hotel, located in the Cayo District of Belize. I was in the country on assignment with Magnum Belize, a Detroit Lakes-based company that's arranged vacations to Belize for 11 years.

The project at the hotel touts the phrase: "I guana go to Cayo," a play on words using some Creole language (one of a number of dialects spoken in the country).

Mariam Roberson, general manager and one of four sister owners of the hotel, started the project about 1 1/2 years ago. The iguana, a four-legged reptile that enjoys basking in the sun, is oftentimes hunted for food and is becoming a threatened species. Mariam wants to help restore the iguana population and at the same time educate people about preservation.

In March of 1996, staff caught female iguanas that were about to lay eggs and kept the iguanas in an enclosure resembling their natural habitat. After the females laid the eggs, about 30 to 40 apiece, the eggs were placed in a temperature-controlled incubator. Mariam says more than 700 eggs were collected. About 90 to 100 days later, baby iguanas emerged. These were transferred to the enclosure and nurtured.

Now those little green creatures are nearly one year old and large enough to fend for themselves in the wild. It's time to let them go. Mariam, whose father founded the hotel 20 years ago, encourages interested hotel guests and local school classrooms in the town of San Ignacio to participate in the release.

I was able to do that. After walking on a jungle trail running parallel to the Macal River, we reached a clearing which houses the incubation station and the live enclosure.

First, we watched as two new iguanas hatched from their eggs. When they've depleted the food supply from their umbilical cord they're transferred to the enclosure until they're large enough to fend for themselves, like the ones we're about to release.

Then we visited the enclosure where the iguanas have called home for the last year. We stepped inside carefully so we wouldn't injure any. They clustered together enjoying the warm day.

Mariam selected two iguanas, one for me and one for my companion. We then posed for photographs with our newly-adopted iguanas; I named mine "Zachary" in honor of my son. Their bodies were approximately the size of our hands, with the tail adding to their length. We walked to the perimeter of the dense jungle and let them go. Mine, with energy similar to that of my busy 6-year-old son, ran quickly into the brush to explore his new world. We received a T-shirt sporting the image of a hatching iguana with the phrase "I guana go to Cayo." Soon we'll receive our official adoption papers.

For Mariam, this is the result that she was working toward: raising the iguanas and releasing them into the wild. She was the first to attempt the project and they've been learning and documenting their results.

By the way she talked to the iguanas that day and the excitement in her voice, you know this project means a lot. Those iguanas are her pride and joy. "Last year I was like a pregnant woman for three months while we waited for them to hatch. I was a nervous wreck," she says.

She's exerted time and energy into this special project and is starting the process all over again with another batch of eggs. Next year, she'll have another group of green iguanas ready to release into the wild. Maybe I'll get to add another member to my family.

PARENTING TIPS
Playing Together

For children play is work. For them it may not be as simple as it looks. In fact, there are several categories of play that can be observed when two or more preschool children are present.

Onlooker Play

A child is a passive spectator as he watches another child or two play without participating in the activity. Through onlooker play a child may learn new behaviors or muster up the courage to try a new skill at a later time. Onlooker play often enables a shy child, a younger child or a child who is in unfamiliar surroundings to adjust more easily to a new situation.

Parallel Play

Two or more children will play in close proximity but independently of one another. Although playing alongside one another, each is focused on his or her own activity. Sometimes a child will alternate from parallel play to onlooker play and then later imitate the play of the other child in a mutual parallel play.

Next week more on play.

SOMETHING TO TALK ABOUT

When playing with a child who is involved in one of these two stages, do not overwhelm the child with lots of talk or questions. It is better to observe and imitate the child's actions and words.

Summer library program kicks off with concert

Activities at the Thief River Falls Public Library are kicked off on June 19 with a special concert by musicians Fyder and Everhart. Children's musicians Fyder and Everhart will perform a 45 minute concert on June 19 at noon at the library.

"Please note the time as it is different than most programs we hold," says library manager Heidi Hoks, "but Fyder and Everhart just happened to be in the Midwestern Minnesota area with a concert both the evening of this program and sandwiched us in."

This concert is made possible in large part through a generous donation from Friends of the Library. This is the first time Fyder and Everhart have been in this part of the state and it is an opportunity for the library to share the musical group with the public. There is no charge for the program.

Fyder and Everhart have produced a delightful audio cassette called "I've Got the He Be Je Bes." It is available at the Thief River Falls Public Library for check-out. Both Ted Fyder and Glen Everhart have college degrees in elementary education, and Glen worked for five years as a public school music teacher. They present a lively interactive program with children that has children laughing, clapping and, of course, singing along to old favorites as well as some new original music.

They have performed more than 600 shows at fairs, corporate events, colleges, schools and clubs in 10 states. They have been winners of both of Minnesota's biggest country music competitions and were twice featured entertainers at the Minnesota Governor's Fishing Opener festivities.

Their music has heard frequently on Minnesota Public Radio's Morning program and they have been guest performers on WCCO Radio, KARE 11 News, KSTP-TV and Public TV's "Backroads" program. They wrote the theme for the "Venture North" program and have had regional hits with the songs "Up North" and "The Opener." They are a delightful duo who make children feel wonderful about themselves and about singing.

Registration for the summer reading program also begins on June 19. Children can register beginning at 11:30 a.m. and may register anytime after that time with library staff. For the reading program, children set their own reading pace by choosing their own reading goal and working towards that goal from June 19-July 21. Children record books they have read on their reading record form in the reading program box by July 21. Everyone competing their summer reading goal receives a certificate of competition and a small prize. Those signing up for the summer reading program also have the opportunity to participate in a variety of raffles with gifts donated by Arctic Cat, Pamida, Hall's Floral and the Thief River Falls Friends of the Library. Those completing their goal can also participate in the August raffle for a certificate to the Falls book Company. More details on the summer reading program can be picked up at the circulation desk at the Thief River Falls Public Library.

For more information about these program please contact the Thief River Falls Public Library at 101 East First Street (681-4325) during library hours: Monday through Thursday 10 a.m. to 7 p.m. or Friday and Saturday from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m.

Q&A SOCIAL SECURITY

Provided by the Social Security District Office in Grand Forks, ND

Q. Where is the Grand Forks SSA office now located?

A: As with most of downtown, the Grand Forks office received flood related damage and has relocated until repairs can be made. The temporary office is located in the Columbia Mall in Grand Forks and is easily reached through the entrance by the John Barleycorne restaurant near Dayton's. Public office hours remain from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. As of this writing, all of the usual office phone numbers are in operation but are being routed to the SSA office in Fargo, ND. The usual mailing address of 124 North Sixth Street, Grand Forks, ND, 58203 remains the correct one to use.

Q. Would my claim for benefits have been lost in the flood?

A: No. Social Security pending claim, current beneficiary, and appointment systems are on a national computer base and therefore would not be harmed by a localized disaster. Since the flood, all appointments scheduled for Grand Forks have been taken care of by other SSA offices and for the immediate future this will continue. Also, because many local SSA employees suffered from the flood, the agency has made special arrangements to continue work processing during this time. Relatively few case files did get wet and the agency is working with a firm to have them restored.

SPEAKING OF

Sherry LaCoursiere

...I'm Not As Frisky Either

I once wrote a poem about getting older. If I remember correctly, I talked about "chicken skin" and the lack of hair where it should be and the presence of hair where it shouldn't be. Getting older also means aches and pains in the morning, and sometimes throughout the day, unusual digestive tract occurrences, the need for naps, and coming to the conclusion that what the term, "hard as nails," really refers to are those on the fingers and toes.

Oh, I'll allow that getting older means getting wiser. I know I am much wiser now than I was at 18 or 20 because I have had so many years to learn things. The problem is, I can't remember what I am so wise about. That is what happens when one gets older.

The other day, after my aches and pains were chased away by a hot shower and a little Ben-Gay, the hair that should be but isn't was frizzed up a little, the hair that shouldn't be but is was whisked away, and my digestive tract was treated to a fiber-filled breakfast, I was reading the morning paper.

Now we all know that reading the morning paper is sometimes an effort. No news is good news, and that is often the case with the newspaper - murders, assaults, accidents, disasters and lawsuits and such usually take our breakfast appetites away and ruin our days even before they have started.

But this morning I found the nicest little story hidden away in the bad stuff in the Grand Forks Herald. The headline was: "Woman, 98, ready to serve in army." (Who could resist reading such a story?)

Anyway, according to the article, it turned out that the Norwegian army had put 98-year-old Gyda Koland on its reserves list - and she was ready to go if called. "I'll be there if they need me," she said.

Gyda got on the reserve list because she bought a new farm tractor, which is quite something in itself for a 98-year-old who is evidently still farming her land. The military maintains a list of potentially useful civilian vehicles, some of which are tractors, and owners of the vehicles are sent orders notifying them that they may be summoned to active service should there be a war.

Gyda got one of the orders. Her orders said she and her tractor should report to Utne near Bergen, Norway, in case of mobilization. She said she would be happy to take her tractor and go to Utne to be in the reserves. "If they can use my tractor to defend the country, they can have it."

Then she added, "I might not be quite as useful. I'm not quite as frisky as I used to be."

Oh, Gyda, I know just how you feel! Neither am I quite as frisky as I used to be, and your used-to-be is much farther back than my used-to-be. I'm sure you were much more frisky at my age than I am. What a gal you are - an example to all of us to quit whining about our little aches and pains and be more like you. I'm going to remember you every time I moan and groan about some little problem and just say, "I'm not quite as frisky as I used to be."

Who else but a 98-year-old Norwegian granny, hum? Go, Granny Gyda!

CPR classes offered at NW Medical Center

Perhaps someone you love is suffering from heart disease. Maybe the nature of your job requires that you be prepared to handle medical emergencies. Or you may believe, as many people do, that knowing the skills of CPR simply makes you a more useful member of your community. Whatever your reasons it is important to remember that CPR can help save lives. Many deaths can be prevented if the victims get prompt help — if someone trained in CPR provides proper life-saving measures until trained professionals take over.

The local VFW Post 2793, Northwest Medical Center and Dakota Clinic - Thief River Falls, have joined together to bring Heartsaver CPR classes to the residents of Thief River Falls and the surrounding area. A choice of two evening courses is offered July 9 or 10. Classes will begin at 6 p.m. at Northwest Medical Center and will last approximately two hours. You must be 18 to attend.

Participants will learn adult one-person CPR, the Heimlich maneuver (for choking), heart risk factors and nutrition and heart healthy living. Each participant completing the class will receive a Heartsaver CPR pin and certificate. Pre-registration is required by July 2. A $5 fee is charged for the class and registration can be completed by calling Gail Holland at 218-681-4240 ext. 210. Class size is limited so register early.

Special Bat program June 20 at Rydell Refuge

How many insects can they eat in one night? How many babies does each mother have each year? How many species are found in Minnesota? The answers are from 3,000 to 7,000 insects a night, one baby a year, and seven species in Minnesota, and the subject being talked about is Bats. Learn more about this fascinating and very beneficial animal at a community program beginning at 9 p.m. on Friday, June 20 at the Rydell National Wildlife Refuge.

Earl Johnson, Minnesota DNR Area Wildlife Manager from Detroit Lakes, will present this free public program that will include slides showing bats common to Minnesota, bat fact and fiction, how to rid your house of bats, shelters that can be made and put up for bats, and other questions that you have. Bat house plans and other information will be available. A drawing will be held from those attending to give away a free bat house donated by the Friends of the Rydell Refuge Association.

Following the program anyone interested in searching for bats in the area immediately around the Rydell Refuge Headquarters are invited to join Johnson as he demonstrates use of a "bat locator." It is a small microphone that picks up bat's radar signals and uses a radio transmitter to translate these signals into lower frequency sounds that are audible to the human ear. The type of bat can be detected according to the frequency that is made. This "field trip" will begin at dusk about 10 p.m.

This program is free and open to the public. It is being co-sponsored by the Union Lake Sarah Improvement Association. If you have any questions contact the Rydell Refuge at 218-687-2229 or Wayne Goeken at 218-574-2622.

To get to the Rydell Refuge go three miles east of Mentor or three miles west of Erskine on U.S. Highway 2 and turn south on Polk County 210. Follow 210 about 2.5 miles south to the main gate of the Refuge. Turn right at the large entrance sign. If arriving from the south, turn north off of Polk County 41 onto Polk County 210 and go about 3.5 miles north and turn left at the Refuge entrance sign.

LSS seeks peer listeners to offer support

Lutheran Social Service of Minnesota, working cooperatively with Lutheran Social Services of North Dakota, is seeking individuals who can serve as peer listeners to neighbors in affected by spring flooding through a program called Neighbor to Neighbor.

Neighbor to Neighbor is a non-denominational program that trains individuals to be empathetic listeners, caregivers and resources on that may be helpful to distressed individuals and families. The program also helps peer listeners to recognize emerging mental health issues that may require services from professional resources.

A similar program called Caring Cadre helped many people during the rural crisis in the mid-1980s when droughts hit the midwest.

"Sometimes, just being able to talk to someone who is a good listener and can empathize is a big help," explained Shelley Guida, program director. "We are looking for people who can open their hearts to others and offer long-term emotional support."

Lutheran Social Service of Minnesota will offer training in Ada on June 20 at Faith United Methodist Church from 9 to 4 p.m.; and in Warren on June 27 at Our Savior's Lutheran Church in Warren from 9 to 4 p.m. Lunch and materials are provided.

The training will focus on three basic areas: listening and support skills, problem-solving skills, information on available economic, vocational, education and counseling resources. Other trainings will be held this summer in the following communities: Crookston, East Grand Forks, Moorhead, Granite Falls and Montevideo.

If you are interested in being a peer listener through Neighbor to Neighbor, please call for more information: Ada at 218-784-4010, Warren at 218-745-4478, or Moorhead at 218-236-1494.

NCTC students receive automotive scholarships

Minnesota Auto Dealers Association Foundation (MADA) has awarded three $500 scholarships to students at Northland Community and Technical College in Thief River Falls.

Jason Bring of Strandquist, a 1996 graduate of Marshall County Central High School, and David Senn of McIntosh, a 1995 high school graduate, both in the Automotive Service Technology major and Wesley Maki from Britt, a 1996 graduate of Roosevelt Senior High School in Virginia, enrolled in the Auto Body Technology major, all received $500 awards to continue their education in the automotive field.

The MADA Charitable Foundation granted 70 scholarships to students studying in the automotive field at 26 colleges in Minnesota. The number of scholarships approved by the board is up 10 from last year. The decision to increase the number of awards reflects both the industry's satisfaction with the students being produced by the state's college system and the growing demand for trained automotive service personnel.

All three students receiving the awards at Northland Community and Technical College will return in September to complete their education.

The weather was kind to the people meeting at the Gully Park on Sunday for a Parish Outdoor Service and potluck dinner afterwards. Rev. Bob Kelly was attending a Seminar and couldn't be here. Lonny Carlson conducted the service very efficiently and professionally. With the help of Nancy Lee at the keyboard and his brother Carry helping with the music it was an interesting and enjoyable session. Carry played his guitar and sang "Lord of All Hopefulness." He also played and sang one of the songs Roger Good has composed and written "To a Christian." Since the wind was from the easterly direction, I wondered if the Roger Good family could hear and enjoy the pretty vocal solo. Thanks Roger and Cory for sharing the pleasant message with us. Luke Torgerson was here and played "Amazing Grace" on his trumpet accompanied by his dad Les on the keyboard. After the service the Carlson families grilled hot dogs and polish sausages on the grill and with the others providing a variety of food for the potluck we had a real picnic dinner. Thanks Lonny for being such a good leader. Even outside we heard every word as you spoke.

UFO Sighting reported near St. Hilaire

Report of the sighting of an Unidentified Flying Object (UFO) in the St. Hilaire area Monday evening, June 16, was received by The Times Tuesday morning.

Kari Hanson, 21, and her sister Brenda, 13, of Newfolden were approaching St. Hilaire from the west shortly after 11 p.m. when they noticed an extremely bright light over St. Hilaire. When they turned north on Highway 32, Kari told The Times, the object came closer on the east side of the highway and kept pace with their vehicle at regular highway speed for several miles.

Kari said the object was silvery white with what appeared to be small illuminated windows. It was long and appeared to be circular in shape with a red light toward the back portion. She estimated it to be 100 feet in length or diameter and to have approached within 300 feet of their car.

Hanson said she was very frightened by the sighting and turned the radio in the car up very loud. She said she told her sister not to look at the UFO but noticed that several cars she met were slowing down or stopping as if they were also watching. Having avoided looking at the sight herself, neither she nor her sister saw the object disappear, but when they looked around near Thief River Falls, it was gone.

The Times would be interested in hearing from anyone else who was in that area Monday evening and may also have sighted the object.

Lisa Swanson participates in state pageant

Miss Thief River Falls 1996-97, Lisa Swanson, returned home Monday after a week of participation in the Miss Minnesota Pageant at Austin.

Although she wasn't a finalist, Lisa said the pageant was a very good experience and she felt the competition went well. She said she was disappointed in the way her interview with the judges went on Friday morning.

"I wasn't nervous and felt quite confident going into the interview," she said. "The questions weren't hard but I didn't do a good job with my answers. I knew I couldn't win after the interview I had."

Lisa said she had fun performing at the talent showcase Wednesday and that her talent performance went well at the Saturday evening pageant. Many friends and family members attended, she said, and she thanked those who were there to support her or who sent cards and flowers during the week.

Crowned as the new Miss Minnesota was Miss Winona, Jennifer Ostergaard.

"She is super nice and deserved to win," Lisa said. "This was the third time she has competed at the state pageant."

Several concurrent workshops will be held, highlighting small business start-up and expansion, marketing and product development, housing and community renewal, telecommunications and value added for natural resource development.

"It continues to be the goal of the Red Lake Tribal Council that economic development be a primary focus to ensure that the Red Lake Nation's progress will respond to new challenges such as welfare reform," Whitefeather said. "The strength of all surrounding communities will be a major factor on how our success will be determined."

Organizations and businesses, both on and off reservations, that are interested in setting up an exhibit free of charge in the middle school gym are invited to contact Red Lake Tribal Planner Holly Smith at 218-679-3361 or Michael Meyers at 218-759-0172.

Tri-Valley holds banquet for volunteers

Even a wet and demanding spring could not dampen the spirits of 127 volunteers, who were honored Wednesday, May 28, at the Annual Tri-Valley Opportunity Council Volunteer Banquet.

The banquet, delayed for one month because of the April flood crisis, seemed especially appropriate this year, according to the event coordinator, Delores Myerchin. "We drew on our volunteers in such a big way in April. These folks really contributed above and beyond the call of duty. The crisis drew us together, and we have an even greater appreciation as an agency and as a community."

Tri-Valley volunteers from across Northwestern Minnesota attended the event, including delegations from Norman, Polk, Marshall, Kittson, Red Lake, Pennington, Roseau, and Lake of the Woods counties.

Myerchin says volunteers work in a number of areas including transportation, medical forms assistance, valley housekeeping, foster grandparents, and senior companions. "This year many also came to our aid in providing emergency child care for flood relief workers and displaced families, and in supporting our staff in the distribution of food, supplies, and fuel vouchers that followed the evacuation of Grand Forks and East Grand Forks. We also owe many thanks to the volunteers that reached out in support of the Ada and Warren areas, and to our family service centers in those communities.

To encourage communities in the flood aftermath, the Tri-Valley Opportunity Council has commissioned a T-shirt design, which will be distributed to employees throughout the Tri-Valley service area. The design, which was donated by Nelson Ink in Middle River, portrays a sparkling new community rising from flood waters along with the phrase, "Together We Can." Tri-Valley Opportunity Council Executive Director, Dennis DeMers, says the T-shirt is just a reminder to keep up the hopes and dreams of residents as communities rebuild.

Early season absences in the personnel department due to various family, school and sports camp commitments have left first-year Thief River Falls American Legion baseball coach Bruce Elseth shorthanded when it comes to making out a line-up card.

As a result, Post 117 took an 0-6 record into a scheduled 5 p.m. Tuesday doubleheader against Moorhead at Irv Wilson Field.

"We've had a lot of kids gone," pointed out Elseth. "We've been playing some younger kids."

The 1997 Legion season began with the June 6-8 Thief River Falls Invitational, where Post 117 dropped a 6-5 first round decision to Badger/Greenbush-Middle River and lost a 10-0 loser bracket game to Underwood.

A June 10 Ninth District doubleheader at Fergus Falls resulted in 10-2 and 16-0 losses. Dayton Elseth was the losing pitcher in Game 1 when Fergus Falls' 10-3 base hit advantage included a pair of home runs. Jeremy Houske was tagged with the loss in Game 2 when 10 Fergus Falls base hits were complemented by eight walks and four Thief River Falls errors.

Thursday, Thief River Falls played at Roseau, losing a 2-1 eight-inning doubleheader opener, then falling 11-6 in the nightcap.

Courtney Skjerven pitched well in the first-game loss at Roseau, pointed out Elseth. Dustin Swan led the Thief River Falls offense with a 3-for-5 performance that included an RBI.

Andy Harbott was 2-for-2 and Swan went 2-for-4 in the second game. Ryan Rogalla was the starting and losing pitcher, with Nick Swanson pitching three innings in relief.

The current Thief River Falls homestand will also include doubleheaders Friday vs. Blackduck starting at 5 p.m., Sunday vs. Fergus Falls beginning at 1 p.m., and Tuesday vs. East Grand Forks at 5:30 p.m.

Thieves struggle with numbers

There are 18 names listed on the Thief River Falls Thieves amateur baseball team roster, but according to manager Howard Dalager, getting half of those players to the park by game time is the biggest challenge facing the fourth-year program.

"It's an up-and-down battle," said Dalager in reference to the struggle to put nine players in uniform on game day. Lack of numbers forced the team to call off a scheduled trip to Warroad recently.

"That was the lowest point of my baseball career," said Dalager, who has been involved in Thief River Falls baseball at nearly every level from Babe Ruth, VFW, American Legion, and now senior amateur level. "We just couldn't find anybody willing to go up there."

Work schedules, and some cases school, create the biggest obstacles in putting together a full complement of players, explained Dalager. "It's been hard so far, but when we have everybody, I think we'll be one of the top clubs in the area," he said.

Carter Rogalla, an all-conference player at the University of North Dakota, and Nathan Knutson, have been part of the Thieves each year of their existence.

Also providing experience are players like Chris Nelson, who played at Mayville State University and is the head high school baseball coach at Red Lake County; Jason Kempert, who anchors the infield at shortstop; and Mike Steen, the team's top pitcher. Nelson helped convince Blaise Larson and Aaron Chaput, two of his top players in recent years with the Red Red Lake Falls/Oklee/Plummer high school cooperative, to join the Thieves this summer.

Chaput pitches, as does Mitch Bernstein, a former North Dakota State University player.

Steve Burslie has been solid at catcher, pointed out Dalager, while Nick Chiodo has been valuable as a multiple-position player and Adam Henney has been steady in the outfield.

Kempert, Nelson and first baseman Joby Looker are all capable of being the Thieves' leaders on offense, noted Dalager.

The team is financed by a $50 per player registration fee and contributions from the Legion and Eagles.

"We're struggling a little bit right now," admitted Dalager, whose team lost to Crookston 13-2 Friday, but snapped a season-opening four-game losing streak with a 5-3 Sunday victory over Warroad at Irv Wilson Field. "That was a good game," he said. "It's fun when we can get the guys together and play the game between the lines."

Friday night, Chiodo hit a lead-off home run for an early 1-0 lead, but Crookston pitcher Dave Clousen gave up only five hits the rest of the way. Brent Stahlecker led a 15-hit Crookston attack with a pair of home runs. Derek McFarlane was the losing pitcher.

In the late-afternoon Sunday match-up with Warroad, there was no scoring until the sixth when Henney singled and eventually crossed the plate on a pair of two-out Warroad errors.

The Muskies answered with RBI singles by Steve Haats and Pat Fermoyle in the seventh, but a two-run Sean Huset triple highlighted a four-run Thief River Falls outburst in the bottom of the inning.

A solo home run by Warroad's Mark Harder in the eighth closed out the scoring in the nine-inning affair.

Steen was the winning pitcher; Brent Poole took the loss. The Thieves out-hit the Muskies 9-5, with Henney and Burslie both picking up a pair of hits.

The Thief River Falls trip to Warroad has been rescheduled for 6 p.m. Saturday (June 21), which will be followed by a 2 p.m. Sunday (June 22) game at Irv Wilson Field against Fertile and a 7:30 p.m. Monday (June 23) contest at Ada. All three games are scheduled as nine-inning match-ups.

Conservation Plates prove popular with Minnesota motorists

Know how to spot some of Minnesota's most dedicated conservationists? Look at their license plates.

Just one year after Minnesota's first Conservation License Plate was mounted on Sen. Len Price's car, more than 9,000 other Minnesotans have joined the effort to protect critical natural habitats. Sen. Price and Rep. Willard Munger were authors of the law that created the plates two years ago to provide funds for the DNR's Reinvest In Minnesota (RIM) Critical Habitat Match program.

The plate, with its distinctive tan color and scene of two deer along a lakeshore, is now Minnesota's second most popular specialty plate, second only to the individualized "vanity" plates. Sales of the conservation plates, which cost motorists an additional $30 per year, have generated some $270,000, so far.

"I'm extremely pleased that people recognize this as a way to help critical habitats," said Sen. Price. "I really get fired up when I'm driving down the road and see the plates on other cars. Lots of people have asked me about mine, and I enjoy explaining the purpose of the plate to them."

"Considering that we didn't have much money to promote the plates, we've been very happy with the response," said Tom Landwehr, DNR Wetland Wildlife Program leader. "I just think Minnesotans are very conservation oriented and they are looking for ways to contribute, especially when that contribution is leveraged."

According to Landwehr, money received in the RIM account is used to match, dollar for dollar, donations from other sources, so every Conservation License Plate dollar is doubled. The DNR is working closely with private conservation groups such as Pheasants Forever, Ducks Unlimited, and The Nature Conservancy to use RIM funds for land acquisition projects that have the highest value to Minnesota wildlife.

Added Roger Holmes, director of the DNR Division of Fish and Wildlife, "Conservation License Plates - they're the sign of a true conservationist."

Kilen is Nordics' MVP

Freshman Kristi Kilen was named the most valuable member of the 1997 Marshall County Central girls high school track team, it was announced by Nordics head coach Ron Ueland.

Other honors went to senior Brandi Olson, selected most dedicated, and freshman Mandi Blawat, voted most improved. Morea Steinhauer was named the outstanding junior-high member of the program.

The Nordics' 1997 season was completed at the Section 8A meet, where Kilen placed third in the high jump and Blawat was fifth in the 800 meters.

Kilen, who had cleared 5-3 on a consistent basis during the season, wound up in a tie at 5-1 in the sectional competition. She did not make 5-3 – the next height – and lost out on a state meet trip on a tie breaker.

"Kristi was a good enough high jumper to win state," said Ueland.

Blawat tried her hand at a number of events during the course of the season, explained Ueland, before she settled on the 800 late in the year and wound up with the third-best time in the event in school history.

Aquatic Plant Removal

With the arrival of warm weather, aquatic plants are growing. These plants are a critical component of many Minnesota lakes. They provide habitat for fish and wildlife and help to maintain water clarity. However, aquatic plants may also hamper the ability of lakeshore homeowners to reach open water. The Department of Natural Resources reminds lakeshore property owners to follow a few basic guidelines to ensure they don't inadvertently break the law or unnecessarily remove these important components of lake ecosystems.

The rules governing aquatic plant control have been revised. However, most lakeshore homeowners will notice little if any change in aquatic plant regulations for the 1997 season. Two changes that will affect some lakeshore residents are:

- Any use of automated untended aquatic plant control devices, such as the Crary WeedRoller, now requires a permit.
- Control of water lilies or other floating leaf plants now requires a permit in all cases, except that a channel up to 15 feet wide can be created and maintained by cutting or pulling without a permit.

Without a permit, lakeshore homeowners may cut or pull submerged vegetation, like coontail, in a 2,500-square-foot area adjacent to their property. In addition, a channel 15 feet wide may be included from the lakeward end of the area extending to open water.

The cost of an aquatic plant control permit from the DNR is $20. In most cases the permit must be obtained annually. People who are unsure whether or not their plans require a permit, or who would like additional information, should call the area or regional DNR Fisheries office. For more information about aquatic plants, call the DNR Information Center toll free at 1-800-766-6000. In the metro area call 296-2835. Ask for the Ecological Services Section. A free booklet, "A Guide to Aquatic Plants Identification and Management," is available to help lakeshore homeowners identify aquatic plants, understand how they benefit lakes, and understand regulations regarding aquatic plant control.

Four state record fish caught in Minnesota in 1996

Dreams of catching a Minnesota record fish came true for four anglers in 1996. That's a fairly typical number, according to Linda Erickson-Eastwood, who manages such records for the Department of Natural Resources Fisheries Section.

An average of six to seven new records were established each year in the past decade. However, only one new record was set in 1995. "Catching a record fish is mostly a matter of chance, so it could happen to anyone," Erickson said.

A record-breaking white crappie was taken March 1 on Lake Mary near Alexandria by Louis Lee of Maple Lake. Lee caught the 2-pound, 14.88-ounce fish on a glow-in-the-dark minnow.

Brent LaPierre of Sandstone used a nightcrawler to catch a record 10-pound, 3-ounce river redhorse on May 11. He was fishing on the Kettle River near Hinckley.

Lake Tofte near Ely in Lake County produced a 10-pound, 7.04-ounce splake on May 27. William Muesing of Huntington Beach, CA caught the record fish on a rapala. Eastwood said a splake is a hybrid offspring of brook trout and lake trout stocked in some parts of Minnesota.

The fourth 1996 record was a 1-pound, 9-ounce golden redhorse taken Sept. 21 from the St. Croix River. Heidi Morse of Duluth caught the fish in Pine County while fishing with a nightcrawler.

The DNR presents an award of recognition to any angler who breaks a state record. The 1996 awards were presented in Minneapolis March 15 at the Northwest Sport Show.

Erickson said those who catch a fish that might break a state record should:

- Weigh the fish on a state-certified scale (found in most bait shops and butcher shops), witnessed by two observers.
- Take the fish to a DNR Fisheries office for positive identification and a state record fish application.
- Complete the application and send it along with a clear, full-length photo of the fish to the address listed on the form.

Three injured in accident Friday

Three people were taken to Northwest Medical Center Friday following an accident at the intersection of Highway 59 and Pennington county 3.

According to the Minnesota State Patrol the accident was reported at 12:38 p.m. Friday, June 13. Cheryl Smith, Redby, was driving a 1996 Geo Metro west on Pennington County 3, and allegedly failed to stop for a stop sign at the intersection with Highway 59 where her car collided with a 1991 Pontiac Sunbird driven by Kristy Senn of Thief River Falls. There was extensive damage to the Senn vehicle. The Smith vehicle was considered a total loss.

Gary Smith, a passenger in the Smith vehicle was taken to Northwest Medical Center and treated and released. He was not wearing a seat belt at the time of the accident and was ejected from the vehicle in the collision. Senn was taken to the hospital with bumps, bruises and abrasions. She was wearing a seat belt. A passenger in the Senn vehicle, Michelle Jax, Erskine, was taken to the hospital with a broken bone in her foot. A nine-month old child, in a child seat, also in the vehicle, was not injured.

Burglaries investigated by law enforcement

Law enforcement officers have been investigating a number of incidents currently being considered burglaries.

On June 15 at 7:38 a.m. the Pennington County Sheriff's department received a report that the glass doors at the St. Hilaire Liquor Store had been broken. The officer investigating the incident was notified of an abandoned car in a ditch near the store. The car turned out to have been reported stolen at 6:15 a.m. that morning. As of Monday morning, nothing had been found missing from the liquor store. Damage to the store windows was estimated at over $550. Damage to the stolen vehicle, a 1979 Oldsmobile Cutlass taken from the Greendale Manor area in Thief River Falls, was estimated at about $500. The officer did find a blood trail between the vehicle and the store. The incident remains under investigation.

Accidents. On June 11 at 5:10 p.m. police received a report of an accident in the 900 block of North Knight at the intersection with 9th Street. According to the accident report, John P. Mattson, Thief River Falls, was driving a 1997 Dodge pickup east on 9th Street, when he was broadsided by a 1991 Chevrolet Lumina driven north on Knight Avenue by Cary Allen Leas of Thief River Falls. When the vehicles collided in the uncontrolled intersection, the Mattson vehicle was pushed into a tree. Damage to the Mattson vehicle was estimated at over $6,000. Damage to the Leas vehicle was estimated at $6,000. None of the occupants of the vehicle requested medical attention. One passenger in the Leas vehicle complained of leg pain. Mattson had a burn on his arm from the air bag. The accident remains under investigation.

On June 15 at 5:25 p.m. police received a report of an accident on Sherwood Avenue. The accident had apparently happened the night before it was reported. According to the accident report, Ann Marie Dale Haugen, Thief River Falls, was driving a vehicle north on Sherwood when she lost control and the vehicle went into the ditch. Haugen injured her wrist. One passenger had a cut, another a bruise and cut, and another a burn from the seat belt. Haugen has been cited for leaving the scene of an accident, and not reporting an accident. Damage to the vehicle was estimated at $800.

On June 15 at 4:56 p.m. the law enforcement center received a report of an accident on Highway 59 and the service road. Stanley Allan Wang, Fertile, was driving a pickup south on Highway 59, when a van driven by Allison Marie Rantanen, Thief River Falls, entered into traffic from the service road to turn north onto Highway 59. Rantanen's vision was obscured by another vehicle. Damages were estimated at $3,500 to the Wang vehicle, and $3,000 to the Rantanen vehicle.

Harassment. On June 11 DelRoy Gilbertson, Thief River Falls, 45, was arrested on a warrant for violation of a protection order. As a result of another incident he also faces charges of harassment and stalking.

Burglary. On June 12 at 5:04 p.m. the sheriff's department was notified of a burglary in progress at a residence in Smiley township. The suspect vehicle was stopped in Marshall county by a Minnesota Department of Natural Resource officer who found a pipe with marijuana residue inside it. He was later assisted by a Minnesota State trooper who located 10 baggies with marijuana residue inside. Charges are pending against Jennifer Lynn Hansen, 19, Hallock, and a 17-year-old female juvenile from Hallock.

Two individuals face charges for burglary in the third degree following an incident which was first reported on June 17 at 1:27 a.m. A local resident in the 500 block of West Fourth Street reported that he had heard a noise in his garage and upon investigation found one man leaving the garage with a bike and another outside of the garage with one of his bikes. When he yelled at them they dropped the bikes and ran away. Also during a search of the area officers found another garage had been entered and a pickup gone through. A short time later, a sheriff's deputy observed four individuals walking down the railroad tracks, two of whom matched the description of the individuals who had entered the garage. Charges are pending against Jerald Leslie Vos, 27, Thief River Falls, and Nacoda Lee Vaughn, Wakeville, 23.

Thefts. On June 13 at 2:16 p.m. a Northland Community and Technical College instructor reported that six laptop computers were missing from the computer lab. Two of the computers had been leased and their whereabouts unknown. Cables to four other computers in the room had been cut and were missing. The computers were IBM Personal Computers. The total theft loss was estimated at $13,200.

These reports include names of individuals charged, arrested or cited with various crimes and offenses by police, the sheriff's department or other law enforcement officials. Depending upon the circumstances of a case, charges can be, and sometimes are, changed or dropped by law enforcement officials or attorneys even before the case reaches court. Readers should also realize that under the American system of jurisprudence, individuals charged with crimes are innocent until proven guilty of those crimes in a court of law.

Marshall county continues search for missing people

Marshall County Sheriff's department has requested assistance of dog teams from the Twin Cities area in the search for William and Carol Borgen of Grafton, ND, and Veronica Safranski of Argyle.

William and Carol Borgen, ages 77 and 60, disappeared on April 20 after dropping their daughter off in Stephen. On May 20, the top of their light blue Dodge mini-van was discovered poking out of a flooded ditch.

Veronica Safranski of Argyle, 39, has been missing since Saturday, October 26, 1996. She was last seen at a costume party at a bar in Warren. Recently Marshall County authorities released additional details which indicated that they had found her belt four miles north of Newfolden in November.

Authorities in Marshall County are now hoping that four dog teams, trained in searching for missing people, will help them search along the Red River and some isolated areas. They are hoping that the teams will arrive on Thursday of this week.

Authorities are still looking for any information that may help in locating these individuals. Anyone with information is asked to contact the Marshall County Sheriff's department.

Part of women's belt found during Safranski search

Marshall County Sheriff's department has released more details about the disappearance of Veronica Safranski in an effort to generate more information about the disappearance.

Thursday, June 12, nearly seven months since her October 27 disappearance, Marshall County Sheriff's department has reported that on November 25, 1996, they recovered the belt from the costume Safranski was wearing the night she disappeared. The belt was found approximately four miles north of Newfolden on County road 8.

According to the news released from Marshall County, the belt was submitted to the Bureau of Criminal Apprehension laboratory to be analyzed.

Marshall County Sheriff Dennis Brekke is requesting the assistance of anyone who might be aware of any unusual circumstances they may have noted back in late November "in this area and any other information they may have." Anyone with information should call 1-800-242-6127.

Safranski was last seen at a costume party in Warren on October 27. Massive searches have been conducted since the missing person report was filed in early November. The belt that has been recovered was found on November 25.

Thief River Falls Education Foundation has announced the awarding of several scholarships to Lincoln High School Seniors.

The Teddy Dunn Nursing Scholarship has been awarded to Melissa Harris who will study nursing this fall at Northland Community and Technical College or NDSU.

The Don L. Olson Memorial Scholarship, given to an outstanding student/athlete, has been given to Paul Kopari. Paul will study mechanical engineering at Michigan Tech this fall.

Four students received the Tippi Benson scholarship. This scholarship is given in memory of Tippi Benson, school social worker who passed away last summer, in recognition of the lives she touched when working in the school district. The recipients of the award are Amy Barth, Wendy Bakken, Ben Furuseth and Amy Peterson.

The Thief River Falls Education Foundation is a non-profit organization that raises endowment funds for projects within School District 564 that enhance the educational experience of our children. Disaster loan funds now available for businesses Businesses affected by flooding, severe winter storms and blizzard conditions from November 1996 to present may apply to the Northwest Regional Enterprise Fund Inc. for a Disaster Relief loan. Businesses in Kittson, Marshall, Norman, Pennington, Polk, Red Lake and Roseau counties may apply for loans ranging from $5,000 to $150,000 at an interest rate four points below the Prime Lending Rate, to a minimum of four percent.

Interested persons should contact Linda Nelson, loan fund manager, at Northwest Regional Development Commission (NWRDC) at 218-745-6733 or 1-800-646-2240 for more information.

The Disaster Relief Loan Fund was established by the Enterprise Fund of the NWRDC to provide financing to businesses affected by weather-related and other disasters. The fund can assist businesses in locations declared disaster areas by the state and/or federal government. Examples of assistance include working capital for loss of income while the business was closed during the disaster, replacement of inventory and fixed assets lost as a result of the disaster, re-financing of loans from private lenders which were incurred as a result of the disaster, and other assistance.

To be eligible for Disaster Loan Fund, applicants must show that the business was viable/profitable prior to November 1, 1996 and that a loss in sales or financial damage was suffered as a result of severe weather conditions. Applicants must also show that no other financing is available or feasible for the business at affordable terms. A loan from the Disaster Revolving Loan Fund must be matched on a one-to-one basis by a bank or other private financing source.

Local attorney receives award

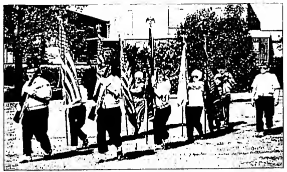
Alan G. Rogalla of Thief River Falls has been awarded an Advocacy Achievement Award by Legal Services of Northwest Minnesota for his work as a Judicare attorney.

Legal Services serves low income and elderly residents of 22 northwestern Minnesota counties using offices in Moorhead, Alexandria and Bemidji, and the Judicare Panel, a group of 260 private attorneys throughout the region.

One attorney per firm is selected annually from each of four Bar Association Districts in the 22 counties to receive the Advocacy Achievement Award. The award is given "In recognition of outstanding legal work making a difference to the disadvantaged."

Alan Rogalla graduated from the University of North Dakota School of Law in 1988. He has been a judicare panel member since March 9, 1990.

Since there was not an annual District Bar meeting held this year, due to the flood, Mr. Rogalla was presented with his award on May 1, 1997.



Local members of the honor guard participated in Flag Day ceremonies held Saturday morning in Elk's Park. Flag Day observance, which recognizes the origin and meaning of the flag, is one of the mandatory programs of the Benevolent and Protective Order of Elks.

Commodity council election results reported

Minnesota Department of Agriculture Commissioner Gene Hugoson has released the results from Minnesota's farm commodity research and promotion council elections.

"Voting is the way producers can have a say in how their check-off dollars are spent," Hugoson said. "Thank you to all the candidates and producers who participated in these elections."

Elected were 10 members to five research and promotion councils in elections held during March. Board members serve three-year terms except where noted.

Randy McMillin of Marshall County in District 2, Glen Nelson of Clearwater county in District 4, and Jim Kukowski of Roseau county for the at-large position were elected to the Canola Research and Promotion Council.

Thomas Godward of Aitkin county was elected to the at-large position on the Cultivated Wild Rice Research and Promotion Council.

Curt Thureen of Polk county in District 1, and Mark Dornbeck of Ottertail county in District 5, were elected to the Dry Edible Bean Research and Promotion Council.

John Wojtanowicz of Benton county in District 2, Jim Ewing of Sherburne county in District 3, and Larry Reynen of Freeborn county in District 4 were elected to the Area II Potato Research and Promotion Council.

Tom Szczepanski of Stephen county in Districts 1, 2 and 3, were elected to the Soybean Research and Promotion Council.

Members sought for enterprise fund

Northwest Regional Enterprise Fund Inc., is seeking nominations for persons to represent cities, townships, banking, business, economic development, and women. Nomination forms are available by calling Linda Nelson or Kathy McGlynn at the Northwest Regional Development Commission (NWRDC) at 218-745-6733 or 1-800-646-2240.

The Enterprise Fund operates in conjunction with the NWRDC, a revolving loan fund program for businesses in Kittson, Marshall, Norman, Pennington, Polk, Red Lake, and Roseau counties. Enterprise Fund meetings are held three times a year and the membership terms are for three years.

The Economic Development Committee of the NWRDC is partially comprised of members of the Enterprise Fund. The Economic Development Program updates the Overall Economic Development Program for the region and provides services for economic development activities in northwestern Minnesota.

The Northwest Minnesota Multi-County Housing and Redevelopment Authority is accepting Proposals for the Minnesota Housing Finance Agency HOME Rental Rehab Loan Program in the nine County area of Northwest Minnesota.

This program will allow prospective developers to receive up to the lesser of $14,000 per unit or 75% of the total rehab costs in the form of a grant. The borrower will be required to finance 25% of the total construction costs.

Because of the limited amount of these funds, the NW MN Multi-County HRA reserves the right to distribute the funds in an equitable manner in the nine County area, depending on the demand.

Proposals for the HOME Rental Rehab Loan Program will be accepted until Monday, July 7th at 4:00 p.m., at NW MN Multi-County HRA, P.O. Box 128, Mentor, MN 56736. Questions, or requests for Proposals can be addressed by calling John Scheving at the NW MN Multi-County HRA at (218) 637-2431.

The weather in northwest Minnesota this afternoon is conducive only to taking a nap and awakening up to a good cup of coffee while watching the rain washing the windows. It was sort of muggy this morning early, so Roy hurried out and planted the beans. These are not the kind of beans that he has to bend down to pick as beans used to be, he has made a trellis of three sections of 3 foot high chicken wire, anchored securely to the clothes line poles. When I asked him how he intended to reach that high to pick them, he said, "If necessary, I'll use a ladder. I'm not crawling on the ground to pick beans anymore." Maybe the neighbors will think that he is playing "Jack and the Beanstalk" in Minnesota.

The Strandquist Seniors are having their first meeting on Thursday to begin making quilts, rugs and a number of things to sell so they can go on Trips, have money to help when someone is in need. The care they give to all is wonderful to see. Keep it up, it will be worth it in the long run.

The Bethesda Lutheran Church is busy gathering items to be distributed at various Crisis Centers, items like shampoos, soaps, tooth brushes, and paste, personal care items and also devotional books. This is something all can take part in doing.

Global Cooling Greater Threat Than Warming

"Many people are predicting imminent catastrophe from a few degrees of potential global warming. For this scenario, however, there is little historical precedent. Ice ages, on the other hand, are a regularly-recurring feature of the current geologic epoch of earth's history, with up to 20 of them having occurred at 100,000 year intervals over the past two million years; and based upon the record of their past periodicity, many scientists believe we can expect the next one to commence any time now.

"As a result, the precautionary principle suggests we do nothing to prevent any minor to moderate tendencies for warming in the near future, especially when such warming would actually improve the 'living standard' of the biosphere and when we face a real and present danger from the next 'scheduled' glaciation.

"If anything, it suggests we should encourage activities that tend to warm the planet, or, at the very least, refrain from adopting policies designed to arbitrarily discourage the utilization of coal, natural gas and oil as modern industrial fuels."

The above statement is from a scientific paper written by Craig D. Idso, climatologist at Arizona State University, who has Thief River Falls roots. The paper is entitled Future Climate and the Precautionary Principle: The Other Side of the Story. It sets out to determine what constitutes an "adverse climate" in the context of applying the precautionary principle as a reasonable approach to decision-making. The precautionary principle seeks to minimize or avoid unnecessary risks.

"Like Goldilocks' assessment of the thermal state of the Three Bears' porridge, we can safely say that an adverse climate is one that is either too hot or too cold. But how hot or cold is too hot or cold? What is the 'temperature of neutrality' from which such climatic deviations are measured? And what is the probability of either extreme occurring?"

Idso's paper considers the consequences of real-world temporary weather fluctuations, moderate climatic excursions of the last 1,000 years, and full-fledged climate disasters either experienced in the past or predicted to occur in the future? In examining the consequences of extreme weather events, Idso states:

"Many negative consequences can and do result from typical real-world heat waves and cold-air outbreaks. For the most part, however, society has learned to live with the effects of these temporary weather fluctuations. What is more, they will always be a feature of our climate, even if earth's mean temperature were to coincide with the ideal temperature of neutrality."

Idso then examines the record of the consequences of two historic shifts in the earth's mean climate state—the Medieval Warm Period between the 10th and 14th centuries, and the Little Ice Age between the 16th and 19th centuries—and their impact on earths plant and animal life.

"It would appear," he concludes, "that earth's flora and fauna, including mankind, fared far better during the former period. Indeed, there is an acute absence of negative literature regarding climate conditions experienced during the Medieval Warm Period. Hence, the observational evidence seems to suggest that earth's 'temperature of neutrality,' i.e. the mean global temperature that minimizes adverse consequences, may well be somewhat higher than that of the planet's current average temperature. And with atmospheric CO2 concentrations on the rise, this 'ideal' temperature could go even higher, for it is one of the better-established facts of science that the optimum temperature for plant growth in almost all species actually rises with an increase in the air's CO2 content."

Regarding global cooling, Idso writes: "We have no need to consult the predictions of theoretical models to obtain the insights we seek, for the earth has much to tell us, and it has revised this state repeatedly. And where the predictions of global warming are uncertain, and its consequences dubious, the reality of earth's repeated ice ages and their many ramifications are literally 'etched in stone' in the geologic record of the planet.

"It should be obvious," he notes, "that the biosphere is much more capable of withstanding the results of severe heat than it is of coping with the consequences of extreme cold. A meter's rise in sea level would indeed pose problems for many of earth's coastal area and some islands; but in contemplating the prospect of having an entire third of the planet's land area covered by a mile of ice, it pales in comparison, barely meriting mention in the same breath."

So what is Idso's belief and advice? This is the way he puts it in his research paper:

"In applying the precautionary principle to the subject of future climate, it is clear that the most likely adverse state we may shortly have to deal with is another of the recurring ice ages that have plagued the planet for most of the past two millenia. And how does one combat cold? By turning up the temperature. Or, at the very least, by not doing anything to prevent a minor amount of global warming, especially highly questionable global warming. And one surely does not implement incredibly expensive anti-warming programs to prevent what could well be purely hypothetical warming.

"Reality and logic therefore attest to the fact that it is the height of irresponsibility to attempt to reduce the burning of fossil fuels—in the face of the very real and present danger posed by the next full-fledged ice age that is looming on the geologic horizon. And when it is remembered that earth's 'optimum' climate is one that will be significantly warmer than it is now, that regulatory medicine begins to look more and more like the poison it truly is.

"Carbon dioxide, on the other hand, is the elixir of life, comprising the primary molecular link between the animate and inanimate world. Any amount of it that humanity could possibly put into the air by the burning of fossil fuels will only amplify the totality of earth's life processes and enhance the robustness of the biosphere."

To the Editor:

Governor Carlson's tax credit proposal has been misrepresented to the public. It is not money for private education alone. Two-thirds of the money would go to the parents of children in public schools. Only a fraction of one percent would be used by parents of children in private education. The tax credit and expanded tax deduction proposed by Governor Carlson is designed to give all children a chance for excellence in education, by allowing parents to decide what will best help their own children to succeed.

The idea of giving our children the best education available is paid lip service by congressmen and educators alike, but seldom put into common sense practice. With the tax credit, parents with children in our public schools could afford to employ a tutor if their child is struggling academically or invest in the books and encyclopedias necessary to enhance their child's public education. Parents who have chosen private education or home education as the best alternative for their children, would feel that their tax dollars were finally being put to fair use. Public school educators would also benefit if this provision passed, because they would be in a position to earn extra money tutoring those students wanting special assistance.

It takes more than money to give children a quality education. It takes time, commitment, creativity, and parental involvement. Every child in American should have a chance to be educated, especially the child that struggles for one reason or another. This is the purpose of Governor Carlson's tax credit. It would enable parents to be creative and get the help they need no matter what type of education they deem best for their child.

The proposed tax credit is for public school children too. It would give parents a real choice in how their tax money is spent, and open the door for parents, educators and congressmen to work together to improve America's standards in education. People do want a say in how tax money is spent to educate children. Is it possible that we have been misinformed because some people are unwilling to allow parents the right to decide for themselves what is best for their own children? I certainly hope not.

Sincerely,
Kathy Waldorf

To The Editor:

"A new book The Heat Is On by journalist Ross Gelbspan documents both the emergence of the scientific consensus and industry's political campaign to counter that consensus," states an editorial entitled The Heat Is On: Accept the facts of global warming in the Minneapolis Tribune May 22, 1997.

Permit me to quote from Dixie Lee Roy's book Environmental Overkill.

"Among the many reputable scientists who have tried in vain to break through the media's curtain of bias is Dr. Julian L. Simon, professor of business administration at the University of Maryland and the author of many books on demography and economics. Through years of painstaking research, he has provided convincing proof that the doomsday scenarios offered by government and the militant environmental groups—and dutifully reported by an obedient press—are without foundation.

"...Perhaps the most significant analysis of the media's love affair with the environmental extremists has been done by a doctoral threesome, S. Robert Lichter, Linda S. Lichter and Stanley Rothman, in another book that should be on every media person's coffee table, Watching America."

In his book Population Matters, Dr. Julian L. Simon writes: "I come not in anger but in pain. Journalists take pride in their objectivity. But in reporting on population growth, natural resources, and the environment, objectivity goes out the window. The price in economic loss, misguided policies and damage to national morale has yet to be calculated. But the costs may be fearfully high."

From Dr. Michael Coffman's book Saviors of the Earth comes this quote:

"Headlining the news about the sponsored Earth Summit was the recurring theme of global ecological disasters. Global warming and ozone depletion led the list. Ignoring the growing scientific evidence that these are not catastrophes—indeed, they may not be problems at all—environmental leaders of all kinds scurried about proclaiming them as proven catastrophes. The media accepted much of it without question."

In addition to these there are many other doctors and researchers who disagree with the Tribune's position.

How can we, the people, be expected to make intelligent decisions if the media does not provide us with all the information on the environment, except what supports the most radical and outlandish environmental positions?

Sincerely,
Don Barron

The Firemen's Tournament . . .

"Has come and gone, with its pleasures and pains, patriotism and selfishness, strife and jealousy. All are now things of the past. Viewed as a whole the tournament was a success. All the fire companies did well, whether they won prizes or not, their efficiency as firemen is undoubted. If there were some who did not advertise the tournament sufficiently and some that thought more of the 'rake off' they intended to get than they did of the object of the meeting, or if some failed to get credit for well doing that they deserved, yet was the tournament a success. If the management was poor, our visitors were treated with impartiality. Every test was fairly striven for and all did well. The prizes that were won were won honestly and honestly awarded and if any one team did not get all the prizes, yet each learned to respect and appreciate the others' efforts and the Crookston, Hallock and McIntosh teams, with the Red Lake Falls band, all went away satisfied that the Thief River Falls team were their equals as hosts, or competitors for Fireman's honors. The Meehan Brothers donated the use of their steamboat, the Alice Meehan, to the visitors for an excursion up the river on Wednesday, and thereby showed their patriotism just as well as those who worked for the 'rake off.' Being absent in Crookston during all the tournament and being short of space, we cannot give details; besides we think the details should be paid for out of the $1,000 collected for the tournament." -- H. W. Lee

The Big Mill Finished

The Machinery In the Thirty Million Foot Saw Mill of the St. Hilaire Lumber Company Put In Motion For the First Time.

The Mill Will be Run Night and Day After July 1st Giving Employment to Over Three Hundred Men. Everything Moving Nicely.

"The writer spent several hours the other day with Supt. George A. Kelley of the Edw. P. Allis Co., of Milwaukee looking over the new saw mill which is now completed. All who have seen the mill unite in its praise and claim that it is the best and most modern and complete mill ever built, requiring but ninety-five days to do the work.

"The Edw. P. Allis Co. have for years been the acknowledged leaders as mill builders and they have fully sustained their high reputation here. The entire work has been under the personal supervision of George A. Kelley who has given the best of satisfaction to all concerned. Mr. Kelley is a millwright of experience and ability as the results here clearly demonstrate. The time has been short and both he and the company deserve credit for their ability and promptness. The main mill is 192 feet long and the sawing floor is twenty-two feet above the ground. The logs come out of the pond on a long metal lined log slip being drawn up by an endless chain, automatic steam kickers throw the logs to the deck and a steam log loader puts the log on the carriage. The carriage is a large three block No. 2 Allis Carriage. It is run by a ten inch steam cylinder 48 feet long making it powerful and exceedingly rapid. Each end is protected by heavy air cushions of the Allis, 20 by 36 inches in size.

"The hand saw is the celebrated 'New Allis Band.' The saw which is fifty feet in circumference and twelve inches wide runs on two nine foot wheels with 11 1/2 inch face. It is complete with all the latest adjustments and is modern as can be made. A novelty is a very small Drake engine used to strain the saw. It is not much larger than a dinner plate and is of the rotary plan. The mill is so rigged that a circular saw can be used and the saws can be changed in a very short time.

"Logs that have been slabbed by the band or circular saw are thrown by a steam skid lifter to the gang. The gang is the heaviest piece of machinery in the mill and its foundation is very substantially built. Forty-nine oak piles were driven twenty feet into the ground and twenty-seven cords of stone and eighty-one barrels of Portland cement were used to make a stone cube sixteen feet square resting on top of the piling. [Note: This foundation, all that is left of the mill today, can still be seen next to the bleachers at the St. Hilaire city park ball diamond.] The gang was made by the Union Iron Works of Minneapolis and is supplied with thirty-six saws and has a twenty-inch stroke. It is complete with all latest improvements, including steam press rolls. The lumber from here is conveyed to the edger by five rolls and another skid lifter. The six foot edger carries six 26 inch saws also a gang of six saws which make two inch plank from cants. The edgings are dropped from a table to the floor where spike chains convey them to a four foot slasher having six forty inch over hanging saws. The lumber goes from the edger to a 24 foot automatic gang trimmer. From there chains convey all the lumber except the square timbers to the sorting platform. As it goes along the platform it is sorted in different grades and the lumber is piled on rollers. Lumber by this means will all be loaded by power from the mill. The lath and shingles will be made in the two story addition to the main mill 24 by 80 in size. It is equipped with gang boiler, lath mill, lath trimmer, slab slasher and hand shingle machine. Another addition to the mill is the filing room. It is 32 by 56 which gives plenty of room and is well supplied with light. The room is well filled with all kinds of machines to file the different kinds of saws used. To an inexperienced eye the lower floor is a confused jumble of leather belts, fly wheels, pulleys and shafting. There is however ample room and light. Oil cups are used freely and oil is not spilled all over as in many mills. The entire structure rests on an excellent pile foundation. All of the timbers in the frame are of Washington fir and they are all mortised and pinned in the most substantial manner. It is well braced and it would be hard to make a frame stronger.

"The engine room is 14 by 70 and is placed between the mill and boiler room. The engine foundation is a concrete block resting on oak piling. The engine is 26 by 34 eleven inch shaft and its makers claim that it is good for 700 horse power. There is a large duplex pump to feed the boilers and another still larger one for fire purposes.

"The boiler room is 38 by 51 built of brick sixteen inch walls and a structural iron roof making it absolutely fire proof. There is a battery of four large boilers having a capacity of 125 horse power each. They are bricked in with fire brick, the furnaces being on the 'Dutch oven' plan. The building and inside work took 225 thousand brick. The smoke stack starts from the top of the boilers and with the spark arrester is 132 feet high and six feet in diameter. A machine and blacksmith shop 24 by 70 will be built just east of the mill as soon as the lumber is sawed. It will be equipped with all the latest machinery. On the island will also be built as soon as lumber can be cut a barn for the company horses. It will be 40 by 80. An artesian well has been drilled and a very fine flow of water struck of about 400 barrels daily, just east of the mill. It will be piped to the mill and will be used for drinking purposes only.

"A 300 light electric light machine is being put into the engine room. The company has twenty-four million of logs for this year's cut and they will run the mill night and day after July 1st. It is their intention if the sale of lumber is good the coming year to cut at least 35 million next year. Right here it might be well to state that the St. Hilaire Lumber Company has done a great deal more in every way than they promised to do last year. The plant has not only been enlarged but it has been put in such a substantial manner that all are satisfied that the mill was built for business and lots of it at that. They now own nearly all the pine that has been sold on the reservation and it is safe to say that lumber will be cut here for the next thirty years. They have plenty of room in the river to hold all the logs they want. The pond for the first one half mile above the mill is 1000 feet wide. This enables them to sort their logs into runways of different kinds and lengths. The two dams keep the water at the same height and makes the location by far the best on the Red Lake River. Eleven hundred feet south of the mill is the planer with a yard in between. The planer is 59 by 60 and is high and roomy with a metal roof. The boiler and engine room is of brick 25 by 46 and fire proof. There will be seven machines in the mill and it will have a capacity of twelve cars of lumber every ten hours. A spur track comes up to the planer but will not extend through the yard or near the mill. Everything will be in running order some time next month and they will have about three hundred men at work."

Memorials

MEMORIAM

A birthday tribute to mom,
Martha Hasby, June 16th
God looked around his garden and saw an empty place
He then looked down upon this earth and saw your tired face
He put his arms around you and lifted you to rest- God's garden must be beautiful, He always takes the best.
He saw the road was getting rough,
The hills were hard to climb, so
He closed your weary eyelids, and whispered "peace be thine",
As your birthdays come and go- we'll look toward Heaven for that "special" glow
We love and miss you mom,
Ivy and Fran

Chairman Jensen called the special County board meeting to order at 2:00 p.m. Chairman Jensen called on Howard Person to explain the purpose of this meeting.

Howard Person then reviewed the three alternatives, pros and cons of Solid Waste Initiatives the County Board discussed at the May 13, 1997, County Board Meeting.

Commissioner Carlson asked if Howard would explain S.C.O.R.E. funds, how they are obtained and used. Funds are derived from the 6.5% sales tax on solid waste collection. A percentage goes back to each County with the County required to contribute a 25% match. These funds are restricted to recycling. Pennington County receives $55,000.00 per year in S.C.O.R.E. funding and matches that amount with a $13,750.00 local levy.

Jim Ziegler, MPCA, addressed the group with two issues that need to be addressed. Before starting he explained that MPCA is not in a role in choosing an option for SWIS PENNCO and Pennington County, they just regulate how it is done when the decision has been made. The first issue is the pile of fluff on the north end of the property. This pile needs to be removed by pelletizing, burning or landfilling. The second issue is the operation of compost. The compost is supposed to be put in windrows and turned periodically. This was not kept up therefore the pile grew too big to be turned which results in the strong odor now present in the compost.

In February 1997 MPCA met with SWIS PENNCO to discuss these issues. An agreement was drafted given SWIS PENNCO until May 12th to clean-up the compost facility and June 12th to clean-up the fluff piles north of the processing building. SWIS is now asking for an extension to accomplish these tasks. Jim Ziegler noted that MPCA would extend the time lines if: 1. SWIS has written documentation that they have a market for the fluff and pellets and that, 2. clean-up starts as soon as possible. The extension would be in the form of a compliance agreement with penalties imposed if SWIS does not meet the deadlines. The permit for the facility is up for renewal in November 1997 and if the facility is not running properly, the permit may not be renewed.

Noland Barsions from OEA had three concerns dealing with the situation at hand. The first concern was that the State of Minnesota has invested into the SWISS PENNCO and Pennington County Solid Waste operation by issuing grants for the compost facility and the original construction of the initial processing facility. These items have moved Pennington County up the hierarchy scale. The second concern was the use of S.C.O.R.E. funds. These funds must be used for recycling efforts. The County must also have an approved plan before any S.C.O.R.E. funds may be used. The main concern that Mr. Barsions had was that he would like to see Pennington County's waste go out of state.

Commissioner Carlson questioned Howard Person if there was a way to use S.C.O.R.E. funds on hand and future funds to help fund SWISS for recycling efforts. Howard commented that SWISS has been doing recycling and is recycling 35% of the waste. Upon OEA's approval S.C.O.R.E. funds could be used for SWIS PENNCO's recycling efforts.

Dale Wennberg noted that a fourth option would be to burn the pellets to create electricity at the site. Jim Ziegler (MPCA) commented that this would be permissible. A fifth option was recognized by Milton Burstad as he stated that Pennington County could site a landfill. This option was the least preferred option by OEA. MPCA doesn't believe Pennington County has enough waste to be cost efficient to establish a landfill. For information, Koochiching County's cost estimate to create a landfill was $123.00 per ton based upon 16,000 ton per year. Pennington County's approximate annual tonnage is around 10,000 to 11,000 tons.

Jim Ziegler commented that if solid waste is transported to Grand Forks that Pennington County could assume responsibility to help clean up the landfill if problems occur under Federal Super Fund rules.

Milton Burstad questioned if SWISS PENNCO was still accepting garbage. Bob Kruse answered by saying they are accepting garbage but diverting it directly to a landfill. Bob Kruse also mentioned he has a couple of potential users for the pellets and they will know within two weeks if these markets are secured.

Tom Greelis asked if Federal Disaster funds could help cleanup the SWIS PENNCO property. Jim Ziegler was not aware of any Federal Program that would apply. Howard Person mentioned that he talked to the STS Coordinator for help to clean-up. The primary work teams are not available at this time but the juvenile crew might be able to pick up litter in ditches along the State, County and Township roads.

Gene Kalinowski asked if it was feasible to take out the recyclable items and ship the rest of the garbage away to be able to receive S.C.O.R.E. funds. Bob Kruse commented that the economics make it unfeasible to process it in that way. Mr. Kalinowski also commented on how bad the odor has become. Jim Ziegler answered by saying the odor wouldn't be as bad if the compost was handled correctly.

Commissioner Carlson asked those in attendance how they felt about using S.C.O.R.E. funds to assist SWIS CORP. There was no comment from the audience.

Kurt Marben questioned more about the two markets SWIS PENNCO must have in order to continue business. Bob Kruse answered that the two potential users they are talking to will use more pellets than SWIS could even produce at this time.

Sami Haj addressed the County Board and those in attendance about the location of the establishment. He felt the location is wrong because the odor will never be controlled. Therefore, the County needs a permanent solution that will solve the problem.

Carol Erickson asked if there was a way to control the odor from the piles of compost, maybe by the use of chemicals. Rick Nordhagen noted they are already using a chemical, but it is not that effective because it is impossible to touch every piece of material in the pile. The best way to control the order is for oxygen to be in contact with every part of the material by using windrows and by turning them often. Howard Person mentioned that the odor now should be as bad as it will get.

Carol Erickson asked why SWIS PENNCO ended up being by side of highway 32. One of the reasons was availability of city water.

Connie Mehrkens raised a question regarding the deadlines and the governing of them. Jim Ziegler said they would control this, but first the efforts are going to concentrate on cleaning up the fluff pile. Mrs. Mehrkens was also wondering what kind of regulation there was on the existing permit. Mr. Ziegler will get Mrs. Mehrkens a copy of the permit.

There was a final discussion of options and recommendations from MPCA. MPCA noted they were not in the business to decide on an option just to regulate which decision was picked. MPCA wants SWIS PENNCO to still operate but they have passed one deadline and one is coming up in June. A plan needs to be in place at that time or additional penalties could be levied.

The next item of business was advertising for regraveling bids. Commissioner Naplin moved, seconded by Commissioner Carlson to authorize the Auditor and Engineer to advertise for regraveling bids. Motion unanimously carried.

Commissioner Comstock moved, seconded by Commissioner Carlson to adjourn to May 27, 1997. Motion unanimously carried.

MECC Joint Powers Board leaves project plan uncut

Selected as Pennington County Outstanding Senior Citizens for 1997 are Helen Chervasted of rural Oklee and Ed Sisler of Thief River Falls. Both will be honored at Senior Citizen Day at the Pennington County Fair on Friday, July 18, and at the Minnesota State Fair on Thursday, August 28.

by David Hill
Associate Editor

Despite the fact that the project is now $200,000 short if bids come in as predicted, the Multi-Events Cultural Center Joint Powers board left uncut all elements of the project. It did leave a number of elements in the project as alternate deducts, however, including a press box, high jump, second long and triple jump and second shot put facilities, and stadium bleachers. As alternate deducts those items could be deducted from the project if it becomes necessary.

During a lengthy meeting Tuesday afternoon, the board discussed what led to the projected cost overruns and tried to come up with some ways of saving money without jeopardizing the entire project. Nobody left the meeting feeling good about the compromise they had reached.

Rick Nelson, project coordinator, summed up saying "every level of bureaucracy has taken their shot delaying the project. The thing that has hurt us the most is time."

The alternate deducts are only part of what has been or will be eliminated from the project if necessary. Triebwasser Helenske and Associates, architects, stated that following comments and suggestions made at the last joint powers board, they had removed the smaller 30 locker locker room from the project, 12 feet of length from the large toilet rooms, one referee locker room, 12 feet of corridor, and all asphalt on the parking area in front of the Wellness Center.

Numerous changes have been made to the in-kind contributions of the participants of the Joint Powers Board. These changes also explain, in part, some of the reasons for deducts from the project. The board has to come up with an additional $120,668 in cash to cover the cost of site grading because the city and county don't have the equipment or operator to do the work. The architect explained that the general construction cost of the baseball and softball concessions building is over budget by $33,363. The mechanical construction for the concessions building is over budget by $14,026. Electrical lights and standards could not be moved from other locations in the city, thus the lighting for one softball field had to be deleted ($95,238). Even without the lights on one softball field, the overage for the concessions building alone is $17,222. To put the press box in the project would cost $63,500. And what really created a stir among board members was the Following the parade, events at the fairgrounds include bands, a craft show, kite flying, model train exhibit, national guard display and demonstration, the Northern Pride Turkey Bowl, Horse and buggy rides, karaoke, cow pie bingo, Prairie Schooners Car Show, Kitty Cat rides, a dunking stand, ballooners, Thompson petting zoo, bingo, beer gardens, numerous food booths and shows at 2 p.m. featuring Gayle Beewar — comedy and magic show, and 7 p.m. featuring Ian Varella the Ventriloquist.

The Pioneer Village will also be celebrating July 4 with a celebration from 11 a.m. to 5 p.m. at the Pedar Engelstad Pioneer Village in Thief River Falls. Events include costumed tour guides, an old time dance, a watermelon stand and unique exhibits. Spend time at both events and take a step back in time. A shuttle bus will be available to and from the fairgrounds and Pioneer Village on the hour — free of charge.

Saturday, July 5, events will begin with a French Toast Breakfast at 8 a.m. at the Thief River Falls Curling Club. Also at 8:30 a.m., the Sparkler Spring/Little Sparkler run will take place at Centennial Park. Registration forms are available at the Chamber of Commerce.

Afternoon activities will begin at the Pennington county fairgrounds at noon with many of the same events as the previous day with the exception of the Northern Pullers Tractor Pull at 1 p.m. in the grandstand, and the John Ivan Palmer Mentalist, memory expert and World's Fastest Hypnotist at 2 p.m. and 7 p.m. in the band shell.

Topping off the evening of July 5 will be the largest fireworks display in Northwest Minnesota beginning at dusk. The fireworks can be easily viewed from the fairgrounds. Events will close at midnight both days.

The American Festival Celebration is made possible by the Thief River Falls businesses who sponsor this event and make it free to the public.

Nikki Petersen and Marisa Holmstrom, under contract with the Minnesota Department of Human Services, drug surveillance division, were among the five area students performing tobacco law compliance checks at various stores throughout a four-county region.

Teens find difficulty buying cigarettes in area stores

by David Hill
Associate Editor

Recently, five teenagers from Thief River Falls were among teenagers across the state trying to assess compliance with initiatives to prevent the sale of tobacco products to minors. Despite their best efforts, which included some begging, these five were only able to purchase three packs of cigarettes out of the 65 stores they tested. Those results are well above the 70 percent compliance recorded last year.

Helen Anderson, Lincoln High School instructor in Thief River Falls, said she always wanted to do something like this, but didn't have the authority. Recently Anderson and the five teenagers participating in the test signed on with the Minnesota Department of Human Services, division of drug abuse surveillance, to conduct compliance checks in four counties — Beltrami, Pennington, Polk and Red Lake.

The Minnesota Department of Health is conducting similar exercises across the state in an effort to gauge compliance with state laws prohibiting tobacco sales to minors.

Anderson said the students participating in the program don't belong to any particular organization. She said she just asked if anyone at Lincoln High School would like to volunteer for the project. She said they had to be between the ages of 15 and 16, and be able to volunteer lots of time for the project.

Marissa Holmstrom was one of the student volunteers. She said it sounded interesting, and as a member of the National Honor Society the volunteer hours could qualify for personal service hours with the organization.

There weren't a lot of scary incidents. In fact, there were a lot of boring hours.

Holmstrom said that at one store the clerk asked for her identification.

The students are not allowed to alter their appearance or lie about their age. When asked to produce identification, they are to produce their true identification.

When Holmstrom produced her identification, the clerk laughed and gave it back to her and then made fun of it.

Nikki Peterson said at first it was nerve wracking and scary, "especially while waiting in line when everyone was looking at you with that pack of cigarettes."

The five participants, Ann Newton, Nikki Peterson, Bridgette Stock, Brett Johnson and Marisa Holmstrom, received special training. A department of human services employee traveled to Thief River Falls and provided the training for the youth.

All participants are required to have consent forms from their parents or guardians, and are required to undergo the training. The teens must also comply with a long list of do's and don'ts.

Anderson said she thought they'd come back with an armload of stuff, but they really didn't. They were only able to obtain three packs of cigarettes. Of the 17 stores in Thief River Falls, only one sold cigarettes to the minor. Another pack was obtained from a store in MacIntosh, and another in Fosston. They also obtained four lighters.

Thief River Falls Police Chief Ken Froschheiser said he was pleased with the results of the test. The department is required under city ordinances to perform these compliance checks during the year anyway and after last year's result, he was very pleased. "It's a sign that the new ordinance and program implemented by local merchants is working."

Froschheiser was also aware that the compliance check was going to take place. All police chiefs in the state received notice from the department of human services explaining the program and when the compliance checks would take place.

Construction starts on Children's Treatment Center in T.R. Falls

Construction of the Pennington County Family Preservation Center at 923 Atlantic Avenue North in Thief River Falls is underway, according to Northwest Medical Center and the Pennington County Department of Welfare and Human Services.

Completion of the 5,800 square foot building is expected by November 1 with the treatment center operational by the end of the year. Kent Schmitz of Red Lake Falls is serving as the general contractor.

According to director Terry DeMars, the 10-bed children's treatment center will provide Pennington county with a variety of services intended to preserve families and reduce the need for out-of-county placements. The center will employ mental health professionals who will treat children with mental health needs and serve their families.

Comprehensive child and family assessment services will be provided by a psychologist. The facility will also serve as a resource center for parents and professionals working with children and provide parents of children with mental health needs with scheduled breaks from parenting. Emergency shelter services will be provided to children who, for one reason or another, are unable to remain at home.

DeMars indicated that the Pennington County Family Preservation Center has been designed with unique features. Boys and girls of all ages will be served. The center will, whenever possible, serve children for short periods in the center and provide the child and the child's family with extensive services upon discharge to bridge the gap between living in the treatment center and living at home.

"Treatment will focus less on identifying and solving problems and more on identifying and building on the child and family's strengths and competencies," DeMars said. "Families will be deeply involved in their child's treatment from admission to discharge."

According to DeMars, the need for a local treatment center "has never been greater. During the past five years out-of-county place fact that the state is requiring that the board provide a $50,000 contingency fund for the project, even though none of the in-kind project work is being done by outside contractors.

The board discussed the option of using a temporary concessions building, using wood as a construction material and using in-kind work to help finish the building. Board members had their harshest comments for the state regarding the contingency fund, delays, and extra fees. A frustrated Charles Naplin, county commissioner on the board, said they had been misled by the state.

The board also discussed dropping the Wellness Center from the project. That would leave $350,000 for the project. Darla Twomey, school board representative on the board, said they started with a basic concept and then everyone said add the Wellness Center, and they did. Now they want it to be cut from the project. "I'm afraid," she said, "it's the only way to make money on the project."

Nelson reminded the board that the project was sold to legislators on the belief that there would be a Wellness Center. Locally everyone knew that the football field and track were part of the project, but in St. Paul, they may not have known this. He also reminded them that it was the county, city and school board that directed the joint powers board to construct a Wellness Center and have someone lease it so that some funds would be coming in to support operating costs. That also helped delay the project. Without the Wellness Center the operating cost for the School District would go right through the roof. If the board has to go back to the state and tell them the Wellness Center was being eliminated from the project, the member organizations on the joint powers board would lose credibility and it would jeopardize future funding possibilities.

Activities Director Jim Sims said Lincoln high school would not bring the team to the field without bleachers, press box, and elements of the track placed on the deduct list. "We cannot function that way," he said. Sims said he was not trying to be negative, but simply stating that it couldn't be done without those elements of the track and field.

At the conclusion of the meeting, the board agreed to keep the project and list alternate deducts. In the meantime they would pursue private funding to pay for the alternate deducts.

Unless something else comes up, the board is not expected to meet again until August when the state opens bids on the project.

Search Dogs help find missing couple

By David Hill
Associate Editor

The search for William and Carol Borgen is over.

Search dogs called in to assist Marshall County Law Enforcement officials located the bodies of Carol Borgen of Grafton, ND, on Friday, June 20, and William Borgen on Saturday. The bodies were found near the conjunction of the Tamarac River and Red River of the North, about two and one half miles north of where their van was found on May 20.

Marshall County Sheriff Dennis Brekke expressed relief that the search was over. With all that has happened this spring, Brekke said his small department had been spread pretty thin. He said his department and many other volunteers have spent many hours searching for the Borgens and Vinni Safianski.

The Borgens, ages 77 and 60, had been missing since April 20 when they dropped their daughter off at a residence in Stephen. On May 20 the top of their blue car was discovered in a flooded ditch.

Sheriff Brekke said until eight to 10 days ago much of the area where they wanted to search was covered by water too low to navigate with a boat and too muddy to try to walk through. Last week Brekke requested the assistance of a volunteer group called "Search Dogs of Minnesota".

Search Dogs of Minnesota is a group of eight volunteers and five dogs. They train two times per week, Wednesday and Saturday, and are specifically trained to locate and find bodies and lost individuals.

As members of Search Dogs of Minnesota, Shelly and Bob Tielen of Monticello and their dog Sassy, a one-year-old labrador shepherd cross she purchased for $25, and DeAnna Johnson of Coon Rapids and her dog Gabe, a German Shepherd, traveled to Warren on Thursday. Originally four dogs were expected to be brought to the area to search for the Borgens and 39-year-old Vinni Safianski who has been missing since October 27, 1996. The Tielens and Johnson arrived Friday courtesy of Northwest Airlink-Mesaba. Another team member with two dogs was expected on Saturday.

The searchers and dogs began at 10:30 a.m. Friday and sometime between 12:30 p.m. and 1 p.m. they had located the body of Carol Borgen in a heavily wooded area near the Tamarac River. According to the sheriff's department, William Borgen was found about 70 yards from where they had found Carol Borgen.

It was Shelly Tielen's first actual find. Shelly said she is a purchasing agent for a ground water remediation company. Specifically, she buys parts for a company which builds machines that clean up oil and contaminants from soil. She said she became involved with Search Dogs of Minnesota because of her husband Bob. Bob works with Boy Scouts and is in charge of logistics for Search Dogs of Minnesota.

DeAnna Johnson has 14 years of experience. Gabe is her third dog trained to find bodies and lost individuals. She said she became involved in the group when as a police officer for the Minneapolis

State and federal laws permit checks of tobacco sales

The state receives its authority to conduct unannounced compliance checks under state law and a recent federal initiative — the Synar Amendment that requires states to more actively enforce state laws prohibiting tobacco sales to minors. As a recipient of the Substance Abuse Prevention and Treatment Block Grant, the department of human services, is mandated to implement the Synar Amendment. Failure to meet the conditions of the Synar Amendment can result in substantial reduction in the $18 million of federal funds annually awarded to Minnesota for substance abuse treatment and prevention.

Under the Synar Amendment states are required to annually conduct random, unannounced compliance checks on a scientific, random sample of retail tobacco outlets. During these inspections, or compliance checks, underage minors attempt to purchase tobacco products, a practice allowable under Minnesota law. The percentage of retailers who refuse to sell to minors becomes the measure of retailer compliance with the law. In 1996, 1,494 compliance checks in Minnesota showed that retailers refused to sell to minors 70 percent of the time. The goal of the Synar amendment is 80 percent compliance by the year 2000.

The Participants

All teenage participants are required to have consent forms from their parents or guardians, and are required to undergo the training. The teens must also comply with a long list of do's and don'ts.

- All teenage participants must be 15 or 16 years of age;
- must not attempt to alter their appearance to appear older or younger than their actual age;
- must enter retail outlets in pairs of two;
- carry the money to buy the tobacco products;
- choose a brand name and product type;
- attempt to buy from a self-service display, but if none is available ask the clerk for assistance;
- never lie about their age;
- show identification if asked to do so;
- say that the tobacco is for their own personal use;
- not tell their friends which stores they helped to check;
- leave the store and go to the car they rode into immediately fill out data collection form with the adult supervisors. In the event the participants are questioned by local merchants or law enforcement officials about the compliance checks, they are required to report that they are performing under contract with the Minnesota Department of Human Services.

The Law

Federal Food and Drug Administration tobacco regulations state that as of February 28, 1997, all tobacco retailers must ask for photo identification from any customer believed to be less than 27 years old.

The laws regarding tobacco use is in a constant state of flux. The following Federal Food and Drug Administration tobacco regulations take place as of August 28, 1997:

- no cigarette vending in self-service displays may be in locations accessible to youth.
- No cigarette or tobacco outdoor advertisements may be within 1,000 feet of a school.
- Tobacco ads generally must be in black and white text without pictures or colors; color or picture ads will be permitted only in publications with 15 percent or less youth readership and in places not accessible to minors.
- Cigarette coupons must be redeemable only by adults in a store, not through the mail.
- No free samples of tobacco products may be distributed.
- Gifts or giveaways of hats, t-shirts or other items identified by a tobacco brand will not be allowed.

As of August 28, 1998, no sponsorship of any sporting or other event, team or entry may be identified by a tobacco brand name. Corporate sponsorship will be permitted.

Teens find difficulty buying cigarettes

The students were required to check only six stores in Thief River Falls, but the police department wanted 17 checked. Police Officer Craig Mattson went with the students and filled out his own report on each visit.

As owner of two of the stores checked in Thief River Falls, Mike Barry, owner of Pennington Main and Pennington Square, said he was impressed with the results. "Obviously," he said, "100 percent would have been better."

Barry explained that as most stores in Thief River Falls, his stores use the "We Card System". The program is a training program for employees, which explains the law with the use of a video. A written set of rules or policies which are read and signed by the employee are also placed in the employee's file.

Barry said most of the stores in the community use the system, but it would be much easier for everyone if all stores used the program. Because of the program at his stores, he said most of his regular customers already have their identification in their hands when they approach a clerk to purchase tobacco products.

Most of the stores visited by the teenagers had signs in visible places telling customers that they enforce state laws against selling tobacco products to minors, and clerks generally asked for identification.

The teenagers reported that they felt in a few places that they were close to making a buy and probably would have been able to purchase the tobacco products from the clerk had the clerk been closer to their age or hadn't been pressured by older customers in the area or someone else not to make the sale.

No one should rest easy. The compliance checks are far from over.

Employers and employees of stores wherever tobacco products are sold should be forewarned, these teenagers will be making the rounds again — sometime this summer.

ments of Pennington county children have skyrocketed," he said.

It is DeMars' belief that although the treatment provided by these facilities is often quite good, distance has prevented the degree of family support, education and therapy that is often needed to obtain lasting results. He also indicated that it has become progressively more difficult to place children in out-of-county facilities since many of the group homes and treatment centers have long waiting lists.

DeMars indicated that the "project was born from the vision and leadership of the Pennington County Welfare Board and social services staff." He also credits Steve Levinson, director of the mental health division at Northwest Medical Center, and, Levinson's team with "the creative juices to develop an innovative treatment center that squarely focuses on the needs of families."

Start-up money for the project was obtained from the Northwest Minnesota Foundation (formerly the Northwest Minnesota Initiative Fund) and Minnesota Department of Human Services. The treatment center will be operated by the mental health division of Northwest Medical Center.

Orbiting stone passes through Thief River Falls

The effervescent and animated Suzanne Frenzel is a German film producer and creator of "The Flight of the Stone". Suzanne and cameraman Juraj Liptak spent last week in Thief River Falls filming scenes which will be included in her 12-minute artistic impression.

by Kathi Carlson
Times Reporter

Three young boys fish casually off the dock on the river. The stone passes by. Startled, the boys jump into the water.

A farmer stands in his field. The stone flies by. A puzzled look appears on the man's face as he shakes his head.

The stone nicks a grain bin. The metallic clang fades away in the distance.

These are scenes from "The Flight of the Stone." Last week these scenes and others were shot in the Thief River Falls area by German film creator Suzanne Franzel and cameraman, Juraj Liptak.

The story begins in a small city in Central Europe where an angry man picks up a loose cobblestone and throws it at his enemy. The stone misses its target and instead of landing, enters the earth's orbit. The stone passes over western Europe, the Atlantic Ocean, across the North American continent, over the Pacific Ocean, across Asia and eastern Europe before it finally bounces off the back of the head of the man who threw it and lands on the same place where it lay before.

In its flight around the globe, the stone becomes witness to calm landscapes, bustling city life, touching and amusing scenes of human relationships, and our not-so-always peaceful way of life.

Adding to the interest of this film is the mind boggling fact that when finished, the film will only be 12 minutes long.

I had the opportunity to visit with Suzanne Franzel several times last week at Dixie Klein's bed and breakfast where Suzanne and Juraj stayed while they were here.

To my great relief, Suzanne's English was excellent. When I commented about it, she asked, "Sprechen sie Deutsch?" I was hastily able to reply, "Nein, nicht so gut!" We chuckled, and the remainder of our fun, light-hearted interview took place in English.

Neither the language nor the United States were new to Suzanne. Her first trip to America was a "holiday." On her second visit, she stayed in Los Angeles for six months learning first-hand about Hollywood and the American film industry. This spring, she was back in Los Angeles to attend the "Animation Celebration."

So, how did she come to choose Thief River Falls to represent the Midwest as the stone's flight takes it over the United States? Dixie Klein's son, Kris, was working for a German film company on a film that Suzanne was directing. When he heard of her plans, he suggested Thief River Falls to which Suzanne replied, "Why not?" Kris Klein is working with Suzanne on this film also doing computer modeling with the stone. In fact, Kris and the stone left Thief River Falls last Thursday for Hollywood.

Thief River Falls was actually the first stop on their trip across the country. When I last spoke to Suzanne Sunday evening, they were unsure of whether they would go to South Dakota from here or to the Twin Cities to board a plane to take them to New York City. From New York, the stone will cross the Mississippi on its way to the deserts of Arizona. Los Angeles will be their last stop in the United States.

The stone's trip across the Pacific will land them in Japan. From there, they will travel to Thailand and India. Suzanne ran into a glitch in the Arab countries. Foreign film directors and their camaramen are not welcome, and shooting any type of footage within the boundaries of these countries would be impossible. In other countries the rules involving film-making vary. In the United States, all Suzanne needed was a journalist's visa which allowed her free rein. In India, there are only certain areas where they will be allowed to shoot footage.

The stone's 12-minute journey around the world will take approximately three and one-half months to film. Uncooperative weather extended their stay in Thief River Falls by two days. When unable to film, they spent the days scouting for locations and willing participants.

There is a script for "The Flight of the Stone". However, unlike films shot on location, the script will continually be altered by the various places and situations they find as they travel. Director Suzanne and cameraman Juraj will work together to modify the script. The film will be set to "music" – the sounds of the stone as it whizzes through the air and occasionally hits another object as well as the sounds and voices it "hears" on its journey.

While the stone flies free, Suzanne and Juraj don't and one can only imagine how much money is needed to finance this project. Some of the funds came from the German film academy. The film has been sold to German and British television stations, and Suzanne's film company has put up some of the money.

Will we get to see "The Flight of the Stone" here in the United States? That will depend on whether the film is picked up by an American distributor. One of Suzanne's films, "Bravo Papa 2040" is distributed by an American film company and is used for educational purposes. This highly acclaimed, award winning six-minute film places the viewer in the cockpit of a low flying German fighter plane as it roars through all the realms of life.

When Suzanne described herself as an animator, I immediately thought she was talking about cartoons. Instead, animation means the film is shot frame by frame. Operating much like a still camera, the movie camara also takes individual pictures. When we watch a film, we are actually seeing thousands of still pictures. In each picture, the position of the object is slightly different. Each picture is flashed on the screen for a fraction of a second, but we do not see the separate pictures. Instead, we see continued movement because of a condition of the eye call "persistence of vision." For example, when the eye sees an object under bright light, the visual image of that object remains on the eye for one-tenth of a second after the light has been turned off. In this way, each picture on the film screen is presented to the eye before the preceding image has faded out.

Once the film is complete and the stone, Suzanne and Juraj are back in Germany, the film will be edited. Individual shots must be blended into logistical progression that tells the story clearly. Editing involves a sensitivity to rhythm and tempo. Suzanne will edit her own film and expects it to take about four weeks. She is under no time restrictions.

A ten-year veteran of the Film Industry, Suzanne works for other film companies in addition to having her own production company. Recently, she directed a film for a German film company that was totally computer animated. Interestingly, she was the only German working on the film. Her co-workers were all Americans.

All of Suzanne's films are "shorts." Of varying lengths, her creations are artistic works intended to entertain. Looking over her dossier, I noted rave reviews from film critics and a number of film festival awards. A bubbly, delightful person, she seemed to ooze creativity.

The stone is the oldest and most-popular weapon in the history of mankind. Readily available, the stone can be used without preparation. Without necessarily intending to, Suzanne will create a film with a lesson as the stone, used as a tool of violence, comes back to its origin after circling the globe. Commenting that she didn't want a sad or depressing ending, I wouldn't doubt but what her creative genius comes up with a whimsical twist at the end.

As I've visited with Suzanne, read the script, watched her and Juraj work and written this article, I've become more and more caught up in "The Flight of the Stone." Visualizing its journey, I want to be there when it lands! Perhaps a follow-up story in Germany would be in order . . . To that, I would say, "Sehr gut, und auf Wiedersehen!!!"

The instrument in cameraman Juraj's hand measures light. With overcast skies Sunday evening, the light was not sufficient for the animated technique used in filming "The Flight of the Stone."

Filming "The Flight of the Stone", Director Suzanne Frenzel and cameraman Juraj Liptak had already put in twelve hours when I caught up with them Sunday evening. This picture was taken south of town on Highway 32 where they were getting shots of the Thief River Falls sign.

Deer Park Garden Club met at Lake Julia for tour

Prestibaks guided the group on a memorable hike through the northern Minnesota plant community–a conifer bog located in Lake Bemidji State Park. A bog trail boardwalk led the hikers a quarter mile into the landscape where they observed many labeled plants such as pitcher plants, insect-eating sundews, orchids, etc. The boardwalk was under a canopy of aspen birch, tamarack spruce, river bottom oaks, basswood and hard maples. The pine moraine was alive with sounds of tree frogs and warbling forest songsters.

Following the hike, Prestibak took the group on a scenic drive overlooking Buena Vista's ski slopes where observers could catch a glimpse of the many surrounding lakes. On the Homestead Trail, they saw an old landmark log home and the area where "Logging Days" are held every February.

Hostess Arlene served a late afternoon luncheon which included a birthday cake for the three members celebrating in June, Ethel Wiseth, Lavonne Radniecki and Evelyn Myrum.

Following lunch, the group toured the huge backyard garden of Don and Jeanette Erie that included perennials, shrubs, hostas day lilies, roses and ferns of many varieties. Interest was added to the garden with whimsical sculptures and antiques. Don, who holds a degree in horticulture, shared his knowledge with the garden club members. Their home is next door to the Prestibak home.

Tracy Konickson attends Hugh O' Brian Leadership Seminar in St. Paul

Tracy Kunickson

Representing Pershing High School, Tracy Konickson recently attended the Hugh O'Brian Youth Foundation Annual Leadership Seminar at Hamline University in St. Paul. Tracy joined more than 200 other young leaders representing as many high schools from throughout the state.

For the past 39 years, HOBY Leadership Seminars have brought together select groups of high school sophomores who have demonstrated leadership abilities in their high schools and communities so that they can interact with groups of distinguished leaders in business, government, education and the professions to discuss present and future issues. The goal is to provide the students with a stimulating forum for learning about the American incentive system and democratic process and for broadening their understanding of their leadership potential and quest for self development.

"The HOBY seminar challenged me to think about the many issues affecting the world around me and helped me understand that as a leader, I have the power to make a positive impact in business, government and society," said Konickson. "HOBY helped me see the leadership potential in myself and to understand that goals and dreams are important regardless of what profession I choose."

The Hugh O'Brian Youth Foundation was established by veteran actor Hugh O'Brien following a visit to Africa where he was inspired by a meeting with Dr. Albert Schweitzer.

The school activities Tracy participates in are volleyball, track, cheerleading, National Honor Society, Sophomore class vice-president, Future Leaders of America, annual staff, student council, Students Against Drunk Drivers, Letterperson's Club, choir, Seat Belt Challenge team, and also her church youth group. Tracy is the daughter of John and Leona Konickson of Plummer.

SPEAKING OF

Sherry LaCoursiere

. . . No Rain, Please

Having a rummage sale is something like giving a party. I and my family are having a rummage sale next weekend and I'm all excited about it. Lucky thing, too, because if I weren't so excited, I'd be exhausted from getting ready. Anyway, I'm looking forward to it. We're going to have the biggest, best rummage sale ever and see lots and lots of people - if it doesn't rain.

I haven't had a rummage sale for a long time – I've just been getting rid of my junk in garbage bags. But this year we all decided to get together and have one gigantic sale with our junk. As they say, one (wo)man's junk is another's treasure.

It makes me feel better to sell my junk to someone else rather than toss it in the garbage. At least I know all that good junk will be going to a new home rather than to the dump. There's lots of use left in some of that junk I know there is. And I'm going to miss all of it. And I just know I'm going to need some of it the minute I sell it.

I just hope all of us who are having the sale keep our wits about us and don't try to drag home one another's junk. I'm afraid we could end up bringing home more than we threw out. If this does happen, next year we will just have a free-for-all instead of a rummage sale. We'll put everything out on tables and call up all our friends and relatives and simply trade junk.

Getting ready for a rummage sale is something else. It not only involves finding all the junk I want to get rid of, but it also means I must straighten up the junk I am keeping. This is quite a job because I am keeping a lot of junk. A rummage sale also involves lots of silly little details, like where are we going to put all this junk to make it easy for people to look at, who will take care of the money, who will straighten the clothes, how many tables do we need, where can we have this sale?

We finally decided that we will have it in my back yard. I have a very tiny garage (which is also filled with junk, as well as my car) so having it in the garage is out. The only place left is my big yard, so this will really be a yard sale instead of a rummage sale – if it doesn't rain.

It is hard to get rid of junk. Some of it is precious. Some of it was given to me by people and I surely can't get rid of that - first of all they would get mad, and secondly, I usually like the stuff that someone gave me. Some of it was made by me or my kids, and I can't get rid of that. Some of it gets used at least once a year and it would be silly to get rid of that.

Speaking of once a year, I tried to stick to the "not used in a year, throw it out" rule, but that is hard to do. It worked ok for clothes, but when it comes to fancy dishes and handy things, it doesn't work. I had to make a new rule for those things - "not used in five years, throw it out." Maybe I'll change that to 10 years.

My books are another story (pun intended). I can't seem to give up books by my favorite authors, even though I've read the books more than once. I can't give up books that I think I haven't read, and I can barely give up books that I probably haven't read and more than likely never will because they just don't sound interesting. I just like my books. I figure that some stormy winter day when I can't get to the library I will want to read a book and I want to have one on hand. I guess I want to have many on hand.

Isn't it funny how junk accumulates dust? I have been sneezing and sniffling all week and it must be from the dust on the junk. I thought I was a fairly decent housekeeper, but I guess I was wrong. Friday I was sure I was coming down with a nasty cold or the flu - I think the doggone dust was so thick it made me sick. Oh well, being out in all that fresh air next Saturday should clear me up.

Anyway, you are all invited to our rummage sale next Saturday. It will be a one-day, once-a-year event and everything must go. Everything better go, because I sure don't want to have to bring it back into the house now that I have managed to talk myself into getting rid of some of it. Just hope it doesn't rain.

ON MY MIND

Kim Chadwick-Quade

Coming Home

The best part about going somewhere is coming home. I recently returned from my sixth working trip to Belize (formerly British Honduras) in Central America. It's a country about the size of Massachusetts located just below the Yucatan Peninsula of Mexico with Guatemala to the west and south.

Belize is a beautiful and diverse country with the Caribbean Sea, Pine Ridge Mountains, rain forest, Maya ruins, caves and preserves to explore.

I love Belize. It's blessed with natural wonders like waterfalls and an 185-mile-long barrier reef. The country is filled with wildlife like hundreds of bird species, tropical fish and a great variety of other creatures. Belize hosts adventures like scuba diving, snorkeling, fishing, canoeing, horseback riding, rock climbing and underground cave tubing.

I love Belize's people and culture. Primarily English-speaking, they're as diverse as their country and friendly, eager to share Belize with visitors. It's a laid-back atmosphere with mottoes like: "no shirt, no shoes, no problem" and "go slow - Caye Caulker."

I enjoy Belize's food. There's fresh seafood and traditional offerings like stewed chicken with rice and beans. There's also the Mexican flavor with homemade tortillas and refried beans. Fresh fruits and vegetables are abundant.

With all that Belize offers, the country is Third World and still in the developing stages. Visitors won't find the familiar fast-food franchises like Taco John's, Burger King, McDonald's, Hardees and Pizza Hut. Neither will shoppers be able to walk into a Target, Pamida, Kman and JCPenney. There's not a convenience store on every corner. These places don't exist in Belize.

In some ways it's a treat to visit a place where the familiar doesn't exist, it's a nice change of pace. It's almost a different world and it's what makes Belize special. To find one of these in Belize would make the country lose its appeal. That's part of the reason people visit.

Although Belize produces fruits and vegetables, it must import many of its goods, which makes the items expensive. This, combined with a smaller economy and lower wages, makes life difficult for many Belizeans.

Coming home makes me realize how much we take for granted in our country. As much as I love Belize, it feels good to come home. When I set foot in the Houston airport after the 2 1/2 hour flight from Belize City, I appreciate living in the United States.

The first place I visit in the airport is the newsstand where I buy the daily newspaper and devour the news. I marvel at the extensive magazine selection. I purchase a candy bar and look for a television to watch CNN. I might even purchase a mouth-watering hamburger (something I haven't eaten in the last 12 days) before catching my next flight.

At home, I use the telephone, water and electricity with little thought as to how it got there. I fill my car with gas and drive it where I need to go. I watch television and use the air conditioner routinely.

When I need groceries I go to the store and push my cart through aisles of merchandise, most of which costs double in Belize. I buy clothing, personal items, toys and books from a variety of discount stores.

I often complain about gas or grocery prices or the selection of this or that. But compared to people in other countries, I realize my life is good. Coming home makes me realize my blessings.

Games and cards night planned at Embassy Center Thursday, June 26

An old-fashioned games and cards night, a monthly activity at the Embassy Community Center in Fosston, will be held Thursday, June 26 beginning at 7 p.m.

Artists provide art for June exhibit

The June exhibit at Roseau library offers a wide variety of visual art for viewers. The nine watercolor paintings and two pen/ink drawings utilize a wide range of colors. All the pieces are executed in a realistic style. Subjects include six landscapes, four florals and one portrait sketch.

Participating in the current show are three members of Artists Unlimited, an organization based in Kittson county.

Audrey Sandahl is displaying seven watercolors. For two of them she adds a second medium - pastels. The mixed-media pieces are landscapes - "Glorious Colors", featuring a farm tucked into autumn trees beside a lake, and "Country Church" with leafy foreground above a tombstone. In another church scene, "Shelter In a Time of Storm", a stream leads the eye to the distant building topped by a sky in strong blues and violets. "The Old Mostol Barn" is a second farm scene which focuses on a closeup of faded red barn; a bird perched on its peak is seen against a pale sky. The focal point of "Beached at Long Point" is a red boat. Sandahl's florals include "Tulip Splendor" in a combination of bold primary and secondary colors and "Petunias" in shades of purple.

Always popular roses are the subject of both watercolors by Loreen Hanson, Thief River Falls. Striking frames and mats in well chosen colors enhance both pieces. The large pink rose is triple matted with the widest mat of muted blue-green. Hanson's warm "Yellow Roses" are accented with pink in strong contrast to the blues and greens of leaves and the navy blue mat.

Annethea Novacek provides a change of pace with her small pen/ink pieces — a woodsy landscape with deer feeding and a portrait sketch of her mother, which includes watercolor touches.

Roseau Area Friends of the Library who sponsor the Artist of the Month Exhibit Series believe that viewers will find visual pleasure in the June display, open during daytime hours Monday through Friday and Thursday evenings until 8 p.m. The library is not open on Saturdays or Sundays this summer.

Sjoberg helps College Quiz Bowl team

Benjamin Sjoberg of Thief River Falls helped the St. Olaf College Quiz Bowl Team to its best season ever.

Sjoberg, a senior at St. Olaf College, was a member of the 1996-97 St. Olaf Quiz Bowl Team.

The team attended three tournaments: at Iowa State University, the University of Minnesota and the University of Wisconsin. At Wisconsin the team placed third overall, its highest finish ever. In all three tournaments the St. Olaf team finished ahead of cross-town rival Carleton College.

Four-member teams from many colleges and universities participate in Quiz Bowl tournaments, answering questions to earn points. Ninety percent of the questions are "academic", and the remaining 10 percent are about entertainment, sports and current events.

The first team to correctly answer a "tossup" question gets the opportunity to answer a more difficult "bonus" question. Correct answers are worth points, the value of each correct answer depends on the question's level of difficulty. The team with the most points at the end of a specified time period wins the tournament.

St. Olaf's Quiz Bowl team is comprised of eight students who take turns as members of the four-person tournament.

Noel has two state titles to her credit – last year's 300 hurdles crown and a long-jump championship as a ninth-grader in 1994. She qualified for the first of her five state appearances as an eighth-grader. She has also placed in the 100-meter, 200-meter and 400-meter dashes as well as the triple jump.

Ellison installed as Grand Commander of Minnesota Cooties

John F. Ellison
Grand Commander

John F. Ellison of Thief River Falls was installed recently as Grand Commander of the Military Order of the Cootie for Minnesota at the annual Cootie Scratch conducted in Redwood Falls.

The Minnesota organization has 47 Pup Tent units with 1,701 members and 25 Auxiliary units with 814 members.

Military Order of the Cootie was formed 20 years following chartering of the Veterans of Foreign Wars as a "fun" group within the framework of the parent organization. It was chartered as an official auxiliary to the VFW in 1921 and its members must first be members of the VFW.

Over the years the role of the Cooties has evolved to be one of service. The Cooties proposed the VFW National Home and have since funded and constructed the athletic field, swimming pool, National Home fire department and the National Home scholarship program.

Following the end of World War II, the Cooties also took on the task of recruitment of members for the VFW. The main emphasis of this "Honor Degree of the Veterans of Foreign Wars" has now become service and achievement, although the concept remains that the ability to "laugh at ourselves and with each other enables us to work harder and longer and with more determination than others."

PARENTING TIPS

More On Playing Together

Last week we discussed onlooker play and parallel play. This week we will look at two more forms of play.

Associative Play

In this form of play, children as young as three share materials, while each one pursues his or her own goal. They are more interested in exchanging materials than in a coordinated purpose or other direct social interaction. For example, two or more children may organize an activity around a common theme such as "playing store." But each concentrates on his own "agenda" while they lend and borrow toys.

Cooperative Play

This type of play usually emerges at around four years of age and continues throughout the school years. Cooperative play involves organized group play with a coordinated purpose. It can be as simple as building a house with blocks or as complex as playing football, with specific rules for all to obey. Cooperative play helps children to develop better social skills and enlarge their circle of friends.

More on friends next week.

SOMETHING TO TALK ABOUT

As children enter associative and cooperative play stages, their need for verbal skills will increase. Provide your child with examples of how to ask for toys and other necessary verbal skills for social interaction.

First Bank awards given to TRF student

Michelle Mathson

First Bank has awarded 307 high school seniors in Minnesota a total of $76,750 through its High School Awards program.

The First Bank High School Award, presented to one graduating senior at high schools in communities served by First Bank offices, consists of a $250 cash award and an inscribed certificate. The recipients of the award are chosen by each high school's awards committee.

Michelle Mathson, daughter of Bruce and Shelley Mathson of Thief River Falls, was one of the students to receive the award.

"This awards program — now in its 51st year — is one of the ways we recognize outstanding student performance. These awards acknowledge the contributions of students who excel in achievement, scholarship, and character, and who stand to become our future community leaders," says Larry S. Crawford, executive vice president and general manager, retail branch group, First Bank System.

The awards committees are instructed to choose their recipient based upon a student's character, capacity for constructive achievement, and scholarship. The weight assigned to each of these categories is left to the discretion of the committee.

KRWB radio station changes ownership

Roseau county's longest running radio station, KRWB, has gone through a change of ownership.

Marlin Obie, who was involved in the conception of the station back in 1963, recently turned the business over to a corporation comprised of Warren Evans of Grafton and Marlene Schmitz of Roosevelt.

Obie and his partner, Henry Tweten, began the first radio station in the county on six acres of land located two miles east of Roseau, off county road 11 and played Top 40 hits. Since that time, the station has undergone changes in personnel and some remodeling, not to mention various musical formats.

With the new staff in place, there will be a few changes in programs and features offered and a variety of new voices, but the music will be the classic rock format that the area enjoys.

Coming on board with Schmitz is Janet Rose as sales agent and Jen Thompson as news director.

"I just love music," said owner/deejay Schmitz, "so it's always been a dream of mine to own a radio station. And, I love to talk."

"You'll be seeing a lot of us in the area in the coming days," she added.

Another change that will be noticed as you drive by the area will be the increased activity around the towers. As soon as the land is cleared, cement slabs will be poured for the new FM tower, that should give the station the capability of operating as both AM and FM, known as simulcasting.

A grand opening is tentatively scheduled for early August, with the hope that the event will correspond with the date they throw the switch on the new tower.

Josie
Part 1

Have you ever thought of what it was like to move to Thief River Falls a century ago? Josie Bunngrud was 13 years old in 1899 when she moved with her family of seven from Brookings, South Dakota to Thief River Falls. She lived the rest of her life in this area, and at the age of 89 she wrote out her memoirs. Sitting in her wheelchair at Valley Home in 1974, Josie wrote 73 pages in pen and ink with a clear hand. Her son, Art Bunngrud, lent me her manuscript, titled "Mina Josephine Phillipson Bunngrud, Born April 17, 1885." The Thief River section begins with the rental of a railroad box car in Brookings in the middle of December 1899 and the loading of goods and animals.

With the help of several neighbors her father loaded the box car with machinery, hay for the horses, all the household goods, and finally, the horses, the chickens, and the family's dog, Rover. The family had sold their only cow as she was too old for the trip. The plan was for Josie, her mother and siblings to come by passenger train later.

Before the train pulled out, three young men sneaked aboard their box car for a free ride up to Thief River to buy land.

Father, Henry, and the three men rode in the boxcar with all the family's worldly goods. It took them two days and two nights to make the trip. They had plenty of feed for the horses and plenty of eats for all. When the train would stop they would get water for the horses. It all went well until they neared Crookston. The brakeman became suspicious that there might be extra passengers. He came into the car and asked if there was any one besides Henry and Father. Finally he came over and walked between the horses and near the hay where the men were hiding. One of the horses, Prince, would bite when he got nervous. When the brakeman was beside him Father reached around and pinched the horse. Prince turned around and snapped "at breakfast."

"You better watch out. This horse does not like strangers," Father said. So the brakeman left quickly. When they arrived in Crookston, the men thought it best to get out and pay a fare on the passenger train the rest of the way.

When Father and Henry reached Thief River Falls the first thing was to find a house and a barn. They needed to unload the boxcar as soon as possible. They were lucky as the first day Father found for rent a large house, almost new, with a large barn.

For unloading the car they had lots of good help from the three men. They needed it as Henry was only ten and a half years old. With the good horses and wagons it did not take long for them to get settled and send for the rest of the family.

There was a large saw mill at Thief River Falls. One could go to the mill and buy pieces and chunks of nice dry wood. There was plenty of wood available to everyone, which was new to the Phillipsons. The first thing Father took the hay rack and went over to the mill and loaded it full. When he went to pay for it, the man said, "Well, you have got a rather big load but I will let you have it for 75 cents this time."

Back in Brookings, Josie and her sister Marie had stayed at a friend's place; Mother, George, and Ernest had stayed at another friend's home.

Four days later when Mother received the letter telling them to come, they started out. Neither Mother nor the children had ever been on a train. George was 4 years old, Ernest 9 months, Marie 16, and Josie 13 years. It seemed all their friends were there to see them off. Their friends brought eats of all kinds, more than they could use. Many tears were shed, but Josie was too excited to feel sad. The train left Brookings at 10 a.m. and they traveled steadily until they reached St. Paul in the evening. It was dark. The old depot was being torn down, getting ready to build a new one, so they had quite a time finding their way around. They waited several hours for their train, but finally "got a-going." They traveled all night until after noon of the next day when they reached Thief River Falls.

It was a nice day and they stopped at a restaurant before setting out for their new home where they would live the next three months. While at the restaurant Josie said to her father,

"But where is the town?"

Father said, "You are right in it!"

For a time Josie was a disappointed girl. Brookings at that time was a small but nice city with a public school up to 8th grade and a junior college.

But when they came to their home Josie soon forgot about it. They had a cozy home to step into: nice and warm with all the furniture in place. They were all so tired that soon after supper they all retired for a good nights sleep.

School bus safety was one of the areas covered when preschoolers attended the Safety Town program recently at Challenger Elementary and Preschool. 'Safety Town' teaches safety to preschoolers

"Safety Town" classes for children of pre-school age were recently completed under sponsorship of the Thief River Falls Police Department and Early Childhood Family Education (ECFE) program of School District 564 at Challenger Elementary and Preschool.

The program involved four sessions of one and one-half hours each which concentrated on traffic safety in several ways and on fire safety. Each participating child also received a free bicycle helmet provided through funds donated by Post 2793 of the Veterans of Foreign Wars.

Joyce Froschheiser, director of the ECFE program, said that Safety Town introduces preschool children to many aspects of safety. Parents were involved in the program to witness or join in the training and to gain information to reinforce the training with repetition at home.

Youngsters were given the experience of riding toy vehicles in a miniature town which provided traffic signs and other safety features. Songs, games and finger plays were methods used to teach additional safety in classroom activities. The teachers were Mrs. Froschheiser and Mary Broten.

In attendance at each session were either Sgt. Jim Haugen, juvenile and school liaison officer or Craig Mattson, school liaison officer. They helped the children learn that police officers are their friends and provided instruction in gun safety, how to safely cross the street, and bicycle safety.

Several special guests also provided instruction in the program.

- Sgt. Roger Gunsalus, safety education officer for District 3200 of the Minnesota State Patrol with offices in Thief River Falls, spoke about seat belt and bicycle safety.
- "The Good Neigh Bear" from State Farm Insurance helped the children learn about traffic lights with assistance from Pat, Kim and Zach Quade and Jill Tullemans.
- Dennis Pederson, school bus driver and Katie Seed, school safety patrol member, helped children and parents learn about school bus safety, and
- Rodger Anderson, Commander of Veterans of Foreign Wars Post 2793 for 1996-97, presented the bicycle helmets for each child in the program on behalf of the post.

Some of the safety situations covered in the Safety Town program included crossing a street when there is a traffic light and when there is no traffic light, meaning of traffic sign shapes and colors, using a seat belt, how and when to dial 911, what to do if a gun is found (don't touch, go and tell an adult), always wear a helmet when riding bicycle, obeying all traffic laws when on the street with bicycle, hot cycle, in-line skates, etc., and walking along a street when a sidewalk is and is not available.

In an evaluation survey answered by the parents, 24 of the 26 respondents indicated that their child had learned safety rules and was practicing them at home. Twenty-one of the parents also said they had learned something about safety by attending the program with their child.

Caitlin Sorvig finds the Times' camera more interesting than the bicycle helmet she received as a participant in the Safety Town program conducted recently at Challenger Elementary and Preschool by the Thief River Falls Police Department and the Early Childhood Family Education program of School District 564.

Preschoolers who will be entering kindergarten in School District 564 next year were given the opportunity to participate in the Safety Town safety program recently. Part of the program involved learning about signs, right and left, meaning of safety terms and other safety features through use of children's wheeled vehicles. Two accidents reported in RLF

Red Lake County sheriff's department responded to two accidents Tuesday, June 17. One person was transported by ambulance to Riverview Hospital in Crookston.

On June 17 at 6:27 a.m. the sheriff's department received a report of an accident at Red Lake county 116 and 14. According to the accident report, Gladyce LaCrosse, Red Lake Falls, was driving a 1991 Volkswagon Jetta south on County road 116 when her vehicle collided with a 1985 Chevrolet pickup driven by Dale Knutson of Red Lake Falls, which was traveling east on Red Lake County 14. Gladyce LaCrosse had to be extricated from the vehicle with emergency equipment. She was transported to Riverview Hospital in Crookston by the Red Lake Falls Ambulance. Both drivers were wearing seat belts. Both vehicles were considered total losses.

A juvenile faces charges following an accident the evening of June 17 in Red Lake Falls. The sheriff's department received a report of an accident on Hamilton Avenue at 6:18 p.m. According to the accident report, a juvenile from Crookston was driving a 1992 Pontiac Van north on Hamilton Avenue when he went through the stop sign and struck a 1984 Camaro driven by a juvenile from Red Lake Falls. Neither driver was injured. The van sustain extensive damage. The Camaro was considered a total loss. Charges are pending.

Signalling the end of a nearly century-long era of railroading in Thief River Falls, roundhouse laborer Marty Relerson shut off the lights and locked the doors of the roundhouse for the last time at 10 p.m. Sunday, June 15. The roundhouse had provided locomotive maintenance for the Soo Line/Canadian Pacific railroad for 92 years since it began service in 1905. According to roundhouse foreman Al Steinheuer, who had worked there for 32 years, the roundhouse was made a candidate for closure due to fueling of locomotives by an outside contractor, opening of a $7 million diesel shop in St. Paul, leasing of the "Wheatline" to Northern Plains Railway in January of 1997 and the resulting changes in locomotive assignments. The eight employees affected by the closure—all of whom had worked there 18 years or more—reportedly accepted the separation package offered by CP Rail rather than relocate to work at the new diesel shop in St. Paul.

Minors face charges in RLF for vandalism

Action in juvenile court is pending against four minors in connection with vandalism at the golf course in Red Lake Falls June 13 and 14. During that incident the minors allegedly caused damage to the course and drove golf carts all over the course. On June 16 another golf cart was stolen.

On June 20 at 7:20 p.m. the sheriff's department received a report of vandalism to the interior of a Red Lake Falls residence. Damage to the building was estimated at $10,000. Three minors face charges in that incident.

Explanation for UFO offered by area driver

Possible explanation for the reported sighting of an Unidentified Flying Object (UFO) between St. Hilaire and Thief River Falls last week has been offered by Lynette Hasby of St. Hilaire.

When returning home from Thief River Falls about 10:45 p.m. Monday, June 16, Lynette said she noticed the runway lights at the Thief River Falls regional airport were flashing. She said she checked with the airport after reading about the UFO sighting by two Newfolden girls and found that the Mesaba Airlines plane arrived at 11:20 p.m.

Hasby said she has seen planes coming in for landings at the airport a number of times and that their landing lights can create strange appearances depending on the height, direction and angle at which they are viewed.

The girls reporting the UFO sighting said they were familiar with airplanes and helicopters and what they saw was neither one.

Five taken to hospital after accident Sat.

Five people were taken to Riverview Hospital in Crookston following an accident Saturday near Red Lake Falls.

According to the Red Lake County sheriff's department, Harvey Raymond Klipping, Red Lake Falls, was driving a pickup south on a township road and pulled onto County road 11, when his vehicle collided with an east bound stationwagon driven by Thomas Michael Kasprowicz, Roseau. The Kasprowicz vehicle rolled and came to rest on its roof on County road 11. All five occupants of the Kasprowicz vehicle, a family, were transported to Riverview Hospital in Crookston by Red Lake Falls Ambulance where they were treated and released.

The accident remains under investigation.

Accidents and alcohol incidents noted by LEC

Law enforcement investigated a few accidents and other incidents involving alcohol and drugs during the past week.

Accidents. On June 17 at 11:56 a.m. police received a report of a car and bike accident. Alvin Joseph Paggen, Thief River Falls, was driving a pickup north on Barzen Avenue, when Spence Lee Simmons, 6, Thief River Falls, entered the roadway from the alley. Simmons had bruises and abrasions. He was taken to Northwest Medical Center where he was treated and released. Tall grass caused his vision to be obscured.

On June 19 at 10:52 a.m. police received a report of an accident at Third and Brooks. Darren Dean Tobey, Bemidji, was driving a van north and Wallace Carl Walton, Middle River, was driving a pickup west when the vehicles collided. Tobey had stopped at a stop sign and proceeded into the intersection where the vehicles collided. He was cited for failure to yield. Damages were estimated at $2,000 to the Tobey vehicle, and $2,500 to the Walton vehicle.

On June 20 at 12:42 p.m. police received a report of an accident at Kendall and Nora. Stacy Diane Bulger, St. Hilaire, was driving a car south and allegedly failed to yield at the intersection and collided with a car driven by Seamus Patrick Duffy, Thief River Falls, who was driving west. Bulger was cited for failure to yield. Damages were estimated at $2,500 to the Bulger vehicle and $5,000 to the Duffy vehicle.

Thefts. On June 18 at 9:17 a.m. police received a report of the theft of a 1981 Yamaha 650 motorcycle. The vehicle was black in color and its license number was MM33982. It was taken from a driveway in the 800 block of South Kendall. Theft loss was estimated at $500.

On June 23 at 12:36 p.m. police received a report that a woman had lost a wallet containing $300. The wallet had been accidentally left behind at Hugo's. It was later found at Erl's minus the $300.

Driving while intoxicated. On June 18 at 12:30 p.m. police received a report of a car driving in circles with children on the trunk. Four children, ages 6 to 8, were observed riding on the trunk of a vehicle. Terry Wayne Peterson, 29, Thief River Falls, was charged with gross driving while intoxicated, and gross child endangerment.

On June 22 at 9:58 p.m. Israel Deleone, 26, Thief River Falls, was arrested for driving while intoxicated.

On June 21 the sheriff's department arrested Joseph Randy Dessellier, 19, Oklee, for driving while intoxicated.

Terroristic threats. On June 21 at 10:26 p.m. police received a 911 hang up call. Upon investigation police learned that a woman had been threatened. Rodney Louis Lajimodiere, 40, Thief River Falls, was arrested and faces a possible charge of terroristic threats.

Drugs. On June 22 at 11:29 p.m. a 17-year-old male from St. Hilaire was charged with possession of a small amount of marijuana and tobacco.

Junk vehicles. Police have cited five individuals for failure to remove junk vehicles. All five had received warning letters prior to being cited.

These reports include names of individuals charged, arrested or cited with various crimes and offenses by police, the sheriff's department or other law enforcement officials. Depending upon the circumstances of a case, charges can be, and sometimes are, changed or dropped by law enforcement officials or attorneys even before the case reaches court. Readers should also realize that under the American system of jurisprudence, individuals charged with crimes are innocent until proven guilty of those crimes in a court of law.

Crookston man arrested in RLF without incident

On June 20, Michael Allen Delage, Crookston, was arrested in Red Lake county without incident. The sheriff's department had received information that Delage was in Red Lake Falls and was wanted on a warrant out of Polk county for felony terroristic threats. Delage was transported to Northwest Regional Correctional Facility in Crookston.

Search dogs help find missing couple Friday

Police department was told "women don't handle big dogs."

Johnson explained that they use soil found underneath the bodies to help train the dogs to find bodies. Recently, they also returned from a special training facility near Washington, DC, where the dogs were trained on cadavers.

Johnson said the dogs react in different ways when they make a find. Tielen said Sassy stops, becomes real calm and very intense. Johnson said Gabe is a deep breather and perks his ears forward.

Tielen said they were pleased they were able to find the bodies. "We do it for the families so they have a piece of mind," she said.

Search for Safranski

The searchers searched several areas for Voni Safranski on Saturday and Sunday, but were unsuccessful.

Plans are being considered for bringing the dogs back to the area to search other areas that they didn't think they had searched satisfactorily.

A Bureau of Criminal Apprehension agent said the dogs were well trained and he was very impressed.

Anyone with information about the disappearance of Voni Safranski is asked to contact the Marshall County Sheriff's department.

Officials are somewhat stymied by the immensity of the task before them. They say they cannot possibly check all of the abandoned farm sites, wells and dumps. They will check as many as they can, but are again asking area residents to check their property.

Last weekend's effort was part of an ongoing process involving friends, family, volunteers and law enforcement personnel.

Despite the frustration, officials say "We won't quit".

Officials have been checking the leads they do receive, and the sheriff's department is continuing to check any leads. Nothing is too small or too big.

A Bureau of Criminal Apprehension Agent said in cases like this, people might have information that is relevant, but which they think is too trivial. These people should contact law enforcement with the information, no matter how trivial they think the information.

Officials say it would really be nice to get some more information and help from the public.

Thief River Falls boys high school basketball...

Prowlers have new coach

Bob Johnson, first a head coach right out of college and then an assistant in one of the premier high school programs in South Dakota the past 12 years, became a head coach once again Monday when it was announced that he would be taking over that role with the Thief River Falls boys.

The 45-year-old Johnson is a Mentor native who graduated from Moorhead State University in 1978. He spent seven years in southern Minnesota as the head boys basketball coach and head football coach at Milroy before joining the staff at Mitchell (population 14,000) as an assistant in a boys basketball program that won six large school state titles in the three-class South Dakota state tournament over the past dozen years.

Johnson succeeds Scott Bucks, who resigned as Prowlers head coach following the 1996-97 season. He will serve as a physical education health instructor at Franklin Middle School.

"I'm very excited about the opportunity to be a head coach again," said Johnson, who talked to the local media after meeting with school officials and touring the local facilities. He was here with his wife, Sharon, who is originally from Red Lake Falls and is also a teacher, along with son, Mike, who will be a senior this fall and a candidate for a spot on the Prowlers' squad.

"We're very family oriented," said Johnson. "We know its tough for him (Mike), but we wouldn't have [illegible] without his [illegible]."

Johnson pointed [illegible] he wasn't [illegible] Prowlers personnel [illegible] aggressive basketball [illegible] on defense, is his preferred [illegible] play.

"We'll play a lot of hard nosed, man-to-man defense," pointed out Johnson, "and I like to see the kids get up and down the court with a disciplined fast break. I'm not guaranteeing championships. I want the kids to work hard and play the full court for 32 minutes. The rest of it will take care of itself. The kids should [illegible] I'm anxious to get started."

Johnson's appointment, pointed out [illegible], [illegible] official board approval.

Bob Johnson visited with members of the media Monday after being named as the new Thief River Falls boys high school basketball coach. A former head coach at Milroy, Johnson comes to Thief River Falls after 12 years as an assistant coach at Mitchell, SD.

TRF Legion picks up first win

Thief River Falls broke into the win column for the first time this summer with a 7-6 eight-inning victory over Blackduck Friday in the second half of an American Legion baseball doubleheader at Irv Wilson Field.

Blackduck won the opener 14-13 to stretch the Post 117 season opening losing streak to nine games.

The one-game Thief River Falls winning streak ended Sunday with 12-7, 19-5 losses to Ninth District rival Fergus Falls.

"We're still really young," pointed out Thief River Falls coach Bruce Elseth, who has used a line-up with four 17-year-olds and five 16-year-olds against teams playing primarily 18-year-olds. "That physical maturity and experience makes a big difference," he pointed out.

The age difference shows up mostly on defense, noted Elseth. "We've hit the ball pretty well, but we're not playing the plays in the field. They have to learn to recognize the different situations."

Despite carrying a 1-11 record into a scheduled Tuesday doubleheader against East Grand Forks at Irv Wilson Field, Elseth thinks the player's spirits are still high. "The kids were really upbeat after beating Blackduck," he said. "That helped a lot. Hopefully the losses won't get them down. The 16-year-olds are starting to win some VFW games and I think they are starting to realize they can be competitive at this level."

Thief River Falls will compete in the East Grand Forks Invitational Friday through Sunday.

Thieves top Ada, Warroad, Fertile to hit .500 mark

Thief River Falls Thieves, after starting the 1997 season with four straight losses, have climbed back to .500 following amateur baseball wins over Ada, Warroad and Fertile in a five-day span.

Wednesday, the Thieves overcame an early 4-0 deficit to outscore the Ada A's 13-7 in a make-up game at Irv Wilson Field. Home runs by Steve Burslie, Carter Rogalla and Joby Looker led a 20-hit assault for the winners.

Burslie was the winning Wednesday night pitcher. Concordia JV player Jamie Aanenson supplied most of the Ada offense with a pair of two-run home runs and a run scoring single. Jim Everson was the losing pitcher.

An old-fashioned pitching duel developed between the Thieves Mike Steen and Warroad's Troy Mattern Saturday. The game was deadlocked at 1-1 going into the seventh when the Thieves' Aaron Chaput drew a walk and scored on a Ryan Bendickson double.

Steen wound up with a five-hitter, Mattern gave up just four hits. The visiting Thieves won despite committing five of the game's six errors.

Thief River Falls closed out the productive week with a 12-2 Sunday victory over the visiting Fertile Phantoms.

The Thieves struck early with three unearned first inning runs crossing the plate on two errors and a passed ball.

Winning pitcher Derek McFarlane scattered eight hits. He was backed by a 12-hit, error-free effort that included three hits by Blaise Larson and two hits each for Burslie, Bendickson and Chris Nelson. Burslie homered.

Mike Norland of Fertile was the losing pitcher. Matt Webster and Marshall Hegg both had two hits for the visitors.

The Thieves host Roseau Thursday at 7:30 p.m. at Irv Wilson Field.

Prizes and trophies will be awarded. The event is co-sponsored by the Holy Family Knights of Columbus Chapter of Red Lake Falls for the benefit of area youth.

Entries are preferred by noon Monday, July 28, but golfers can still register by 9 a.m. the day of the tournament. Send entry fees to Steve Philion, Route 1, Red Lake Falls, MN 56750, 218-253-2499.

Elk hunt is scheduled this fall

For the second consecutive year an elk hunting season will be held in Minnesota, according to Minnesota Department of Natural Resources officials. The hunt is intended to harvest six elk out of a population that is estimated to number approximately 40 animals this fall. It is the result of extensive discussions with local landowners, environmental organizations, and others over the past several years. The harvest of elk is necessary to reduce agricultural crop damage in the area. Last year hunters harvested eight elk during the course of four hunts.

Elk hunting will be permitted in a 56-square-mile area near the town of Grygla in northwestern Minnesota. A total of six permits will be issued to parties of two individuals and are available in three separate seasons: a September bull season, a second season where one yearling spike bull-only and one antlerless-only permit will be issued, and a later antlerless-only season. Up to three additional permits will be offered in each of two alternate hunts if insufficient harvest is obtained during the first three seasons.

Only Minnesota residents who will be age 16 or older as of Sept. 13 are eligible for the drawing. Applicants will be selected for permits by a random drawing; for winners, it's a once-in-a-lifetime opportunity. Applications for permits must be postmarked on or before Friday, July 18. A non-refundable $20 application fee is required for each two-person application. The license fee is $220. A mandatory orientation session will be required prior to the hunt.

Property owners and tenants living on at least 160 acres of agricultural land within the elk hunting zone (as well as family members living on the qualifying property and part of the farming operation) will be given preference for one of the regular permits and for a permit in alternative seasons, if held. A map of the elk hunting zone and special instructions for landowner applications may be obtained by contacting Thief Lake Wildlife Management Area Headquarters at (218) 222-3747. Landowners should print the word LANDOWNER at the top of their application and include the legal description of the qualifying land.

Incomplete applications will be disqualified. Applications for the elk hunt must be made in parties of two individuals on an 8 1/2-by-11-inch sheet of paper that includes the following information:

- Full name and mailing address of both hunters
- Driver's license or Minnesota Public Safety ID number for both hunters
- Telephone number for both hunters
- Season choice - A, B, C or D season option A: Sept. 13-21 (two bull permits) season option B: Sept. 27-Oct. 5 (one yearling spike bull only permit) season option C: Sept. 27-Oct. 5 (one antlerless only permit) season option D: Oct. 18-26 (two antlerless only permits)
- Whether the applicants are interested in one or both of the following alternate hunts (Individuals chosen for the alternate hunts will be notified about three weeks prior to the alternate hunts.) alternate 1: Nov. 22-30, alternate 2: Dec. 6-14
- Signature of each hunter applications, together with the $20 application fee (cashier's check, personal check or money order made out to Minnesota Department of Natural Resources), must be postmarked or delivered on or before the July 18 deadline and sent to: Elk Hunt, DNR Regional Headquarters, 2115 Birchmont Beach Road N. E., Bemidji, MN 56601.

A total of eight permits were offered for last year's hunt. Two bull permits were awarded; a 6-by-6 and a 7-by-7 bull elk were taken. Antlerless elk hunters took a total of five adult and one yearling cow elk. All hunts went well and hunter satisfaction was high, according to the DNR.

Grouse numbers up statewide

Spring ruffed grouse surveys by the Minnesota Department of Natural Resources indicate that the bird population again increased overall compared to last year. However, decreases were noted in two areas.

Biggest increase came in the northeastern zone, where the number of ruffed grouse drums counted was up 114 percent over 1996. The northern and central zones had increases of 28 percent and 12 percent, respectively, compared to last year. Grouse drumming declined in the northwest (17 percent) and southeast (20 percent).

The numbers average out to a statewide ruffed grouse drumming county increase of 21 percent over 1996. The rise marks the fourth year in a row that grouse numbers are up, indicating that the bird may be near the top of its 10-year population cycle. Drumming counts are only an index to the populations hunters will find in the woods next fall, and much will depend on the success of the current grouse nesting season.

"We're surprised about the decline in the northwest, but otherwise this is great news," says Bill Berg, a DNR research biologist who coordinates the agency's annual spring grouse population surveys out of Grand Rapids. "If we continue to have the excellent nesting and brood rearing conditions we're seeing now, the grouse hunting this fall should be excellent."

Berg says the ruffed grouse harvest could approach one million birds, a mark not set since the last population peak in 1989. "Hunters can take some credit for this increase because their license dollars help support timber harvest coordination between the DNR Section of Wildlife and the Division of Forestry that improves habitat for grouse and other forest wildlife," he says.

By analyzing ruffed grouse population survey data stretching back to 1949, Berg has identified six population cycles. Ruffed grouse numbers usually begin increasing during the middle of a decade and peak towards the end. "It's anyone's guess when this decade's peak will occur," Berg said.

The news for sharp-tailed grouse was better than it's been in several years. Sharp-tailed males on dancing grounds increased by 25 percent in the bird's northwest range, and increased by a modest 4 percent in the east-central region. This is the first time since 1990 that sharptails have increased statewide, said Berg.

Sharptail numbers cycle only slightly compared to ruffed grouse, says Berg. With the exception of this year, they have been on a generally steady decline for the past 20 years, due almost entirely to the loss of the bird's brushland habitat. "Some of the increase in sharptails can be attributed to more prescribed burning, shearing, and other cooperative brushland management made possible with license dollar, RIM, and Environmental Trust Fund dollars," said Berg.

Ruffed grouse surveys are conducted each spring by DNR wildlife staff and other cooperators that include Chippewa and Superior National Forests, Tamarac and Agassiz National Wildlife Refuges; White Earth, Leech Lake, Grand Portage, and Fond du Lac Indian Reservations; Central Lakes College in Brainerd; Beltrami and Cass County land departments; and Blandin Paper Co.

Sharptail dancing ground counts were conducted by staff from DNR Wildlife, Agassiz National Wildlife Refuge, and volunteers from the Minnesota Sharp-tailed Grouse Society.

Waterfowl population similar to 1996

Waterfowl Population

Breeding duck populations are similar to last year in Minnesota, according to results from the annual May waterfowl breeding ground survey conducted by the Minnesota Department of Natural Resources and the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service.

"Total May duck populations were unchanged from last year, mallards were up 29 percent, and blue-winged teal were down 12 percent compared to last year," said Jeff Lawrence, DNR waterfowl specialist. Mallards and blue-winged teal each comprise about one-third of the breeding ducks in the 40 percent of the state that is surveyed each year.

To conduct the survey, a DNR conservation officer pilot and DNR biologist count ducks, geese and wetlands from a low-flying, single-engine airplane along the same routes each year. A ground crew obtains a count of waterfowl along a portion of the routes to correct for birds missed by the air crew.

"The mallard breeding population in Minnesota this spring was estimated at approximately 407,000, compared with 315,000 in 1996," Lawrence said. Mallards are 115 percent above average populations since the current Minnesota waterfowl survey began in 1968, evidence of an increasing trend in population size since the 1970s. Blue-winged teal decreased 12 percent to 253,000 from 1996 to 1997, but remained 12 percent above the long-term average. Canada geese observed on the Minnesota survey were unchanged from 1996, but are 154 percent above the long-term average.

May pond numbers in Minnesota decreased 6 percent compared with 1996, but remained 27 percent above the long-term average. "Seasonal and permanent wetlands were in good condition, but there were fewer temporary wetlands than we have observed on the survey routes since 1993," Lawrence said. "Ducks use these temporary wetlands for feeding and establishing territories in the spring. If there is normal spring and summer precipitation, ample permanent water should be available for duck and goose broods."

The number of breeding waterfowl in 40 percent of Minnesota is estimated each year as part of an annual inventory of North American breeding waterfowl. "Data on breeding duck populations from Canada and other states is not yet available, but preliminary reports suggest a continuation of the excellent habitat conditions and duck populations in the Dakotas and much of prairie Canada," Lawrence said. "This has been a long wet cycle for the prairies, with above normal precipitation since 1993 throughout much of the duck breeding grounds. This has been one of the longest wet periods recorded on the prairies, but the cyclic nature of duck populations will be evident when dryer conditions inevitably return."

Breeding population surveys for the Eastern Prairie Population of Canada geese, which breed in northern Manitoba and migrate through western Minnesota, are just beginning for this year. "The cool spring may delay nesting again this year, but we won't know their status until the data is summarized, typically in late June," said Lawrence.

The status of North American waterfowl populations will be discussed by the Mississippi Flyway Council, an organization of waterfowl biologists and administrators representing 14 states and three Canadian provinces, at its July meeting in Hot Springs, Arkansas. This group will develop recommendations on waterfowl hunting regulations to be presented to the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service in early August in Washington, D.C.

Environmentalist of the Year is named

Minnesota Natural Resources Foundation announced that Jack Pichotta, executive director of the Wolf Ridge Environmental Learning Center, has been selected to receive the Environmentalist of the Year Award.

Pichotta has been a leader in the state's environmental education efforts for more than 25 years. He was instrumental in establishing Minnesota's first center for environmental education. In 1980 the center became the first facility of its kind to be accredited by the North Central Association of Colleges and Schools, a step that helped move environmental education into the mainstream of public education.

DNR NEWS

Beaver Problems

Landowners who are staring into the teeth of a beaver problem have several options when it comes to resolving their soggy situation. The Department of Natural Resources reports that landowners can install a Clemson beaver pond leveler, work with a local trapper, or even shoot or trap the beaver if it is on their own property and doing damage.

"Beavers provide many positive values to our environment," said Mike DonCarlos, DNR furbearer specialist. "However, by their very nature, they tend to cause problems. Beavers chew down trees to build dams that may flood pastures, crop land, driveways, basements and roads." Statewide, the beaver population has declined in recent years, DonCarlos said. Still, problems exist in some areas.

One solution is a Clemson beaver pond leveler. This low-cost device, developed through the Clemson University Extension Service, keeps water flowing through culverts and dams. Levelers have been installed at approximately 300 locations in Minnesota and most have resolved the former problem.

"A leveler may be the least expensive way to reduce some beaver problems," said Kent Solberg, DNR wildlife depredation specialist at Brainerd. Levelers are available for $250 from the Minnesota Department of Corrections, or landowners can make their own from hardware store materials. The DNR does not purchase or install levelers, but local wildlife managers do have order forms and can also provide advice on how best to install the leveler. Order forms are also available by calling 1-800-MINNCOR.

"The Clemson Leveler will not work on lakes and ponds that have a large watershed or in a stream or ditch with multiple beaver dams that have little change in elevation," said Solberg. In these situations, trapping is the most effective way to reduce beaver problems.

"Removing a beaver dam without removing the beaver who built it rarely resolves the problem," said Solberg. He said the DNR does not trap and relocate beaver because survival of relocated animals is poor, it is expensive to do, and this seemingly good idea would likely shift the problem from one area to another. "You may shoot or trap beaver on your property if they are doing damage to your property," said Solberg.

Jeff Thielen, DNR acting regional enforcement supervisor in Brainerd, said people who trap or shoot beaver on their own property must contact their local DNR conservation officer within 24 hours after taking action. Thielen advises landowners who plan to remove beaver from their property to contact their local conservation officer prior to removing beaver and to observe all local ordinances.

Conservation officers and DNR area wildlife offices may have a list of trappers willing to remove beavers for landowners. "Trappers interested in removing beaver from property other than their own must have landowner permission and a free permit from a conservation officer if trapping outside the regular season," Thielen said.

Governor signs changes to MN septic system laws

Governor Carlson recently signed into law three bills adjusting the way septic systems are regulated in Minnesota. The changes amend the state law governing septic systems, which came under statewide regulation for the first time in 1994.

Among other things, the law now requires all local governments to have ordinances regulating Individual Sewage Treatment Systems, or ISTS, a class of sewage-treatment systems including the familiar tank-and-drainfield system commonly used by homeowners. Formerly, state law required only that shoreland areas be covered by local ISTS ordinances; now, all areas of the state must be covered by ordinances, which (with certain exceptions for counties) cannot be less restrictive than minimum state standards.

The law also now allows a two-foot separation from the bottom of the drainfield to the water table for existing systems which aren't posing an imminent danger to public health, a change from the former three-foot standard. Legislators and staff of the Minnesota Pollution Control Agency have received many comments since the 1994 law went into effect that the three-foot standard was overly restrictive. This "grandfathered" change does not apply in shoreland or wellhead protection areas, nor for establishments, licensed by the Health Department.

The bills signed into law also provide some additional funding for upgrading or replacing failing ISTS. The funding will be available through selected local governments over the next two years.

State Representative Dave Bishop (Rochester), co-sponsor of one of the bills and one of the primary advocates of changing the law in the Legislature, said the new changes will help to ease the difficulty many homeowners have had in adapting to statewide regulation of septic systems.

"The 1994 law is a good law," Bishop said. "Failing septic systems are a serious problem in this state, and we need to address that. But the three-foot separation requirement was just not practicable in some areas of the state. With the extra funding and fine-tuning these changes represent, we feel we can have effective statewide regulation which doesn't cause undue economic hardship."

For more information on the changes to the law or new funding sources, contact the MPCA's ISTS Hotline at 612-282-6426 or toll-free at 1-800-657-3864.

Emergency child care available

Tri-Valley Council awarded grant to provide child care

Tri-Valley Opportunity Council has been awarded $85,000 to provide emergency child care in East Grand Forks. The award was made by the Minnesota Legislative Commission in response to a recent decision of the Federal Emergency Management Agency that child care was not a reimbursable FEMA expense.

Tri-Valley Executive Director Dennis DeMers says, "The grand award is critical to our ability to continue emergency child care in East Grand Forks. Although the award represents less than three percent of the need, it is a welcome and much needed boost to child care providers who continue to provide essential services to the young children of our community while operating in the fog of insecurity." DeMers noted that, even with federal legislation, families remain anxious. "Children and families need some straight and definitive answers about their homes, jobs and daily lives pretty soon or we are going to blow some gaskets, and this will cost a lot in terms of family stress and related mental health problems."

DeMers says the Tri-Valley Opportunity Council has written several additional grants to foundations and other funding sources. He says the agency remains hopeful that additional funding can be found "to assist in meeting the needs of children and families in our flood ravaged communities."

Testing efforts demonstrate safety of water in Minnesota

Minnesota Department of Health (MDH) has again released its annual report on the state's community water supply systems — and once again the bottom line is positive.

The results of routine testing done during calendar year 1996 — which provided the basis of the report — failed to produce any evidence of significant contamination problems.

The report covers test results for 960 community water systems — including 708 municipal systems. MDH conducted 57,441 separate tests for pesticides and industrial contaminants during the year, and only 139 of those tests — less than one quarter of one percent — revealed detectable levels of contaminants. None of the contaminants exceeded state or federal drinking water standards.

Evidence of bacterial contamination was detected in 19 community water system, including eight municipal systems. Residents of those communities were instructed to boil their water before using it for drinking or cooking — standard procedure in cases of bacterial contamination — until the affected systems could be flushed out, disinfected, and retested. All of the affected systems were quickly restored to normal operation. The largest of these systems served approximately 825 people.

This is the third time MDH has released its annual drinking water report, which was delayed this year while the agency's drinking water protection program responded to the flood emergency in northwestern Minnesota.

"We think it's important to continue releasing these reports every year, so people will continue to have confidence in the quality of their drinking water," said Minnesota Health Commissioners Anne Barry. "A lot of people have concerns about the potential impact of environmental contamination on their health. We believe it's important to let them know what's being done to protect their drinking water — and to give them some sense of the success we've enjoyed in doing that job."

Legislation reauthorizing the federal Safe Drinking Water Act (SDWA) had a major impact on drinking water protection activities during 1996.

Among other important measures, SDWA provides for creation of state-level revolving loan programs, which will help local water supply systems finance needed capital improvements.

"Some parts of our drinking water infrastructure date back to the last century," Commissioner Barry noted. "By investing in improvements to this system, we can do a more effective job of safeguarding drinking water quality in the future. The new revolving loan fund will help us do that."

The SDWA reauthorization also includes a requirement that water supply systems notify their customers any time contaminants are detected in the water. Water supply operators will also be required to provide health information regarding any contaminants that exceed federal drinking water standards.

The new notification requirements — which take effect in 1999 — are a natural extension of what Minnesota has already been doing, Commissioner Barry said. "We feel that it's important that people have good information about the quality of their drinking water," she said. "That's why we started doing our annual drinking water report. Providing this information directly to the consumer is the next logical step, and we welcome it."

MDH is responsible for enforcing the SDWA in Minnesota, and its testing activities are part of that task. The newly released test results have been published in a 20 page report, "Continuing the Tradition: A Summary of Drinking Water Protection Activities — 1996". The report deals specifically with community water supply systems — a category which includes all systems that serve more than 25 people or have more than 15 service connections, and provide water to people in their place of residence. In addition to city water systems, community systems can include systems that serve facilities like apartment buildings or manufactured home parks.

MDH routinely tests community water systems for a list of up to 118 pesticides and industrial chemicals. The testing schedule depends on the specific chemical being tested for, and the vulnerability of each individual system to contamination.

When a system exceeds the federal maximum contaminant level (MCL) for a particular chemical, people who use the water must be notified and steps must be taken to correct the problem. If there is no MCL for a particular contaminant, MDH uses a state standard known as Health Risk Limit (HRL). Both HRLs and MCLs are calculated very conservatively, to provide a broad margin of safety in protecting human health. The HRLs and MCLs for most contaminants are based on the assumption that people will be drinking the water on a daily basis, over an entire 70-year lifetime. The main exceptions are bacteria and nitrate, which are primarily a short term health concern.

MDH tests community water systems for total coliform bacteria as a general indicator of possible contamination with bacteria or other microorganisms. Systems serving more than 1,000 people are tested monthly, while smaller systems are tested four times a year.

Community systems are tested for nitrate once a year. Two community water systems — serving the cities of Cold Spring and Richmond — exceeded the federal MCL for nitrate during 1996. Nitrate is a health concern primarily for infants under six months of age. Following standard procedure, residents of the two affected communities have been warned not to let infants consume the water, until the problem can be corrected. Beyond that, the nitrate contamination is not considered to be a health concern.

Each community water system is also tested for a list of 13 other inorganic chemicals and a number of radioactive elements — once every three years in most cases, but as often as once a year for some systems. Both inorganic chemicals and radioactive elements can occur naturally in the environment. None of Minnesotas community water systems exceeded the MCLs for other inorganic chemicals or radioactive elements during 1996.

Artists sign up to show their work at Roseau event

Roseau celebrates with Art in the Park on July 13

Two painters, two potters and one calligrapher will, for the first time, show their work at Art in the Park on Sunday, July 13, in Roseau.

The list of the five new exhibitors include Shelby Barrentine, a calligrapher from Grand Forks, ND; Margruite Krahn of Winnipeg, who paints in both oils and watercolors, JoAnne Morris of Texas, a summer resident of the Northwest Angle, who is an oil painter; and Lisa McGrath and Peggy Fulton, both potters from Roseau.

Eleven artists who have exhibited previously at one or more of the organization's eight previous events have registered to return for the July '97 show/sale scheduled for the Pioneer Farm and Village 2.5 miles west of Roseau on Highway 11. In case of threatening weather the entire event will move indoors to Roseau Community School's spacious new commons.

Additional exhibitors may still register, but after June 17, they likely will not be included in the brochure which must go to press soon.

Previous exhibitors need not be juried, but must pay the small registration fee immediately. A second jurying session can be arranged if any additional new artists or fine craftsmen turn in three samples or photos of their work by June 22.

Some parts of our drinking water [illegible] back to the [illegible] Commissioner Barry noted. "By investing in improvements to this system, we can do a more effective job of safeguarding drinking water quality in the future. The new revolving loan fund will help us do that."

The SDWA reauthorization also includes a requirement that water supply systems notify their customers any time contaminants are detected in the water. Water supply operators will also be required to provide health information regarding any contaminants that exceed federal drinking water standards.

The new notification requirements — which take effect in 1999 — are a natural extension of what Minnesota has already been doing, Commissioner Barry said. "We feel that it's important that people have good information about the quality of their drinking water," she said. "That's why we started doing our annual drinking water report. Providing this information directly to the consumer is the next logical step, and we welcome it."

MDH is responsible for enforcing the SDWA in Minnesota, and its testing activities are part of that task. The newly released test results have been published in a 20 page report, "Continuing the Tradition: A Summary of Drinking Water Protection Activities — 1996". The report deals specifically with community water supply systems — a category which includes all systems that serve more than 25 people or have more than 15 service connections, and provide water to people in their place of residence. In addition to city water systems, community systems can include systems that serve facilities like apartment buildings or manufactured home parks.

MDH routinely tests community water systems for a list of up to 118 pesticides and industrial chemicals. The testing schedule depends on the specific chemical being tested for, and the vulnerability of each individual system to contamination.

When a system exceeds the federal maximum contaminant level (MCL) for a particular chemical, people who use the water must be notified and steps must be taken to correct the problem. If there is no MCL for a particular contaminant, MDH uses a state standard known as Health Risk Limit (HRL). Both HRLs and MCLs are calculated very conservatively, to provide a broad margin of safety in protecting human health. The HRLs and MCLs for most contaminants are based on the assumption that people will be drinking the water on a daily basis over an entire 70-year lifetime. The main exceptions are bacteria and nitrate, which are primarily a short term health concern.

MDH tests community water systems for total coliform bacteria as a general indicator of possible contamination with bacteria or other microorganisms. Systems serving more than 1,000 people are tested monthly, while smaller systems are tested four times a year.

Community systems are tested for nitrate once a year. Two community water systems — serving the cities of Cold Spring and Richmond — exceeded the federal MCL for nitrate during 1996. Nitrate is a health concern primarily for infants under six months of age. Following standard procedure, residents of the two affected communities have been warned not to let infants consume the water, until the problem can be corrected. Beyond that, the nitrate contamination is not considered to be a health concern.

Each community water system is also tested for a list of 13 other inorganic chemicals and a number of radioactive elements — once every three years in most cases, but as often as once a year for some systems. Both inorganic chemicals and radioactive elements can occur naturally in the environment. None of Minnesotas community water systems exceeded the MCLs for other inorganic chemicals or radioactive elements during 1996.

Artists sign up to show their work at Roseau event

Roseau celebrates with Art in the Park on July 13

Two painters, two potters and one calligrapher will, for the first time, show their work at Art in the Park on Sunday, July 13, in Roseau.

The list of the five new exhibitors include Shelby Barrentine, a calligrapher from Grand Forks, ND; Marguerite Krahn of Winnipeg, who paints in both oils and watercolors; JoAnne Morris of Texas, a summer resident of the Northwest Angle who is an oil painter; and Lisa McGrath and Peggy Fulton, both potters from Roseau.

Eleven artists who have exhibited previously at one or more of the organization's eight previous events have registered to return for the July '97 show/sale scheduled for the Pioneer Farm and Village 2.5 miles west of Roseau on Highway 11. In case of threatening weather the entire event will move indoors to Roseau Community School's spacious new commons.

Additional exhibitors may still register, but after June 17, they likely will not be included in the brochure which must go to press soon.

Previous exhibitors need not be juried, but must pay the small registration fee immediately. A second jurying session can be arranged if any additional new artists or fine craftsmen turn in three samples or photos of their work by June 22.

An Employer's View On Education

GUEST EDITORIAL
by Kelvin Johnson, President
Printing Industry of Minnesota, Inc.

I would like to offer a different perspective on the legislative impasse over K-12 education currently underway at the State Capitol. I am not a state legislator nor am I in the education system. I am simply a parent and a businessman. As President of the Printing Industry of Minnesota, Inc. (PIM), it is my purpose to know what is going on in the Minnesota business community. The printing industry is the second largest manufacturing industry in the state and is vitally important to the Minnesota economy. There is a printer in virtually every Minnesota community, and the industry employs more than 57,000 people. It is from that perspective that I offer my view of what is at stake for business in Minnesota when it comes to the education of our children.

The printing industry recently surveyed its members on the quality of job applicants entering the market. What we found was alarming. Fifty-two percent of company owners said current job applicants do not have the basic skills necessary to be hired and 58 percent believe that job applicants are not as well prepared today as they were 10 years ago. So as businesspeople are accustomed to doing, we saw a problem and we set out to correct it. We developed our own education reform plan and worked to advance it in the Minnesota Legislature. But while the teachers' unions were obviously aware of the problems in our K-12 education system, we did not see anything new advanced by them to address the situation.

Our plan called for more accountability on the part of schools, teachers and administrators and more access for parents and students. The union solution? Give more money to the system and eventually things will get better. The teachers' unions have fought reform every step of the way, including the issues of charter school expansion, lab schools, school-based finance management and arbitration reform.

Fortunately, the Minnesota Legislature was able to resist the union pressure and pass some of this much needed reform. However, it is now the union's intransigence on the issue of tax credits and deductions that is forcing the Governor to call a special session.

And what would the Governor's proposal do? It would simply let all Minnesota families keep more of their own money to provide for their kids' education. It would allow them to buy a computer, send their child to an education summer camp, hire a tutor or pay for tuition expenses. But with roughly $1 million in campaign contributions from the teachers' unions in their pockets, the legislative leadership is holding firm against expanding parental choice.

Let me make a distinction at this point. I am not criticizing teachers, but rather the unions representing them. The vast majority of teachers do an excellent job, particularly considering that their hands are often tied by the very unions that supposedly represent their interests. When the unions hold out for more money at the expense of less reform, they are actually doing their membership, and the kids of this state, a disservice.

This whole notion of not enough money being spent on education is false. With approximately 820,000 students in Minnesota's K-12 public schools, we would need 41,000 classroom teachers to maintain a student-teacher ratio of 20:1. If each of those teachers were paid $50,000 in salary and $30,000 in fringe benefits, the total cost would be about $3.3 billion a year. Yet we spend more than $6 billion on a system with 49,000 classroom teachers, overcrowded classes and underpaid teachers. Where is all the money going?

There are many ways in which businesses and school are, and probably should be, run differently. But there are certain truisms in life that lead to success in any endeavor. In business and in education (I think most teachers would agree), you need to make changes every day to stay competitive. I believe it is also incumbent upon any successful operation to work at driving out the waste in its system, and to work toward becoming more efficient and competitive.

In order for the printing industry to compete in the global print communications industry, the industry must constantly change and keep up-to-date on new ways of delivering services to its customers. It is clear that the Minnesota K-12 education system has done a poor job in its efforts to change and adapt to the needs of its primary customer—the student. Many of us in business feel that schools can and should do a better job of this.

So what will be the business community's response to the continuing decline of our education standards? First, and this is already happening, Minnesota kids will not be hired by Minnesota businesses. It is as simple as that. If the product you need is not readily available, you go elsewhere to find it. If the employees being offered by the Minnesota school system are not satisfactory, business will find them in Wisconsin, Iowa, the Dakotas, etc.

Furthermore, when the cream of the crop has been skimmed from this state and the surrounding states, businesses will find it a lot easier just to move their operations to another state rather than scavenge to find adequate help in this state. And believe me, the word will spread. How many businesses looking to relocate will consider Minnesota when the prevailing message coming from our business community is "You just can't find good help these days."

If I sound somewhat alarmed and dismayed, it is because I am. But I am also hopeful. I cannot believe that our legislators, and ultimately their constituents, will allow themselves to be held hostage to the special interests of the teachers' unions. I fervently believe that when the people of this state are faced with the alternatives of more money to the same old system, or an innovative approach to education that increases school accountability and parental choice in their child's education, they will ultimately and overwhelmingly support the latter.

Also pointed out was the need of protecting the public in the vicinity of the power dam in the city.

The Currency Question

"The 'gold bugs' are trying hard to shape the currency of this country after the English system. The Minneapolis Tribune under the head of 'A Currency Plan', outlines it thus:

"'Increase our national debt to $4,000,000,000 the same as Great Britain's; drop free silver coinage, state banks, United States notes issues, post office savings banks, and bi-metal standards and adopt an independent national coinage, based upon a gold standard with a subsidiary coinage ample for the retail trade of the country.' In other words the plan is to mortgage the country irretrievably to the Money Changers and give them control of its finances. It's so English, you know."

An Employer's View On Education

GUEST EDITORIAL
by Kelvin Johnson, President
Printing Industry of Minnesota, Inc.

I would like to offer a different perspective on the legislative impasse over K-12 education currently underway at the State Capitol. I am not a state legislator nor am I in the education system. I am simply a parent and a businessman. As President of the Printing Industry of Minnesota, Inc. (PIM), it is my purpose to know what is going on in the Minnesota business community. The printing industry is the second largest manufacturing industry in the state and is vitally important to the Minnesota economy. There is a printer in virtually every Minnesota community, and the industry employs more than 57,000 people. It is from that perspective that I offer my view of what is at stake for business in Minnesota when it comes to the education of our children.

The printing industry recently surveyed its members on the quality of job applicants entering the market. What we found was alarming. Fifty-two percent of company owners said current job applicants do not have the basic skills necessary to be hired and 58 percent believe that job applicants are not as well prepared today as they were 10 years ago. So as businesspeople are accustomed to doing, we saw a problem and we set out to correct it. We developed our own education reform plan and worked to advance it in the Minnesota Legislature. But while the teachers' unions were obviously aware of the problems in our K-12 education system, we did not see anything new advanced by them to address the situation.

Our plan called for more accountability on the part of schools, teachers and administrators and more access for parents and students. The union solution? Give more money to the system and eventually things will get better. The teachers' unions have fought reform every step of the way, including the issues of charter school expansion, lab schools, school-based finance management and arbitration reform.

Fortunately, the Minnesota Legislature was able to resist the union pressure and pass some of this much needed reform. However, it is now the union's intransigence on the issue of tax credits and deductions that is forcing the Governor to call a special session.

And what would the Governor's proposal do? It would simply let all Minnesota families keep more of their own money to provide for their kids' education. It would allow them to buy a computer, send their child to an education summer camp, hire a tutor or pay for tuition expenses. But with roughly $1 million in campaign contributions from the teachers' unions in their pockets, the legislative leadership is holding firm against expanding parental choice.

Let me make a distinction at this point. I am not criticizing teachers, but rather the unions representing them. The vast majority of teachers do an excellent job, particularly considering that their hands are often tied by the very unions that supposedly represent their interests. When the unions hold out for more money at the expense of less reform, they are actually doing their membership, and the kids of this state, a disservice.

This whole notion of not enough money being spent on education is false. With approximately 820,000 students in Minnesota's K-12 public schools, we would need 41,000 classroom teachers to maintain a student-teacher ratio of 20:1. If each of those teachers were paid $50,000 in salary and $30,000 in fringe benefits, the total cost would be about $3.3 billion a year. Yet we spend more than $6 billion on a system with 49,000 classroom teachers, overcrowded classes and underpaid teachers. Where is all the money going?

There are many ways in which businesses and school are, and probably should be, run differently. But there are certain truisms in life that lead to success in any endeavor. In business and in education (I think most teachers would agree), you need to make changes every day to stay competitive. I believe it is also incumbent upon any successful operation to work at driving out the waste in its system, and to work toward becoming more efficient and competitive.

In order for the printing industry to compete in the global print communications industry, the industry must constantly change and keep up-to-date on new ways of delivering services to its customers. It is clear that the Minnesota K-12 education system has done a poor job in its efforts to change and adapt to the needs of its primary customer—the student. Many of us in business feel that schools can and should do a better job of this.

So what will be the business community's response to the continuing decline of our education standards? First, and this is already happening, Minnesota kids will not be hired by Minnesota businesses. It is as simple as that. If the product you need is not readily available, you go elsewhere to find it. If the employees being offered by the Minnesota school system are not satisfactory, business will find them in Wisconsin, Iowa, the Dakotas, etc.

Furthermore, when the cream of the crop has been skimmed from this state and the surrounding states, businesses will find it a lot easier just to move their operations to another state rather than scavenge to find adequate help in this state. And believe me, the word will spread. How many businesses looking to relocate will consider Minnesota when the prevailing message coming from our business community is "You just can't find good help these days."

If I sound somewhat alarmed and dismayed, it is because I am. But I am also hopeful. I cannot believe that our legislators, and ultimately their constituents, will allow themselves to be held hostage to the special interests of the teachers' unions. I fervently believe that when the people of this state are faced with the alternatives of more money to the same old system, or an innovative approach to education that increases school accountability and parental choice in their child's education, they will ultimately and overwhelmingly support the latter.

"Danger to Northrop school pupils in crossing the trunk highway on Main avenue, where fast driving is prevalent, was cited and it was voted to recommend to the city council that warning signs for motorists be installed there. Also pointed out was the need of protecting the public in the vicinity of the power dam in the city.

"Calling attention to the fact that the river is abnormally high this year, with a swift current, the council cautioned children and adults to swim only at the supervised beach and between the hours of 9 a.m. and 9 p.m., when lifeguards are on duty. Boaters are also urged to take safety precautions."

The Currency Question

"The 'gold bugs' are trying hard to shape the currency of this country after the English system. The Minneapolis Tribune under the head of 'A Currency Plan', outlines it thus:

"'Increase our national debt to $4,000,000,000 the same as Great Britain's; drop free silver coinage, state banks, United States notes issues, post office savings banks, and bi-metal standards and adopt an independent national coinage, based upon a gold standard with a subsidiary coinage ample for the retail trade of the country.' In other words the plan is to mortgage the country irretrievably to the Money Changers and give them control of its finances. It's so English, you know."

An Employer's View On Education

GUEST EDITORIAL
by Kelvin Johnson, President
Printing Industry of Minnesota, Inc.

I would like to offer a different perspective on the legislative impasse over K-12 education currently underway at the State Capitol. I am not a state legislator nor am I in the education system. I am simply a parent and a businessman. As President of the Printing Industry of Minnesota, Inc. (PIM), it is my purpose to know what is going on in the Minnesota business community. The printing industry is the second largest manufacturing industry in the state and is vitally important to the Minnesota economy. There is a printer in virtually every Minnesota community, and the industry employs more than 57,000 people. It is from that perspective that I offer my view of what is at stake for business in Minnesota when it comes to the education of our children.

The printing industry recently surveyed its members on the quality of job applicants entering the market. What we found was alarming. Fifty-two percent of company owners said current job applicants do not have the basic skills necessary to be hired and 58 percent believe that job applicants are not as well prepared today as they were 10 years ago. So as businesspeople are accustomed to doing, we saw a problem and we set out to correct it. We developed our own education reform plan and worked to advance it in the Minnesota Legislature. But while the teachers' unions were obviously aware of the problems in our K-12 education system, we did not see anything new advanced by them to address the situation.

Our plan called for more accountability on the part of schools, teachers and administrators and more access for parents and students. The union solution? Give more money to the system and eventually things will get better. The teachers' unions have fought reform every step of the way, including the issue of charter school expansion, lab schools, school-based finance management and arbitration reform.

Fortunately, the Minnesota Legislature was able to resist the union pressure and pass some of this much needed reform. However, it is now the union's intransigence on the issue of tax credits and deductions that is forcing the Governor to call a special session.

And what would the Governor's proposal do? It would simply let all Minnesota families keep more of their own money to provide for their kids' education. It would allow them to buy a computer, send their child to an education summer camp, hire a tutor or pay for tuition expenses. But with roughly $1 million in campaign contributions from the teachers' unions in their pockets, the legislative leadership is holding firm against expanding parental choice.

Let me make a distinction at this point. I am not criticizing teachers, but rather the unions representing them. The vast majority of teachers do an excellent job, particularly considering that their hands are often tied by the very unions that supposedly represent their interests. When the unions hold out for more money at the expense of less reform, they are actually doing their membership, and the kids of this state, a disservice.

This whole notion of not enough money being spent on education is false. With approximately 820,000 students in Minnesota's K-12 public schools, we would need 41,000 classroom teachers to maintain a student-teacher ratio of 20:1. If each of those teachers were paid $50,000 in salary and $30,000 in fringe benefits, the total cost would be about $3.3 billion a year. Yet we spend more than $6 billion on a system with 49,000 classroom teachers, overcrowded classes and underpaid teachers. Where is all the money going?

There are many ways in which businesses and school are, and probably should be, run differently. But there are certain truisms in life that lead to success in any endeavor. In business and in education (I think most teachers would agree), you need to make changes every day to stay competitive. I believe it is also incumbent upon any successful operation to work at driving out the waste in its system, and to work toward becoming more efficient and competitive.

In order for the printing industry to compete in the global print communications industry, the industry must constantly change and keep up-to-date on new ways of delivering services to its customers. It is clear that the Minnesota K-12 education system has done a poor job in its efforts to change and adapt to the needs of its primary customer—the student. Many of us in business feel that schools can and should do a better job of this.

So what will be the business community's response to the continuing decline of our education standards? First, and this is already happening, Minnesota kids will not be hired by Minnesota businesses. It is as simple as that. If the product you need is not readily available, you go elsewhere to find it. If the employees being offered by the Minnesota school system are not satisfactory, business will find them in Wisconsin, Iowa, the Dakotas, etc.

Furthermore, when the cream of the crop has been skimmed from this state and the surrounding states, businesses will find it a lot easier just to move their operations to another state rather than scavenge to find adequate help in this state. And believe me, the word will spread. How many businesses looking to relocate will consider Minnesota when the prevailing message coming from our business community is "You just can't find good help these days."

If I sound somewhat alarmed and dismayed, it is because I am. But I am also hopeful. I cannot believe that our legislators, and ultimately their constituents, will allow themselves to be held hostage to the special interests of the teachers' unions. I fervently believe that when the people of this state are faced with the alternatives of more money to the same old system, or an innovative approach to education that increases school accountability and parental choice in their child's education, they will ultimately and overwhelmingly support the latter.

The Currency Question

"The 'gold bugs' are trying hard to shape the currency of this country after the English system. The Minneapolis Tribune under the head of 'A Currency Plan', outlines it thus:

"'Increase our national debt to $4,000,000,000 the same as Great Britain's; drop free silver coinage, state banks, United States notes issues, post office savings banks, and bi-metal standards and adopt an independent national coinage, based upon a gold standard with a subsidiary coinage ample for the retail trade of the country.' In other words the plan is to mortgage the country irretrievably to the Money Changers and give them control of its finances. It's so English, you know."

Twelve people from Thief River Falls will be offered the opportunity to attend an intensive leadership retreat October 19-24 under sponsorship of the Blandin Foundation in Grand Rapids.

Northwest Minnesota Foundation (formerly the Northwest Minnesota Initiative Fund), recently announced the selection of Thief River Falls to participate in the Blandin Community Leadership Program.

Begun in 1985, the Blandin Community Leadership Program has been recognized nationally and internationally for its work with rural communities. More than 2,200 leaders from 180 communities throughout Minnesota have participated in this program.

Providing this program to communities in northwest Minnesota is a partnership effort between the Northwest Minnesota Foundation and the Blandin Foundation. This will be the third time that Thief River Falls has had the opportunity to select a team of participants.

Program alumni from Thief River Falls in the previous two groups include Charlotte Bjorgaard, Dave Carlson, Jean Heinrichs, Katy Henke, Heidi Hoks, Marty Johnson, Jean Larson, Sue Lillevold, Al Sallom, Don Stewart, Bill Stock, Les Torgerson and Darla Twomey.

Additional details will be provided in future news stories.

Foundation adds to grant for flood relief

The Northwest Minnesota Foundation—formerly the Northwest Minnesota Initiative Fund—has announced three grant awards totaling $53,000 for flood relief activities in the Red River Valley.

The grants are in addition to $50,000 which NMF had previously committed for emergency assistance to low income victims of the flood disaster.

At its May meeting, the NMF board of directors allocated $10,000 to North Country Food Bank, headquartered in Crookston, for extra operating expenses incurred in the distribution of bulk commodities to area food pantries. The grant was made possible by a contribution from the Northland Foundation in Duluth.

The board also set aside up to $38,000 in its own resources to help the City of East Grand Forks establish a temporary business district. Grant moneys will be used to provide infrastructure improvements for up to 32 service and professional businesses which have been displaced by flood waters.

An additional $5,000 was awarded to the Moorhead Small Business Development Center for auxiliary counseling staff to help companies in the upper Red River Valley complete applications for disaster assistance from the Small Business Administration.
